

WATER MURKED BY CLOUDBURST

Wave Down Mountain Dell Canyon Sweeps Debris Into City Supply.

SCARCITY IS AT AN END

CONDITIONS BETTER THAN FOR SOME TIME.

A cloudburst high in Mountain Dell canyon about 8 o'clock Thursday night was responsible for the encolate colored fluid that was distributed instead of water to citizens whose homes are supplied by Parley's canyon. There was some water in the fluid, beyond a doubt, but the distinctive feature was the great amount of rich, canyon loam that was borne through the water pipes.

Naturally, complaints poured in during the day. Frank L. Hines, superintendent of waterworks, and Ben D. Luce, land and water commissioner, frankly confessed their inability to stop cloudbursts, but expressed willingness to retire in favor of somebody who would guarantee to prevent cloudbursts in the mountains.

What made the cloudburst particularly unfortunate at this time was the fact that much debris lay along the banks of Mountain Dell creek. Mr. Luce had men at work widening the channel for several days and much of the material removed by them was washed back into the stream and sent to the city reservoir when the great wave of water rushed down the canyon.

The cloudburst and the rain combined gave an ample water supply, but, unhappily, it was an undesirable sort of water. The thirteenth East street reservoir was filled to a depth of over thirteen feet. This water, of course, dirty as it was, was distributed through the pipes. Mr. Hines in an attempt to correct the condition, shut off the supply from Parley's creek about 8 o'clock yesterday morning and endeavored to maintain the system by the supply from City creek and the Capitol hill reservoir, but this was found unsatisfactory and the water from Parley's canyon and again turned into the mains. Men continued at work in the canyon all day yesterday. The water showed some improvement in color in the afternoon and will steadily improve—barring cloudbursts—until the debris is cleaned out of the creek.

Users of City creek water fared better than those who were forced to rely on Parley's creek. The City creek water, while a trifle murky as a result of the rain, was not sufficiently affected to make it unfit for use, as was the case with the water from Parley's.

Thursday's rain is reported to have been of much more benefit than the showers earlier in the week, especially in Parley's canyon, where the rainfall was heavy. The weir there showed a measurement of thirty-six inches yesterday morning, equivalent to almost 6,000,000 gallons of water in twenty-four hours.

Applications for Water Power Made by L. B. Spencer of Ogden and A. J. Poulsen of Richfield.

In an application filed with State Engineer Caleb Tanner yesterday, L. B. Spencer seeks water rights on the Ogden river to develop lighting power for Huntsville and Ogden, while in another application A. J. Poulsen of Richfield seeks water rights on the Sevier river with which to light his home city.

L. B. Spencer asks for forty second feet to be diverted from the left hand fork of the south fork of Ogden river, the latter being a part of the Weber river system. He proposes to erect a diverting dam thirty feet in height, to be constructed of timber crib or loose rock. The diverting channel would be 10,000 feet long, returning the water to the stream after it had developed some 1,500 horse-power.

A. J. Poulsen asks eighty second feet with which to develop 450 horse-power. He would build a diverting dam of earth "where the South Bend canal is diverted from Sevier river."

Her complaint shows that she let him have $20 in 1884, $30 in 1885, $35 in 1886, $70 in 1887, $50 in 1888, $45 in 1891, $30 in 1892, $33 in 1894 and $34 in 1895. Deducting the repayment of $40 and adding interest at the rate of 6 per cent, she figures that he now owes her $393.42, for which she asks judgment.

Court Notes. L. A. Jeffs has filed an action against the Wolverine Mining company and Martin L. Edinger to recover $24,845, with interest, on a note given by the company on Aug. 10, 1903, to Edinger and by him assigned to the plaintiff.

Ray Thatcher, the young boy accused of stealing from bath houses at Salt Lake, will be arraigned before Judge Armstrong next Monday. The case was set for yesterday, but was continued because of the absence of the boy's father.
