

SALT LAKE ROUTE SPENDS A COOL MILLION ON MEADOW VALLEY WASH IMPROVEMENTS

The upper left hand picture shows the work of driving piles for the concrete abutments of the steel and concrete trestlework in the lowlands.

Palisades at Elgin, Nev., where hundreds of tons of rock were removed to provide a secure roadbed, a good illustration of the extent of the improvements, shown in the upper right hand photograph.

The picture at the right shows a concrete mixer at work making material for the concrete abutments of a new steel truss bridge.

The set of six numbered pictures are described as follows:

1. Providing a new course for the stream that is the outlet for the melting mountain snows. This stream is dry in summer, but a swift torrent in early spring.
2. Steam shovel at work cutting off the point of a mountain in order that the track can be moved away from the dangerous stream.
3. Another mountain being cut in two to make a more direct waterway for the spring floods.
4. The riprapping on the side of the new channel. The stones are fitted so closely together that the work might almost be looked upon as masonry.
5. A portion of the old bed of the stream being straightened to make less likely the chances for an overflow.
6. More riprapping at a dangerous point.

Within another month the improvements on the Salt Lake route in the Meadow Valley wash country will have been completed. A thousand men are at work on the eighty miles of track between St. George and Minto, Nev., putting the finishing touches on the great undertaking. When they have completed their work the track of the Salt Lake route through the treacherous country will be secure from any floods that can possibly come rushing down from the mountains.

The experience of the Salt Lake route a year ago necessitated the rebuilding of the greater portion of the track through this territory, the establishment of a higher grade for the track and a better channel to care for the floodwater. To make these improvements cost the company over a million dollars. For the expenditure of this amount the owners of the railroad have at least the satisfaction of knowing that the work was well done and that the roadbed is absolutely secure from storms and floods.

The magnitude of the undertaking to conquer natural difficulties with engineering skill, is hard to appreciate. In some places the track was moved from the old roadbed up the mountains hundreds of feet. To do this it was in several places necessary to cut off great points of the mountains to secure a permanent, solid roadbed.

Another feat accomplished by the engineers was the changing of the course of a stream which in the springtime is a surging torrent. This stream heretofore has wound in and out, crossing the tracks at several places. In the spring of 1907 the melting snows of the mountains swelled this stream until it overflowed, the rushing waters flooding the tracks, undermined the embankments and took out the culverts and bridges.

To remedy this difficulty the engineers undertook to confine the stream in a new channel on one side of the track. While the improvements were being made the bed of the stream was dry, but it is now beginning to refill, although there was not enough snow last winter to cause any serious flood situation this year. With the rocks hewed out of the sides of the mountains the riprapping for the new channel was made. The rocks were laid at an angle with the flat side outermost, so that a smooth surface would be exposed to the water, rendering less probable the washing out of these rocks by the action of the water. The chinks between the larger rocks are filled with smaller stones, so that the riprapping resembles solid masonry work.

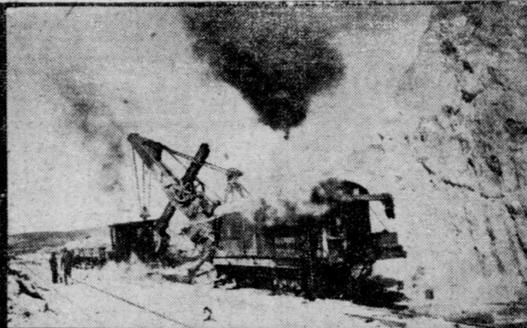

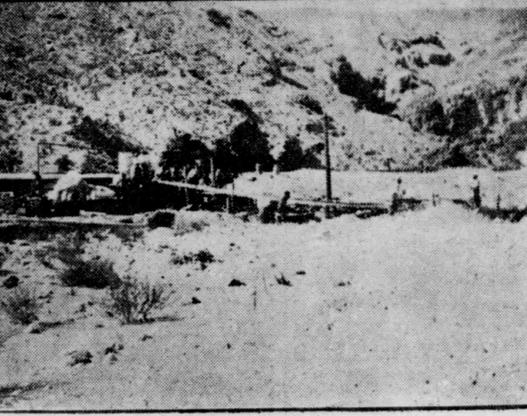

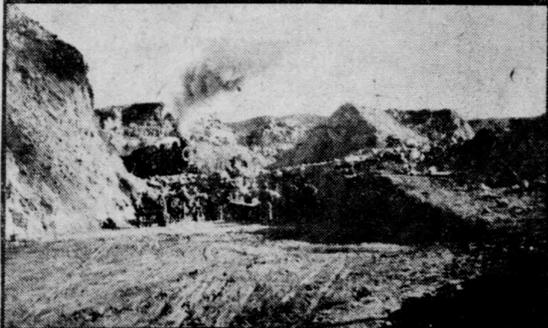

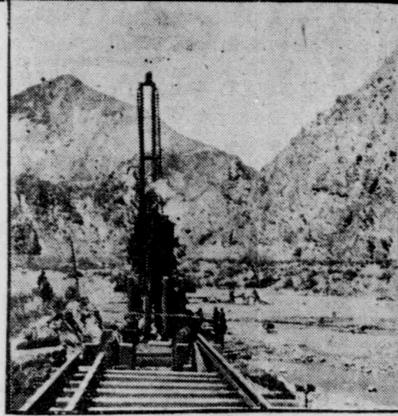

All of the wooden trestles and bridges in the flood district have been replaced with steel and concrete structures, large enough to care for all of the flood water that may come down from the mountains. The floods of last spring were the greatest since white man inhabited the district, and the probability is that it will be many years before a similar flood recurs. To be on the safe side, however, the engineers have so constructed the improvements that the water can rise two feet higher than it did a year ago without injuring the tracks.

DIVES ALL CLOSED.

South Bend, Ind., March 28.—Forced to action by a committee of fifty prominent citizens, the common council last night ordered all questionable resorts, including gambling houses and alley saloons, immediately closed. During the last year South Bend has been the only wide open city in Indiana.

EPIDEMIC IS NOT ABATED

Health Department Seems Unable to Curb Spread of Scarlet Fever in Salt Lake.

The scarlet fever epidemic is still unabated, according to the weekly report of the department of health. The report shows that 17 cases of that disease were reported last week, as against 16 for the week before and the same number for the week before that. There were also 6 cases of diphtheria, 1 case of smallpox, 1 case of meningitis, 1 of erysipelas and 1 of tuberculosis reported. The births numbered 38 and the deaths 25. Of the former 20 were males and 18 females and of the latter 17 were males and 8 were females.

LOWER COURT UPHELD.

Decision of Supreme Court Invalids Ancient Transaction.

The supreme court yesterday handed down an opinion in the case of John Lawson, appellant, against R. B. Tripp, in which the action of the lower court is sustained. In 1889 it appears from the records E. A. Tripp, a brother of the respondent, contracted to sell to John A. Groesbeck, for $10,000, certain property here belonging to R. B. Tripp. This contract was later approved by R. B. Tripp, who was at the time living in South Dakota. In January, 1900, Groesbeck assigned the contract to Lawson, who sued for breach of contract in 1902. Tripp

DRINKS FOR TEN YEARS

Wife Says That Husband Has Neglected Her for Long Period and Recites Acts of Cruelty.

Alleging that her husband, Daniel Herbert Lloyd, has been a habitual drunkard for the past ten years, has been cruel to her and failed to support her for that period, Sussannah Elizabeth Lloyd yesterday brought suit for divorce in the district court. The Lloyds were married in the parish of St. Mary, Newington, County of Surrey, London, England, Dec. 26, 1888. They have six minor children, of which the wife asks the custody. A curious allegation in the complaint is that the wife when she was married supposed that her husband's name was Danford instead of Daniel and that he married her under that name. The complaint cites a number of instances of alleged cruelty and the court is asked to restrain the husband from coming to the plaintiff's home or in any way molesting her.

DR. FEIST IN LUCK.

Tennessee Supreme Court Reverses the Verdict of Murder.

Nashville, Tenn., March 28.—The supreme court today reversed the lower court in the case of Dr. J. Herman Feist, charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosa Mangrum. The lower court found Feist guilty of murder in the first degree, and sentenced him to be hanged. Mrs. Mangrum disappeared from her home in this city on the 14th of December, 1906, and her body was found floating in the Ohio river near Cairo, forty days later. Dr. Feist was convicted on circumstantial evidence in one of the most bitterly contested trials ever held in this state.

BOY SLANDERED GIRL.

George Morgan, a youth of 15, was before the juvenile court yesterday on the charge of making slanderous remarks concerning a little girl. The boy said that he had only repeated what others had told him and himself did not believe the accusations were true. He was severely reprimanded by Judge Gowans and made a ward of the court.

DIABOLICAL DEED OF NEW ORLEANS ROBBER

New Orleans, La., March 28.—Another murderous attack by a robber was revealed here last night when Otto Beigelsack found his bride stretched unconscious on the floor of their home, a pair of $500 diamond earrings missing and the house ransacked.

When she regained consciousness, Mrs. Beigelsack said she had returned home late in the afternoon and had been attacked by a man she found there. A handkerchief saturated with a red liquid was stuffed in her mouth when she was found by her husband.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed? Take, for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensary says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensary as a tonic.

CEDRON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensary says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COPAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensary as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes.

Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

Our Peruna Tablet Is Peruna With Fluid Removed.

These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Scudder.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis (catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth), follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classifies hydrastis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COPAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes).

BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUBEE, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the tonicity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves hoarseness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostaticorrhea, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collinsonia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SCUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy.

This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate this claim by ample quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.
