TELLS OF WORK OF W. C. T. U.

Miss Marie Brehms Occupies Two Pulpits. OUTLOOK DECLARED BRIGHT INTERESTING ADDRESS IN PHILLIPS CONGREGATIONAL.

Miss Marie C. Brehms, the well-known W. C. T. U. organizer of Chicago, entertained a large congregation last night, speaking on the subject "The World Outlook for Temperance Work" at the Phillips Congregational church. Miss Brehms' address consisted in a brief account of the session of the Anti-Alcoholic congress in Bremen, Germany, in April, 1903, and of the world gathering of "white ribboners" at Geneva later in the same year. Comments on the work accomplished and notes sounded were made and the address concluded with a picture of the poverty and ruin liquor had wrought in the United States within the past few years.

Miss Brehms said that in her opinion the most important utterance of the Anti-Alcoholic congress was that alcohol had no place in the practice of medicine, being instead a vitality builder, a subtle, slow poison. In the declaration of the congress, composed of 190 of the world's most eminent scientists, that the great increase of consumption could be traced directly to a growing use of alcohol, Miss Brehms also stated that the world governments would take a hand in the fight for temperance.

The address was made interesting to a degree by a reference to the part Mrs. Mary Hunt of Boston took in the Bremen congress. Mrs. Hunt, who was personally appointed by President Roosevelt to represent the United States at the congress, is a personal friend of Miss Brehms, and consequently the latter was able to convey to her auditors an idea of the personality of the great W. C. T. U. leader.

What Some Things Cost. In concluding her address, Miss Brehms took a novel way of impressing on the congregation just what the consumption of liquor and tobacco means to this country. From a rod containing several folds of different colored silks, she represented a roll of red representing the liquor bill of the nation for 1903. The silk was ten feet long and represented $700,000,000. The "tobacco silk" stood at $200,000,000. For education, $175,000,000 was expended.

The size of the ribbons ran considerably less as the step from had to good increased, and when the speaker finally displayed a tiny strand of silk, she announced that it represented $500,000, and that this sum was all contributed toward W. C. T. U. work during the same space of time in which so much was spent for liquor and tobacco. In spite of these depressing figures, the speaker declared the outlook for temperance bright.

Delivers Molding Sermon. Miss Brehms molded the pulpit at the Central Christian church yesterday morning. She chose for her text, Matt. v. 14-16: "Ye are the light of the world. Even so let your light shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Miss Brehms said, in part: "The practical thing for you and me is for us to learn individually what Christ would have us be to be the light of the world. What the world needs today is more than mere intellectual Christianity; it needs spiritual power. On one occasion a man named Robert Ingersoll, the greatest of all infidels, as to what he thought of the Sermon on the Mount, or why he never spoke on it, and he replied: 'I am willing to admit that the Sermon on the Mount' never came from an ordinary mind. It has divinity in it—a divine spirit must have inspired that.' We find that is practically so.

"What we need today is the coming closer to God and his power so the light may shine from us. The more the more unpopular the temperance cause is in your community the more need there is for you to stand and be a shining light for God. That you should use the power God has given you and touch other lives and bring them to him."

HOTEL MEN MEET. A special meeting of the recently organized Hotel Men's association was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of outlining a plan of action upon several matters regarded as of vital importance to the members of the association. The work was not completed when the meeting adjourned to meet again Tuesday evening.

FIEND IS STILL ALIVE

Missing Janitor of "Holmes Castle" Believed to Be in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—The Chicago police officials believe that they have at last discovered the identity of the missing janitor of "Holmes Castle," where so many women are said to have been murdered several years ago by J. H. Holmes, who was afterward hanged in Philadelphia. Detectives working on the case of John Hoch, accused by his wife of poisoning her sister, who murdered her marriage to herself, have come to the conclusion that Hoch is none other than the janitor who suddenly disappeared after testifying in behalf of Holmes when the latter was being tried on a murder charge. Hoch, according to the police, answers the description of the missing janitor in every detail, and a determined effort is being made to effect his capture. According to the police authorities Hoch is still in Chicago and it is only a matter of a few hours before he will be under arrest. With the discovery that Hoch is still in the city information reached the police today of three women who are believed to have been married to him. These three women, the police declare, were married to Hoch, but after living with him only a few weeks died, after which he disappeared in the same manner as he did after marrying Mrs. Emeline Fischer a few days ago.

The franchise was sold four and a half years ago to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit railroad.

WOMEN INJURED IN STAMPEDE AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Several women were injured here tonight in a stampede of thousands of people for the entrance to the West Auditorium to hear the news from St. Petersburg and to attend a address by Mrs. Katherine Bresnikowsky. Before the doors of the auditorium were opened the crowd, which had swelled into the thousands, began pushing and pushing those who struggled, many of whom were crushed on the stairs, finally thrown upon at least a score of men who had fainted during the rush into the hall, were trampled upon and more or less injured before they could be rescued. All the injured were taken to a nearby drug store where their wounds were dressed.

LEARNS TRUTH IN FRISCO

NO CANCER IN HIS, AND HE CELEBRATES JOYOUSLY.

Among others who have known trouble may be mentioned Colonel Ed Loose, the senator from Utah county. Colonel Loose's trouble began with his weight from something like 250 pounds to 185 and caused him mental anguish that sends a convulsive shudder through his massive frame even yet when he thinks of what he passed through.

The colonel dislikes to discuss the harrowing affair. Friends have told the story, which is confirmed fully by the colonel himself. He wouldn't tell it, but he admitted its truth when it was related in his presence.

Early last fall the colonel was annoyed by a soreness in his throat. He thought it might be a cold, but it grew steadily worse, and the advice of friends, he consulted a doctor at Provo.

The doctor belongs to the medical society, so his name must not be put in the paper. But, although a member of the medical society, the doctor has a bit of humor in his makeup. So when Colonel Loose called upon him the dialogue was about as follows:

"Say, doc, good day to you, huh? I wish you would look at my throat, huh? Been givin' me trouble for a week, huh?"

"Doctor looks in the colonel's mouth, and assumes worried expression. 'What's long you had this, Ed?'"

"'You're coughin' or ten days, huh? What is it, huh?'"

"'I don't like to say until I look it up a little. Come around tomorrow.'"

"Colonel calls next day. Doctor looks again and becomes grave. 'Ed, old man, I'm sorry, but you're in bad shape. I don't want to say for certain, but this looks mighty like a cancer.'"

"What's that, huh? Cancer? Cancer, huh? You're tryin' to kid me, doc, huh? And the doctor swears to it."

"'No, Ed, it's gospel truth.'"

"'Well, I'll be—Cancer, huh? That's pretty bad! What can we do about it, huh?'"

"'Well, Ed, to be honest with you, there's just a bare chance of doing anything. You must quit smoking and drinking and not eat anything but light foods, such as mush, broth, milk and things like that. Let tea and coffee alone, too. You are a strong man, and your system may shake it off if you are careful. And, by the way, Ed, if I were you I would sort of get my business straightened at the station.'"

"'Mustn't drink, huh?'"

"'Mustn't smoke, huh?'"

WYOMING RAILWAY WAR

Struggle For Right of Way Through the Basin of the Big Horn.

(Special of The Herald.) Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 22.—The struggle between the Burlington and the Chicago & Northwestern railroads for right-of-way through the Big Horn basin is now on and both roads are straining every nerve to secure advantages over the other. Numerous corps of surveyors are in the field and frequently the rival forces cross each other's surveys.

The coveted strip of prospective railroad grade, and for which the Burlington and the Northwestern are preparing to wage a bitter fight, lies through the canyon of the Big Horn river immediately north of Thermopolis. This route presents the only feasible avenue of entering Thermopolis from the north with the Northwestern and the Burlington have made surveys, but the Beigo-American company, which proposed to build the Wyoming Central railroad from Casper, appears to have the whip hand in that certain rights have been granted the concern in and around Thermopolis.

Yesterday the Burlington railroad filed with the state board of charities and reform a request for an exclusive right-of-way over the state reserve at Thermopolis. As this request includes a portion of the canyon in question, the Burlington would, if its request were granted, have the exclusive right-of-way across the state reserve, but because of this right no other railroad could pass through the canyon, thus completely shutting out rival roads from entering Thermopolis from the north.

The disposition of the members of the state board is to grant no railroad exclusive rights, and it is doubtful if the Burlington is successful in its quest. The board believes in using its position to encourage a number of roads to build through the Big Horn country, and not grant exclusive privileges to any one concern.

It is now a settled fact that the Burlington is to begin construction work in a few weeks on a line from Franm, on the extension of the line westward from a southerly direction, tapping Lovell, Burlington, Basin, the Bonanza oil fields and entering Thermopolis through the Big Horn canyon and over the state reserve at the hot springs. Surveys are now being made for the extension of the line westward from Thermopolis to tap the Kirwin gold mines and the rich coal fields south of Meeteetse. It is also reported that this line will eventually be extended southwesterly through the Jackson's Hole country into Idaho and Utah, via the Snake river valley.

CHENOWETH GOT AWAY

Man Wanted in Utah For Larceny Dug Out of the Boise Jail.

(Special to The Herald.) Boise, Ida., Jan. 22.—Sam Chenoweth, wanted in Garfield county, Utah, for grand larceny, escaped from the county jail here last night and has not been recaptured. Sheriff Haycock of Panzuitch arrived here on Saturday afternoon with requisition papers for Chenoweth. He was to have left for home with his prisoner this morning. The Utah sheriff had not been charged of the prisoner but had warned the Boise sheriff to keep close watch on the man. Chenoweth dug a hole through a brick wall in the cell and got away at midnight. An ex-soldier awaiting trial for highway robbery occupied the same apartment with Chenoweth. He also got away, came down town, got gloriously drunk, went back to the jail, crawled through the hole in the wall and returned to his bed. The officers all without a clue to Chenoweth.
