THE JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS.

THE DEMOCRATIC JUDICIAL ticket is a good one and ought to be elected if for no other reason than that the convention which named the candidates showed its good faith by offering to remove the district judges from politics.

The Herald still believes that the non-partisan nomination of the present incumbents, as recommended by the leading lawyers of the district, would have been the best plan; it still believes that the men who scrambled for nominations, as some of the Republican candidates did, are disqualified to sit in judgment on important cases such as come to the courts of this district.

A SOUTH AMERICAN DISPUTE.

BRAZIL AND PERU are apparently on the verge of one of their periodical squabbles. Once in so often those nations have a feapoint fight that usually results in the loss of about two men on a side from over-exertion in escaping from the other side.

Now Secretary Cortelyou is being talked of for chairman of the Republican national committee. Mr. Cortelyou is said to have stood very close to President McKinley and Senator Hanna. It is difficult to see, however, how his close acquaintance with those dead statesmen will help him in the management of a Roosevelt campaign.

disputant or the other carries with it the possibility of interference by some European power. And that makes worry at Washington.

MR. ROCKEFELLER TALKS.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER—the great John—has been telling son John's Sunday school class a part of the story of his life. The Oil trust magnate gave some interesting details relative to his first earnings, notably his discovery, at the tender age of 13, that $50 loaned out at seven per cent interest for a year would yield him a larger revenue than he could derive from digging potatoes for ten days.

But neither of these highly commensurate men in Mr. Rockefeller's judgment, is to be compared for a moment with his interest discovery. Any boy of seven years of age should be able, by diligent application, to milk a cow. Any boy eight years old could, after a few lessons, drive a gentle horse. But not one boy of 13 in a million figures out a plan for making money by loaning money at interest.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Rockefeller will give the public some more stories of his life. We would like to hear his story of the organization of the Standard Oil monopoly, of how he crushed competitor after competitor, nearly all of them by the most despicable methods, of how he has at last built up the most typical trust of the age.

THE COST OF LIVING.

IT IS MUCH to be doubted if the "full dinner pail" argument will be used by the Republican party in the next national campaign. The dinner pail does not contain as much today as it contained a few years ago, for the good and sufficient reason that, while men have been thrown out of work in a great many places throughout the nation, the cost of everything they must have is increasing, rather than decreasing.

The Republicans claim they produced the prosperity the country enjoyed last year and the year before. Then, by the same token, they should have continued that prosperity in full force and effect. The fact that this is a presidential year does not entirely account for the depression which prevails in most of the important business and financial centers.

Now Secretary Cortelyou is being talked of for chairman of the Republican national committee. Mr. Cortelyou is said to have stood very close to President McKinley and Senator Hanna. It is difficult to see, however, how his close acquaintance with those dead statesmen will help him in the management of a Roosevelt campaign.

That Illinois Republican convention ought to produce a Democratic governor. The adherents of the men who are sure to be beaten should be able to give the victorious candidate for the nomination a mighty interesting time between now and November. That is, provided a nomination is made before election day.

An aged English countess has decorated that ancient water by marrying her coachman. Everybody seems to think the coachman has the better of the bargain, but we desire to express a doubt. You see the countess may live for a year or two yet.

Chicago must raise $6,000,000 right away to settle some legal judgments. The big town is in such dire straits that the city hall may be turned into a robbing house before long.

BREAKFAST FOOD

The Spirit of Progress.

The man who sat next to the car window wore a fringe of grey beard beneath his chin. His cheeks and lips were smoothly shaven. The lips clung close to the teeth. The eyes were small, slant and close together. The chin was pointed and hastily-retreating. When he spoke he used one side of his mouth only. You knew in advance just what he would say about anything that might come up. It was no surprise, therefore, when he looked at the happy, bright-eyed high school boys and girls parading the streets in honor of their school's victory, he said to his neighbor: "Look at 'em! Look at 'em! There they are! Boys 22 or 23 years of age! Ought to be at work! Girls there, old enough to be mothers! Look at 'em! Look at 'em! Going to school! Pah! And when they get through with the schools and colleges, what do they amount to? Nothin'! Pah! Enough to make me sick!"

Now, which man does the world need the more? Everybody is wondering why the aged countess married the young coachman, but nobody appears anxious to know what allied the coachman.

Now that former Governor West has come to his assistance, it is thought the coal company vote by placing A. B. Eider on the judiciary committee.

SOCIETY

Miss Leta McMillan was the hostess last evening at a delightful dance at the McMillan home on East Brigham street. The large rooms on the east and west sides of the hallway were bare for dancing, and with the hall, they made a good sized dancing floor. The whole front of the house was decorated with a simple arrangement of pink and white flowers, and in the library beyond purple and white fleur de lis were used. In the dining room the table presented a most attractive appearance. A high cut glass vase of pink roses filled the center and two handsome candelabra shaded with the same color lighted either end. Cut glass and silver in abundance added to the effect, and lace doilies and pinnafole lighted the polished table. The music was stationed in a small alcove to the east of the hall. The guests numbered about sixty.

The Beverage of Health Pure beer—Schlitz beer—is the best drink in the world for you. The malt is a food; the hops a tonic. The alcohol—only 3 1/2 per cent—is an aid to digestion; a healthful stimulant. The most healthy nations in the world—the most hardy, most energetic—drink the most of it. But the beer must be pure. Impurity means harmful germs. That is why we brew Schlitz in absolute cleanliness—why we filter even the air that touches it and sterilize every bottle. And the beer must be aged. Green beer causes biliousness. That's why we age Schlitz for months before we market it. Schlitz beer is absolutely pure; it can't harm you. Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
