

COMMISSIONER CLARK IN OGDEN

Will Reach Salt Lake Today and the Coal Investigation Will Begin Tomorrow.

SCOPE OF INQUIRY IS GIVEN

CONGRESS MAY CORRECT THE EVILS.

(Special to The Herald.) Ogdén, Nov. 25.—E. E. Clark of the interstate commerce commission, on his way from Washington to Salt Lake to conduct the investigation of the coal carrying roads of the west, arrived in Ogdén early this morning. He will go to Salt Lake tomorrow afternoon, where the investigation opens Tuesday.

Mr. Clark said that he was to sit as a judge in the investigation and that the case would be worked up and presented to him by the government attorney, J. T. Marchand, and his assistant, E. E. Thomas, who are now in Salt Lake. In view of this fact, he did not venture to say how deep the investigations would go.

By Authority of Congress.

He stated that congress authorized the interstate commerce commission to look into this matter. First, to ascertain whether there is any monopoly of the country there existing a practical monopoly of the coal business; whether there was a combination or so-called trust. Second, whether the charges that the companies may have been properly acquired; whether there was occasion for congress to legislate for the protection of the public supply, and the manner in which the same is handled in getting to the consumers.

Purpose of Investigation.

He also said that the investigation was purely to correct any evils that might result from a curtailing of the supply or from unjust charges that might be made by the coal mining or coal carrying corporations, so far as it affected interstate traffic.

Mr. Clark further stated that the investigations were being held in all parts of the country. After concluding the investigation at Salt Lake, he will go to Pueblo in company with the government attorneys, where they will sit one week from Tuesday. The investigations in Salt Lake and Pueblo are expected to occupy one week each. A third meeting, probably lasting three days, will be held in Denver.

The commission will then return to Washington and prepare its report preliminary to a hearing. In providing for the investigation the commission was authorized to conduct the same between seasons of congress and should any matters be unearthed that would require immediate attention, they were to report direct to the president.

The Coal Shortage.

In speaking of the coal shortage existing in this section of country, he attributed it to one cause, and that was the weather. "If all of the consumers wait until cold weather is here before laying in a winter supply, they will all be served at one time. If the coal dealers wait until cold weather is here before they lay in their stock, they will all be served at the same time. If the mines and railroads wait until cold weather gets here before mining and hauling the coal, they cannot expect to supply the dealers all at the same time."

Eastern Method.

He said that the railroads were in better position to handle the product from the mines in summer, and that the coal could be mined cheaply during the summer months. In his opinion the practice in vogue in the anthracite regions should prevail here. He stated that the price of coal is set the first of each month, and advances 10 cents a ton per month thereafter, making it an object for the consumers to lay in their supply during the spring and summer. He could see no plausible reason why a coal shortage should exist in this portion of the United States. In connection with the reported shortage of cars, Mr. Clark said that where it affected interstate business, such as the handling of Wyoming coal in Utah, a complaint on the matter made to the commission would result in an investigation by that body of the matter, and this nature would be taken up at the investigation in Salt Lake.

Railroad Rate Law.

Commissioner Clark referred to the railroad rate law recently enacted, which he said was purely optional with the railroad companies whether or not they granted special rates to theatrical companies. He said, however, that the commission insisted that where this practice was followed, any party of an equal number was entitled to the same consideration. He maintained that if the commission's decision was reversed, the decision of the supreme court of the United States also would have to be reversed.

CALLS RELIGION

A PUNY THING

which is as much a part of us as our bodies are, as our moral nature is; and that explains why our so-called religion today, of whatever name, is such a puny thing, why it has no rich red blood in it, why it has been banished steadily to the remote background of our life. "An adequate religion will vitally touch and concern every part of a man's life, every interest that claims his thought, every function or expression of his nature. It will, indeed, arise from the awakened sense that we are all, by a law of our being, social creatures, fractions of a solid whole, members one of another. An adequate religion is the religion of society, sensitive, socially inspired, socially just, socially awakened men and women.

What of Philadelphia?

"There is no city in this country which has a larger proportion of churches or a larger percentage of professedly religious people than Philadelphia—no city where the claims of religion as voiced by the churches are more widely allowed, none where so-called infidelity or atheism is less in evidence. But a political investigation, initiated not at all by the church nor in the name of religion, has disclosed the fact that for long-continued political corruption, for complacent robbing and graft, for rotten civic politics, Philadelphia bears off the palm from every known competitor. Not one-half—not one-tenth—of that investigation—there was here in that investigation—there was not enough moral virtue even in the reform forces to plunge the probe to the very bottom of its noisome sore—

HOW DEBILITY SHOWS

And Why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are a Specific for Dangerous Physical Declines.

The symptoms of general debility vary according to the cause but weakness is always present, a tendency to perspire and fatigue easily, ringing in the ears, sometimes black spots passing before the eyes, weak back, vertigo, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking, and unrefreshing sleep. The cause of the trouble may be some drain on the system or it may be mental or physical overwork, sometimes insufficient nutrition due to digestive disturbance. In the latter case there is generally a loss of appetite and a coated tongue as well as general languor and debility.

Miss Lula M. Metzger, a stenographer, living at 71 Mill street, Watertown, N. Y., suffered for over a year from general debility. "It was caused by overstudy," she says, "and I had no ambition, didn't want to go anywhere, my food didn't taste good, I was run down, lifeless and listless. I took medicines but they failed to do me any good. Finally friends recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and she got some for me. I took them for some time and was entirely cured and have had no return of the trouble."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure debility because they actually make new, red, rich blood, and as the blood carries nourishment to all the organs and tissues of the body, nerves as well as muscles, the new blood stimulates the organs to do the work that nature expects of them and normal health follows. Not only is this treatment sufficient to cure debility but many severe nervous disorders as well.

The pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Send for free diet book.

and yet, the existence of that corruption has been known for years and years by its smug church members. And the custom of counting a hundred thousand votes having no existence has been followed and approved by men who attend and support Christian churches—and I dare to say that few of them ever heard a word from those pulpits which could possibly disturb their calloused consciences.

Declares Religion Impotent.

"In other words, the religion of Philadelphia—of the people of that city—of its churches and ministers—has been, up to date, as impotent to affect, much less correct, the moral rotteness of its pulpits or its business, as its drinking water, taken from the unspeakably filthy Schuylkill river, has failed to check the ravages of Philadelphia's periodic plague—typhoid fever. It was in that city, you remember, that the ministers came together a few years ago and prayed the Almighty to arrest the typhoid epidemic then claiming its terrible toll there, while at the same time the people continued to get their drinking water from the same stream into which not only the sewers of that city but the sewers of several others, empty.

"What is true of Philadelphia is true of this city and every other. Religion is as impotent here as it is there, as futile for the very ends which it is designed to serve as the Spanish warships in the battle of Manila were to make good as an effective navy.

Broad Scope Demanded.

"An adequate religion will be a social religion. A company of people who are religious simply as separate units, each one for himself, never did and never can constitute a righteous community or city or state, and no number of such people can make up a righteous nation. Only a body of men and women who frankly and openly and effectively make politics and business essential functions of religion, who view the city and state and nation as the organs of religion in a sense in which no church nor all churches together can be, as the means by which God's will is to be done and his kingdom is to come—may, as the means by which, in a supreme sense, the divine being is to be disclosed to the minds of the least and humblest—only that kind of people have an adequate religion, a religion which has the remotest chance to make good.

"Said William Ellery Channing seventy-five years ago in a sermon on Spiritual Presence, which ought to be a part of the education of every minister: 'Tell me not of the extent of our territory. I care not how great it is, if it multiply degenerate men. Speak not to me of our liberty. I ask, does it bear generous fruit? Does it breed in many virtue above the subjects of a despotism? Better be one of a poor people, plain in manners, revering God and respecting themselves, than belong to a rich country which knows no lighter good than riches.' Those words of Channing are far more opportune for our time than they were for his.

Peril of Prosperity.

"There is not a thoughtful man in America today who does not know that the very prosperity of which we boast and which has become our national religion constitutes the gravest moral and spiritual peril to which we are exposed. The more we prosper, the more we are tempted to the materialism of our soul, so that care for no church and no religion because no church and no religion is bearing witness that it cares for them, who hold their lives cheaply because our whole industrial system knows nothing so cheap as human life, shall have the gospel preached to them and preached, too, by the most persuasive and convincing agencies; the manners and customs, the policies and opportunities, the whole material environment in which they live—if ever such a gospel was imperative, that time is now. And unless the church gets to its job, unless the church furnishes this great materialism of ours with a soul, in the very process of that failure it will rot, and spiritual emancipation and freedom will come from another source."
