

EMPEROR PEPS REICHSSTAG
Brilliant Scene in the Great White Hall of the Palace of the Hohenzollern.
SPEECH FROM THE THRONE
CHEERS WHEN THE CEREMONY WAS CONCLUDED.

Berlin, Feb. 18.—Emperor William opened the Reichstag today amid a gorgeous stage setting in the great white hall of the palace, identified for centuries in the history of Hohenzollern. Members of the Reichstag, in military uniforms, assembled on the floor of the hall, but there was not a soldier among them, for, being anti-militarists and republicans, they refused to countenance the emperor's presence.

First Attended Services.
The emperor attended divine service in the private chapel of the palace at 10:30 p. m., and listened to a sermon by Court preacher Faber. After this the emperor entered the picture gallery adjoining the white hall to the ministers of state, generals, admirals and the great officers of state, who had grouped themselves upon the right of the throne, while upon the left were the members of the federal council, representing all the states of the empire, the imperial chancellor, Prince von Buelow, standing a pace in advance of the emperor.

The imperial procession entered from the picture gallery, headed by detachments of the palace guard. They came to the imperial eagle and wearing wide-plumed hats, they entered the picture gallery with the imperial seal. Ministers of War von Elnem, with the unadorned uniform of state, Field Marshal von Hahnke, with the imperial crown, and Generals Lowenfeld and Hefner, carrying the imperial standard. Then came the emperor, in the uniform of the gendarme corps, with the insignia of a field marshal, his golden helmet, mounted by a silver eagle, topped by a small golden crown.

The members of the Reichstag cheered as the emperor and empress entered the hall. Following his majesty was the Crown Prince Frederick William, the other imperial princes and the princes of the sovereign houses of Germany, forming a line upon the emperor's right as he took up his position on the lowest step of the throne. The imperial chancellor then advanced, handed the emperor's speech from the throne, and, holding it in his gauntleted hand, and with his helmet on his head, read the speech in a clear, bold voice.

Referring to the foreign relations of Germany and to international peace, he said: "The general political situation entitles us to the assurance that peace will continue to be preserved by our government, maintains with our allies of old, heartfelt relations, and with the other powers good and friendly relations."

The treaty with Denmark, signed Jan. 2, which was designed to remove disturbing elements by regarding the status of children in choosing their nationality, will strengthen the friendly relations with our northern neighbors.

Hague Conference.
In regard to the approaching conference at The Hague, the emperor said: "Following the suggestion of the United States and the proposals of Russia, I have accepted an invitation to attend the conference at The Hague, which, in view of the results of the first Hague conference, will be a most important step toward the laws among nations for the good of humanity and of peace."

Alluding to the results of the recent elections to the Reichstag, the emperor said: "The German people were called upon to decide a difference of opinion between the federated governments and the former Reichstag, and demonstrated their resolve to safeguard the people and property of the nation by putting aside all narrow party spirit. The strong national feeling which our citizens feel, effectively protect the fatherland in the future, just as I am willing to observe conscientiously all my exceptional rights and privileges, and I confident that the new Reichstag, composed of intelligent men ready to act, will acknowledge that it is its highest duty to preserve and strengthen our position among civilized nations."

Budget Matters.
Continuing the speech announced the approaching of various government matters in parliament, among them being the supplementary budget for the expenses in German Southwest Africa, upon which the Reichstag was resolved, and measures proposed for the continued of the projected railroad from Helmsdorf to Kubitz, the development of other lines of communication with the colonies, the establishment of the colonial ministry, and the indemnification of the farmers of German Southwest Africa who have sustained losses as a result of the rebellion in that colony.

The emperor said he hoped a considerable reduction of the number of troops in German Southwest Africa would soon be possible, as there were only a few rebels in the field.

Referring again to the elections, his majesty stated that the healthy spirit in Germany and country had asserted itself and had checked the socialistic movement subservient of the state and society. It was the purpose of the federated governments to continue the social work in the light that had animated his majesty's illustrious grandfather.

"And," he concluded, "may the national sentiment and readiness to act which created the Reichstag, rule its labors to the welfare of Germany."

As the emperor ceased speaking and knipped down from the dais, the oldest member of the Reichstag, King's privilege, custom, proposed three cheers for his majesty, which were still resounding as the emperor left the hall.

(Special to The Herald.)

Farmington, Feb. 19.—At a meeting of the board of county commissioners yesterday the written resignation of Commissioner James H. MILLARD DISTRICT COURT.

Damage Case of Culler vs. San Pedro Railroad Being Heard by Judge Greenwood.

Fillmore, Feb. 18.—Court has been in session here for the past ten days during which time George Peterson was convicted for an offense against a young girl at Scripps. The defendant has given notice of an appeal.

After a long and tedious trial of the case of the State against Axel M. Thompson, the jury was unable to agree. Thompson was charged with having committed adultery with an employee of his store. He was tried once and acquitted and a new trial was granted, which has just been finished, with the above result.

The case of W. L. Culler against the San Pedro Railroad company is now in progress of trial. The plaintiff is suing for $500 damages for the alleged killing of his two children at Oasle some two years ago, when it is alleged the conductor's train struck with such violence by the engineer's application of the air brakes that it threw a can of scalding water over the children, which resulted in their death. There are a large number of expert witnesses on air brakes in attendance, and the case is likely to be a long drawn out affair.

Postmasters Clyde of Provo, Lawrence of Spanish Fork and Theodore of Pleasant Grove appeared before the board of county commissioners today as a committee from the Utah County Postmasters' association, asking that the county assume responsibility for the maintenance and control of the roads over which the rural free delivery system is operated, there being difficulties in the way of keeping the roads in proper condition with no responsible authority to whom complaint might be made, and with the roads in condition there is danger of the service being discontinued. In fact, it was stated that the board of county commissioners had been asked to establish rural routes, but not accepted as county roads. There was some doubt in the minds of the commissioners as to whether the roads had been accepted by the county, but a resolution passed by the board in 1902, which was in the hands of a committee, was made the affair a grand success.

MAN DIES FROM EXPOSURE.

Body of Transient, Supposed to Be William Jefferson, Found in Field Near Farmington.

(Special to The Herald.)
Farmington, Feb. 19.—The dead body of a man about 45 to 50 years of age, supposed to be that of William Jefferson of Los Angeles, Cal., was found late last evening on the outskirts of Farmington. The body was found about a mile north of the court house. The body was lying in an irrigation ditch in a brushy district, and was found by Richard Steed of Farmington while the latter was following some horses through the field. The condition of the remains indicates that the man has been dead for two or three weeks and possibly longer.

He stood in life about 5 feet 6 inches in height, rather above 120 pounds, had dark hair, slightly streaked with gray. He wore a short beard, somewhat sandy and partly gray. He was fairly well dressed and had a black coat and pants, a plaid coat and a rain coat or "slicker." He wore a heavy brown sweater with red stripes and a suit of red flannel underwear, which has the appearance of being home-made. On his feet were a pair of blue, cloth and hand-sewed shoes made by the Nelson company. A pair of steel-rimmed spectacles and a cornob pipe and a pouch of tobacco were found in his pockets. His lower teeth were filled with gold, two of them being gold capped. In his pocket were found a pair of white socks, a pair of white gloves, Los Angeles, Cal., dated Dec. 4, 1906, and addressed to William Jefferson. This was signed by Ida Jefferson, and the writer commences the letter "Dear father. She says she is living with her sister and brother-in-law; thinks her father for money he has asked at interest and suggests that he should not send all that he makes to her, but should think more of himself, especially when he is out of employment, which she estimates was when the letter was written. She tells her father that she is thinking of making a trip to the city of Los Angeles, winter with a dear lady friend there, whose name and address, however, she does not give."

The other letter was written by H. A. Knauft of Duette, Ida., and dated Dec. 22, 1906, and is addressed to A. U. Stephens of Ely, Nev. The letter is of the nature of a recommendation and introduction of William Jeffers, to whom the writer is introducing an evening trader and mill hand and a man of good character and habits.

The only other things found on the person of the deceased that give a clue to his travels are two baggage checks for parcels forwarded from Park City to Salt Lake City. The stamps on the unfortunate man was walking toward Salt Lake and that in the storms of a few weeks ago he had come from the main road onto what is known as Haight's bench, north of town, and there died of exposure.

Immediately after the body was found notified. The body was brought to the home of the deceased and held tomorrow. In the meantime, Sheriff James Ware, Jr., has telegraphed to Los Angeles for information as to relatives of the deceased, but no reply has as yet been received.
