ST. PATRICK'S DAY.
The said St. Patrick drove the snakes from Ireland and drowned 'em;
He drowned them in the flowing bowl;
I, celebrating, found 'em.

THIS RUNS AN ancient rhyme. And the first thought of many good citizens in connection with the good St.
Patrick is of the snakes that he evicted from the Emerald Isle.

Today our friends of Irish birth or Irish descent will celebrate St. Patrick's day. They will march in parades, they will feast and make merry,

In this broad land of ours are hundreds of thousands of loyal American citizens who are natives of Ireland or whose ancestry was Irish.

The fact that there are machines is rather more to the discredit of the people than of the men who build the machines.

THEIR hands and their voices will ever, when occasion arises, be raised in defense of America. So here's to you,

ALTHOUGH THE CZAR is said to be determined to continue the war with Japan, talk of peace continues.
