FINAL EFFORT FOR MITCHELL

Argument of Ex-Senator Thurston Completed Yesterday.

PROSECUTION SUMMING UP

CASE WILL GO TO THE JURY MONDAY AFTERNOON.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 1.—Ex-Senator John M. Thurston concluded his argument for the defense of United States Senator Mitchell this morning. Thurston today grilled Mitchell's former secretary, Harry Robertson, characterizing him as a spy upon his employer and discrediting his testimony. He said he had no harsh words for Judge Tanner, Mitchell's former law partner, but he asserted that witness understood fully to what he must testify in order to gain his own immunity from punishment and that of his son, and that the price had been paid. He denied that there were suspicious circumstances attached to Mitchell's actions when he first heard of the threatened indictment. Mitchell was betrayed, asserted Thurston, by all in whom he had a right to trust; he was poor, alone and sick and his subsequent action was more than that of an honest but a guilty man.

"Boarding House Senator."

Senator Mitchell's long and useful service for his state, his always honest and his faithfulness to his trust for all ought to weigh, claimed Thurston, against the charges of the prosecution, and it was morally certain (the prosecutor admitted) that the defendant was in any way guilty. He stated that although the senator was the oldest in Henry's service, in the senate and there were none of more distinguished services, he had always been a "boarding house senator," too poor to own mansions of his own, where he had opportunities to make hundreds of thousands of dollars in ways that the world calls honest.

United States District Attorney

Henry began his closing address to the jury this afternoon. He had not concluded when Judge De Haven adjourned the court until Monday.

Henry's Telling Reply.

Mr. Henry in his argument made telling answers to the questions asked the prosecution by Senator Thurston, as to why the government had not indicted Fred A. Kribbs for land grabbing and the death of Secretary Mitchell. He pointed out that the government had not indicted Kribbs for land grabbing and the death of Secretary Mitchell.
