Begin Work Wednesday.
The regular work of the association will begin Wednesday morning with two department meetings of the parents' section and of the college and high school section. During the morning the city schools will be open for inspection of the work for the grade teachers, and each school has been announced for special lines of work, which are shown in the programme so that the teachers may make their selection of the subjects to be studied.

Four department meetings will be held during the same afternoon, and a general meeting in the assembly hall in the evening will close the day's work. This will be the occasion of the first address of G. Stanley Hall, the noted speaker secured for the session. His subject will be "Moral and Religious Education." The other subjects for his addresses on the succeeding evenings are "Genetic Psychology" and "The Education of the Heart and the Imagination."

Thursday morning will be devoted to department meetings and in the afternoon a general session will be held, at which Miss Alice Cooley, president of the department of elementary education, will deliver an address. Friday the same programme in kind will be followed with the annual business meeting and election of officers following Miss Cooley's address in the afternoon.

Fine Musical Programme.
Excellent music has been provided for the entertainment of the visiting teachers by Mr. Wetzel, and the following numbers will be given at the various sessions:

Tuesday evening: Professor William C. Clive and son, Clifford C. Clive, violin and piano; vocal solo, Miss Lillian Turner.

CONSOLIDATED WAGON & MACHINE COMPANY

No review of the larger machinery and implement houses of Salt Lake City would be complete without adequate mention of the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company. This street concern occupies two large four and five-story structures on State street for the conduct of its business, and with the immense volume of business transacted annually, the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company without question occupies the first position when considered with like houses in this and other western machinery centers. Briefly, the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company is the western agent and distributor for the following: Newport stoves and ranges, "Malleable" steel ranges, "Famous" wrought steel ranges and all stove equipment. It is also agent for Plymouth Red Tape twine. In the line of buggies and wagons it carries the Kappfman, Racine, Hesse, Velle, Connersville, Frazier, Bain and Cooper, and is western distributor of John Deere, Parlin & Orendoff and Oliver ploughs. No other firm has effected as many sales of threshers and harvesters of such reliable and well-known makes as the Case, McCormick and the International Harvester company, being handled.

The firm is agent for the American Steel & Wire company, Myers' pumps and Sampson windmills, as well as U. S. Cream Separators and all dairy equipment. It deals in Deere & Mansur disc harrow and elaterite roofing. The business conducted by the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company covers all of Utah, Idaho, Wyoming and Nevada, its salesmen traveling throughout this section, and it maintains branch houses at Ogden, Idaho Falls, Montpelier and Logan, and distributing agencies in various parts of this section. It furnishes employment for about 200 men, sixty-five of whom work at the Salt Lake headquarters.

The exclusive Salt Lake agency for the "Rambler" automobile was some time ago secured, and this department is in charge of men whose wide experience in that line insures their competence. This superior machine has become a local favorite, and already several sales have been effected. Business houses of the type of the Consolidated Wagon & Machinery company reflect great credit on the enterprise of the community, and are deserving of the undivided support of our citizens.

Mr. George T. Odell, the manager of the company, in a recent conversation, reviewed the 1906 outlook with much optimism. Mr. Odell said that the present snowfall in the mountains was much heavier than at the same time last year, which was the first indication of a good year's business. Second, the farmers, in spite of the blight in some sections, were fairly well off, and this meant that there would be a big buying movement in all implement lines next year. Third, the company's list of popular lines—wares which were counted as indispensables by farmers everywhere—was never so strong and attractive as now. Fourth, the several branch houses established by the company at Ogden, Logan, Idaho Falls, Montpelier, and at other places would be more thoroughly equipped than ever before to satisfy the wants of the farmers.

From all these facts, Mr. Odell felt that he was justified in saying that the outlook for 1906 was extraordinarily good.

A. & J. McDONALD.
Our imposing business blocks and many magnificent private residences are almost wholly the work of Salt Lake builders and contractors, these professions being most ably represented in this city. In this connection Messrs. A. and J. McDonald may well be mentioned as being recognized leaders as contracting builders and their excellent work is familiar to the people of this section. They are gentlemen whose ability is undisputed and many of the most handsome structures of which Salt Lake is so proud will stand for many years as a testimonial of their skill and reliability. Among the more recent work they have undertaken is the erection of the new Salt Lake Herald building on Main street, one of the finest structures in this city. Messrs. A. and J. McDonald have had many years of experience in the building and contracting business and people of all classes have profited by their efficient services which are at all times in the greatest demand. These gentlemen have operated extensively throughout this entire section and have done much toward the improvement of Salt Lake. The people of this city appreciate the work done by them as has been shown by the patronage extended them. The offices of Messrs. McDonald are in the Electric building, South Main street, at which place estimates are cheerfully furnished citizens contemplating building. As citizens these gentlemen are thoroughly representative, being enterprising, progressive and public spirited, ardently supporting any movement intended for the benefit of the city and community.
