MONEY RATE RAN UP TO 10 PER CENT

Prices for Stocks in Wall Street Went Off Rapidly in Consequence.

SOME RESISTANCE SHOWN

CLOSE IRREGULAR AND BELOW THE BEST.

New York, Nov. 21.—There was a good deal of uncertainty in the movement of the prices of stocks today, the varying fluctuations being mostly traceable to the changing course of the rate for call loans.

The general impression was one of resistance to pressure, and of underlying strength.

The action of the money market was puzzling. The rate of the two previous days was allowed to have an important influence in the recovery.

Foreign money markets were disturbed by the new demand for gold from Brazil, which is making inroads on the Bank of England.

London sentiment was quieted by reports of additional sums to be relinquished by the Bank of France for London.

The yielding of the call loan rate proved an effective argument for renewed strength in stocks, notwithstanding the obscurity about its cause.

There was a noticeable diversion of speculative attention to low priced stocks and a circulation of rumors to account for some of them, while in others specific explanations were lacking.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,114,000.

United States registered 23 declined 1/4 per cent on call.
