St. Mark's Hospital Association Appreciates Public Support

Three weeks ago St. Mark's Hospital association made an appeal through the columns of this paper to the people of Salt Lake that they help take care of the needy sick of the city by buying tickets to the charity ball. The hearty response that this appeal met has been so gratifying to the members of the association that they wish to express their appreciation to the people of this city, who, almost without exception, received them with such sympathy and courtesy that to sell the tickets became a pleasure rather than a task.

One man said: "I gave a hundred dollars last year, and can only afford to give thirty this year, but you are doing a work that ought to be done, and I hope I can give you three hundred next year." This was the spirit that was generally manifested, and the result was that, in spite of troubled banks and falling stocks, more than $1,500 have been added to the fund which is to be spent for the sick and unfortunate during the winter.

The promise was made that those who bought tickets would have a double income from their investment—first, a delightful evening for themselves and friends; and, secondly, the consciousness that they had given help to those who most needed it. That the first part of the promise has been well fulfilled no one who was at the charity ball last Tuesday evening can doubt. To fulfill the second part during the coming year will now be the aim of the women who have this money in charge; and they hope to do it so well that, when next October comes, banks and stocks permitting, all the investors in the charity fund of this year may think it worth while to double the investment.

A hearty thank you from the women of the hospital association to the good people of Salt Lake.

CINCHONISM

THE SCIENTIFIC NAME FOR QUININE POISONING.

Nearly every other person you meet is affected more or less with cinchonism.

Brown floating specks before the eyes, deafness, ringing in the ears, periodical headaches, dizziness, tendency to biliousness—these are some of the symptoms of quinine poisoning. For years people have taken quinine or some of its compounds, thinking it would cure a cold, but it won't. Don't take it any more—it will do you harm. Just how people get this notion into their heads it is hard to fathom, except probably from the fact that colds are usually ushered in with a chilly sensation, the chilly sensation suggesting malaria, and malaria suggesting quinine.

Malaria is about the only disease quinine is ever good for, and the United States Dispensary says: "Quinine was used to poison the blood against malaria; don't take it any more—it won't cure your cold, but will produce cinchonism."

This is the season of colds; if you get one try the new scientific remedy—Bromo-Lax, the safe remedy. It will cure your cold in a few hours. It won't make your head ache; it will clear the head. It contains no quinine or injurious quinine compounds; it contains mild and soothing laxative to help work off the cold. All druggists recommend it and sell it. See that the label reads Bromo-Lax (Contains no Quinine).
