THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT. Because the community is anxious for the city health department to do efficient work and is willing to meet any necessary expense to this end, some of the "Americans" seem to think this willingness is an endorsement of the health office as it is now administered.

On Arbor Day, every citizen of Salt Lake who had any public spirit made a special effort to clean up his premises and deposit all rubbish in receptacles for removal by the health department.

Finally, prodded into shamed activity, the department did make a collection by its wagons which abated the nuisance temporarily. But the administration of the office is still far from satisfactory.

Worse than this, the pest house management developed a scandalous extravagance, its supplies were charged in and paid for at more than any household would pay for the same goods, and the whole department is pervaded by political jobbery of the worst sort.

Some of the members of the committee on privileges and elections claim they are unable to vote intelligently on the Smoot case. That's a startling confession, in view of the length of time the case has been before the committee and the public.

IN DEFENSE OF THE TRUSTS.

It must please the rank and file of the Republican party mightily to read Representative Landis' candid defense of the stand-pat, trust-protection policy in congress. Mr. Landis says it is good business for the trusts to sell their goods abroad at much less than they charge home consumers, and he defends the retention of the trust-tariff which enables the monopolies to pursue this policy.

To the common, everyday buyer of trust goods the defense seems about the most impertinent, arrogant advocacy of the trusts that has appeared. Boiled down, the argument says:

"We, the trusts, have you, the consumers, where we want you. The Republican party has imposed a prohibitive tariff on goods from abroad which might otherwise compete with us, so we have you to ourselves. In our benevolent prayer we will not charge you as much as we might, if we chose, but we intend to charge you just as much as you can stand and still remain alive and able to buy something. If we have any surplus we will sell it abroad at any price it will bring, if you don't like it, what are you going to do about it?"

The pleasant thing about this declaration is that the American people who have permitted the imposition of an exorbitant tariff, who have given the manufacturers a monopoly of the American market, see themselves held up, robbed blind and financially crippled by the very beneficiaries of their kindness. The American people, who support the industries, are compelled to pay from 50 to 200 per cent more than European consumers of the same articles—for what good? Why, to enable such monopolies as control most articles of consumption to pay dividends on watered stock, raise the cost of living to a prohibitive point, corrupt legislation, control national politics and debauch the nation.

Mr. Landis and his Republican colleagues have quit talking about the "pauper labor of Europe," and "infant industries" and the "upbuilding of the nation," because they see such gabbie is futile. Apparently confident of their ability to retail political power indefinitely by the grace of trust contributions to campaign funds, they come out into the open, defend the trusts and ask what the people are going to do about it.

The indications now show the people will do a good deal, including such Republican congressmen as come up for election this fall. A few more Landis speeches ought to furnish the friends of tariff reform all the campaign arguments necessary to secure the election of a large Democratic majority in congress and pave the way for the election of a Democratic president later on.

JABBING THE PRESIDENT.

A citizen of Georgia has touched the president in a tender spot, though he has as yet given no evidence of injury. This Georgian, Alfred C. Bloom, has written a letter to the president asking him, in view of the serious illness of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, to recall the harsh words he once wrote about the late president of the southern Confederacy, Mr. Roosevelt, as some will remember, described Davis as "an arch traitor, and akin to Benedict Arnold." This is regarded by Mr. Bloom as entirely too severe, and, for Mrs. Davis' sake, he seeks the retraction. After speaking of the probable fatal termination of Mrs. Davis' illness, the Georgian goes on:

"This done, Mrs. Davis will meet death with the sweet consciousness that she is the bearer of a welcome message. The scarred veterans of the Lost Cause will love and honor you, the reunited country will approve you, and mankind will applaud your manly deed."

It is not at all likely that President Roosevelt will pay any attention to this appeal. And he really should not be held accountable for his impetuous remarks about Jefferson Davis. They were written years ago, when he was a hot-headed youth who wrote without thinking. That he did this is evidenced by the fact that he never remembered that he had an "arch traitor" in his own family. The father of President Roosevelt's mother was Admiral Bulloch of the Confederate navy. Prior to the breaking out of the war he was an officer in the navy of the United States.

Of course he took an oath to sustain and support the constitution of the United States. Therefore, when he entered the Confederate navy he swore himself. He was untrue to his oath as an officer of the navy, just as Jefferson Davis was untrue to his oath as a senator of the United States. Mr. Roosevelt cannot make an "arch traitor" out of the one without making an "arch traitor" out of the other. Yet he said, when he visited the home of his mother in Georgia last year, that Admiral Bulloch was the most complete incarnation he had met in real life of Thackeray's Colonel Newcomb.

Also the president in recent years has talked frequently and eloquently of the esteem in which he holds the men who wore the Confederate gray. Doubtless he has long been genuinely sorry for his intemperate criticism of Davis; but he will never be drawn into a public confession that it was an unjust criticism. He is not big enough for that.

Some of the members of the committee on privileges and elections claim they are unable to vote intelligently on the Smoot case. That's a startling confession, in view of the length of time the case has been before the committee and the public.

Some fuss is being made because an English army captain has captured in Africa an animal that nobody ever saw before. Still, plenty of people in this country have seen many curious animals—at the tail end of a lot of alleged enjoyment.

The douma will pay no attention to the snub administered to it by the czar. Perhaps the members of that organization feared that if they got fussy the czar might show them a few bayonets.

President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railway is coming straight home from France to tell the interstate commerce commission how little he knows about the grafting his subordinates have been doing.

We shudder at the thought of what Peet will do to our old friend Dr. S. E. Wishard for introducing that anti-Smoot resolution to the Presbyterian general assembly.

Comes now word that Wu Ting Fang has climbed up on the water wagon. We advise him strongly to wrap his queue around the seat.

President Roosevelt, it is understood, has no use for a man who keeps a diary. That is one of William E. Chandler's faults.

And dance with the University of Utah at Saltair tonight. Train at 8:15.

SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dye, 556 Palm avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter Florence to Horace Cummings, Jr., wedding to take place in early June.

Mrs. Rachel S. Miller entertained yesterday at the second of a series of luncheons given Thursday and Friday. The decorations used were white and green, carnations forming the table decorations and snowballs filling the rooms around. The guests were: Mrs. W. C. Hall, Mrs. Ainsley, Mrs. William Igleheart, Mrs. Thomas Kearns, Mrs. F. S. Bascom, Mrs. W. V. Rice, Mrs. W. P. Kiser, Mrs. Solomon Siegel, Mrs. Jay T. Harris, Mrs. D. H. Tarpey, Mrs. Robert C. Gemmill, Mrs. Russell Schuller, Mrs. J. J. Daly, Mrs. Ezra Thompson, Mrs. H. G. McMillan, Mrs. Henry P. Henderson, Mrs. Hal W. Brown, Mrs. Edwin Kimball, Mrs. Samuel Paul, Mrs. Thomas Marlon, Mrs. M. J. Cheesman, Mrs. W. H. McIntyre, Mrs. W. H. Dale, Mrs. Edward M. Allison, Mrs. Frank B. Stephens, Mrs. Franklin Pierce, Mrs. C. O. Whittemore and Mrs. J. F. Grant.

The dance at the University club last evening was enjoyed by a large number of the members of the club and their friends. The main dining room and the reception rooms were cleared for dancing, and an orchestra was stationed in the north end of the hall, furnishing a musical programme through the evening. A punch bowl was placed between the two rooms and the library was thrown open for the visitors. A supper was served in buffet style in the smaller dining room.

Miss Agatha Berkhoel entertained yesterday at a luncheon at the commercial club in honor of Miss Helen Bamberger and the members of her bridal party. The round table was laid in the private dining room and a mound of green from which arose sprays of bridal wreath falling over the cloth was in the center. At each place were small baskets of ferns and marigolds, and place cards of pen and ink sketches were used.

Miss Leta McMillan entertained yesterday at a small and informal luncheon for her guest, Miss Genevieve Clary of Great Falls. The table was decorated in green and white, a bridal wreath forming the centerpiece. Covers were laid for six.

Mrs. Balch, wife of C. J. Balch, chief clerk to General Manager R. E. Wells of the Salt Lake Route, who has been in the city visiting friends and for the purpose of meeting her sister, left yesterday for her home in Los Angeles.

A large supper and reception in honor of Rev. Benjamin Brewster of St. Mark's parish, and of the visiting clergy who will be here at that time, will be given on June 14 and 15 at the home of Bishop F. S. Spalding.

Cards are out announcing the wedding of William M. Swan and Hattie E. Dye, on Thursday, June 7.

A special meeting of all the standing committees of the Ladies' Literary club was held yesterday afternoon at the club house and chairman of the various committees were elected. Mrs. John Delano was made chairman of the entertainment committee, with as her associates, Mrs. J. H. Brown, Mrs. W. R. Hutchinson, Mrs. Fisher Harris, Mrs. R. A. McMillan, Mrs. Sheldon L. Butler, Mrs. Fred Hornung, Mrs. Glen Miller and Mrs. J. T. Treasure. The auditing committee consists of Mrs. M. J. Cheesman and Mrs. C. L. Rood. Mrs. T. G. Webber heads the finance committee, and with her are Mrs. Schell, Mrs. Fred Hornung, Mrs. Thomas Weir. The house will be in charge of Mrs. C. H. McMahon, while Mrs. C. I. Douglas and Mrs. J. F. Merrill will take care of the library.

Mrs. Nancy Brooks, who has spent the past year with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Marshall, will leave soon for Iowa to spend the summer with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Cannon will shortly be at home to their friends at 516 Second street.

Miss Mary Hoag will spend the next week with Mrs. P. A. Dix at 134 H street and later she will go to Ogden to visit friends.

Miss Helen Johnston of Chicago is in town on her way home from the coast and is the guest of Miss Grace Swanson.

Fred A. Hale, jr., has returned from Stanford and from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Hunter at Monterey.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hoag will leave the first of the week for Sheridan, Wyo., where Mr. Hoag goes into business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Marshall will be at home after June 1 at the Emery-Holmes.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Wertz reached home yesterday from San Francisco.
