

DEAF AND BLIND SHOW PROGRESS

Remarkable Exhibition Before State Teachers.

PROFESSOR DRIGGS' PAPER

RELATION OF STATE TO DEFECTIVE CHILDREN EXPLAINED.

The blind saw, the deaf heard and the dumb spoke, before the Utah State Teachers' association in Barratt hall, yesterday forenoon.

As the children of the deaf and dumb school, before the Utah State Teachers' association in Barratt hall, yesterday forenoon.

Address by Professor Driggs.

Professor Driggs spoke on "The State in Its Relation to the Defective Child." He said:

This is, I think, the first time that the Utah State School for the Deaf and the Utah State School for the Blind and the Utah State School for the Dumb and Deaf have been together in the same building.

There are many grades of deafness and there are many shades of a particular defect. There are also many grades of blindness, from the child with poor vision to the one who is totally blind.

blind in Utah, for which we should feel grateful, but if there were the state's duty would be to provide special education for them.

There are, however, in Utah, boys and girls more unfortunate than either of the three classes just mentioned, for which the state makes no provision, namely, the feeble-minded.

Every year I receive a large number of applications for the admission to our institution of feeble-minded children.

These applicants are they are not feeble in feeble-mindedness from slightly below normal children, the idiotic, imbecile and insane.

Many of them are capable of much growth and development under proper conditions.

Following the paper, Professor Driggs introduced three members of the beginners' class, under Miss Frances N. Eddy, who gave a class in spelling.

A young girl in the eighth grade from the blind class, one of the two who will complete the grades this year, read a paper written by her in the Braille system by the other members of her class.

Later Miss Delong, one of the teachers of the institution, who is totally deaf and obtained all her early education in the state school, was introduced, and although her speech has been acquired entirely by study of the vocal organs and the lips, she made a brief talk to the teachers, commending the institution and its work to their further study.

They were led before the other pictures which hang on the walls, and many were their comments, audible and inaudible, but not the less expressive, on the beauties of art, which they were surrounded.

The entire party returned last evening to Ogden, where the work goes on regardless of Saturday till the close of the school year in the summer time.

Some Examples of Improvement. The following is a sort of card history furnished by Professor Driggs of three children from the time they were received at the school till the present day, for obvious reasons their names not being given:

Number One. Is almost 4-years old. He attended public school three years, but could not succeed on account of lack of hearing.

Number Two. Is 7 years old. Has been in public school for six years, considered as a retard, dull, stupid, feeble-minded.

Number Three. A good example of mistaken kindness, or misdirected affection. Had never been to school.

LYNCH SPEAKS FOR THE BOYS

Chief of Police Favors Coasting in Safe Places.

WOULD MONOPOLIZE STREET

MUST KEEP AWAY FROM THE STREET CAR TRACKS.

"Children will be allowed to coast on the hills and streets in the out-of-the-way places where no car tracks are encountered and where there is little danger of pedestrians being run into."

"This statement was made last night by Chief of Police Lynch, who emphatically declared that he knew of no better or neater sport for the small boys in the winter time."

"Although there is an ordinance which prohibits coasting in the city limits," Chief Lynch continued, "the ordinance provides that the mayor has the privilege to set aside a street for coasting. Arrests have been made only where the residents along the streets have entered complaints about the boys using the sidewalks and making it dangerous for people passing up and down the streets."

"It is in the interest of these creditors to have the whole body of depositors, that Mr. Hirschi is undertaking to secure the really transfer," Hirschi, senior, said, "and will accept this offer of $50,000. More than this, we will buy you a comfortable home in southern Utah, where the climate is good and my mother lives in, and with it will go a farm, a vineyard and half interest in all farm equipment."

"The value of the property and equipment mentioned is about $900. Schettler was not moved to accept by this offer, and Mr. Hirschi proposed that the creditors would purchase Schettler's $2,000 place in the same district in southern Utah."

"Schettler, however, balked at the idea of going into a home worth only this sum. He did not propose to spend the remainder of his life amid such humble circumstances."

"Mr. Hirschi endeavored to get from Schettler his reason for refusing an offer from the creditors while expressing a willingness to accept a like sum for some other valuable individual, making it appear that the creditors' $50,000 looked much smaller than that of some capitalist."

"The report of the conference, which lasted until about 1 p. m., Schettler told Mr. Hirschi that he would take the matter "under advisement" until Saturday."

"Mr. Hirschi was present at Thursday night's meeting of creditors at the Schettler home, attending merely as a spectator. On this occasion Mr. Schettler greeted him warmly, patting him on the back and assuring him that he was glad to see him. The private session was arranged at that time."

"Among the pathetic cases which have come to light recently is that of a resident of the city, who is the part of the city, who for the past ten years has supported her blind husband. This woman had $2,500 in the People's Bank, and she went to the bank in the presence of a Herald reporter."

"And to think, in this 1,000 hard, hard washdays at $1.00 a day."

"Another woman, an aged Scandinavian widow, withdrew, at Schettler's request, a $2,000 from Zion's Savings bank in June, 1904, and deposited it in the private institution."

"Several of the Salt Lake creditors stated yesterday that Receiver R. R. Anderson would be prepared to file his amended complaint for the suits instituted against B. H. Schettler and his three wives this afternoon in the district court."

"The next public creditors' meeting will be held Tuesday evening in Room 22, Hooper & Eldredge block."

PLAN FOR SELLING BONDS.

Mayor Morris Intends to Save the City Interest.

Mayor Morris is considering a plan for issuing the water and sewer bonds by which he hopes to save the city considerable interest. The idea is to issue the bonds as the money is needed for the prosecution of the work.

This can be done, it is thought, by calling for bids for the entire $1,000,000 worth of bonds at the one time, the bidders to understand that the bonds are to be issued at the pleasure of the city.

By selling the entire $1,000,000 worth at the one time the mayor understands that a better rate of interest can be secured. This understanding that the city is to hold part of the bonds back till the money is needed will not be considered a serious objection by bond buyers.

MILITARY ORDERS ISSUED.

New Adjutant General Starts on His Duties.

The first series of military orders for 1905 and by the new state and militia administration was promulgated yesterday. The first of these orders commanded John M. Bowman to take the oath required by law as adjutant general. It was signed by Governor John C. Cutler. After the adjutant was appointed with the order and filed his official bond he entered upon the performance of his duties as the successor of former Adjutant General C. S. Burton.

Then Adjutant General Bowman accepted the resignation of Brigadier General John Q. Canon and announced the appointment of Samuel C. Park to the position.

Other orders made the following appointments effective: Joseph Geoghegan as inspector general, A. B. Kessler as quartermaster general, George M. Hanson as commissary general, S. H. Pinkerton as surgeon general, A. B. Irvine as judge advocate general, and George A. Seaman general inspector of target practice, each with the rank of colonel; Miles Taylor and Joseph Daynes, aides-de-camp, with rank of lieutenant colonel.

SHORTAGE OF DIRECTORIES.

New Bell Subscribers Have Used Them Up.

The management of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company is compelled to ask its patrons to take particular care not to destroy or lose their telephone directories, as the present edition is exhausted.

Anticipating a large increase in the number of subscribers during the next few months ago, but the growth exceeded this provision. Every effort is being made to hurry the publication of the new edition, but it will not be ready for distribution until about January 25, and until that time the company asks its patrons to be patient. Those without a directory can obtain the desired connection by calling for the chief operator.
