THE HEARST CHARGES.

Of course it was to be expected that Hearst would endeavor to make the Democratic party equally guilty with the Republican machine in the acceptance of Standard Oil favors, but we fancy the transparency of such an attempt is manifest to all. Frank Monnett, former attorney general of Ohio, who prosecuted the state case against the Standard Oil combination, is supporting Mr. Bryan, while the Rockefeller, Rogers, Archbold and the rest are warm advocates of the election of Mr. Taft. The utter falsity of Hearst's prelude to his attack upon Senator Foraker makes it ridiculous.

The political affiliations of the Standard Oil company have always been notoriously Republican, and at the present time Senator Aldrich, who is busy just now figuring out a financial scheme for the country, is chief henchman and spokesman at the national capital. Senator Foraker, allowing that he received the $25,000, is only second in command. But both are Republican leaders, high up in the councils of their party.

Up in Montana they say that Senator Dixon, who appears to be cutting a wide swath as chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Republican national committee, "stinks of kerosene," by which they mean that the Amalgamated Copper company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil, forced his election. And there are others, Taft shooters, all of them, whose Standard Oil affiliations could easily be traced. The malicious and mendacious attempt of Hearst to injure the chances of Mr. Bryan by including the Democracy in his indictment only weakens the force of his attack upon the Republicans, and cannot possibly injure the Nebraskan.

As to the letters written by John D. Archbold to Senator Foraker, the latter acknowledges their authenticity and pleads that while he had been an attorney in the employ of the Standard Oil company, that connection ended before his first term in the senate expired and, of course, he was paid well for his services. His connection with the company lasted, however, through his two terms as governor, for which he was doubtless also well paid.

It is unfortunate for Mr. Taft that the expose should follow so soon upon the heels of the reconciliation of the Republican candidate for president and the senator. It is doubly unfortunate for Mr. Taft that he should have the ardent support of the Rockefeller at this particular time.

A Taft celebration is to occur in Cincinnati Tuesday next, and Republican marching clubs from three states, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana, are expected to be present and whoop it up. Senator Foraker is announced as the chief speaker, next to the candidate himself, and it will be just as much of a Standard Oil ratification meeting as such gatherings in Ohio have been in the past. A fine opportunity will be offered, however, for Senator Foraker to more fully clear his skirts in the matter of the Archbold letters, and for Judge Taft to declare his independence of the steel trust, as well as the Standard Oil.

As to the manner in which Hearst secured these letters of Archbold to Foraker it would not be difficult to form an opinion, as every grade of rascality is represented in his employ. In the meantime the Republican party is deeper in the mire than ever.

EDUCATION OF MR. TAFT.

One of the most amusing features of the presidential campaign is the change of front on the part of Mr. Taft in the matter of guaranteeing bank deposits. Only a short time ago he denounced the Democratic program in unmeasured terms, saying among other things that it would put a premium upon reckless and dishonest banking, and would tax the honest bankers for the benefit of the dishonest ones.

In doctrine, Judge Taft immediately sees some good in it, and writes to the Republican candidate for governor of Kansas as follows: I agree with you that the action of the Republicans of Kansas as to an enabling act by which banks in Kansas may voluntarily guarantee each other's deposits, is very different from the proposition in the Democratic platform, enforcing a tax against all banks, by which they are in effect to guarantee the recklessness and dishonesty of every other bank.

You are certainly at liberty to say what I sincerely believe, that the proposition in the Kansas platform avoids altogether the objection which I urged in my speech of acceptance to the Democratic proposition for a national enforced insurance of deposits in all banks. This must be taken as evidence that Mr. Taft is not opposed to the bank guaranty in principle, but only to the compulsory guaranty. That is, while a compulsory guaranty would put a premium upon dishonest banking and tax the honest banker to make good the speculations of his dishonest brother, the voluntary guaranty plan in some occult manner would act differently. If Judge Taft can see any difference in the working out of the two plans, no one else can, and it is more than probable that after election he will "go the whole hog" and become a consistent advocate of the bank deposit guaranty. His present attitude shows the inherent weakness of the man.

MUTUAL DISGUST.

An incident which would shock the proprietors over here, recently occurred in a London railway restaurant. Two foreign ladies were lunching when an English clergyman entered and took a seat at the same table, and ordered a whisky and soda as a prelude to his lunch. The ladies expressed their opinion of the bibulous parson in French, which he did not understand, and so was spared much mortification.

Presently the waiter brought in two black coffees for the women. One of them pulled a cigarette case from her pocket and the two puffed contentedly. It was the dominie's turn to experience a revulsion of feeling, and he ordered the waiter to remove his whisky and soda and "fixin's" to another table, remarking how repulsive it was to him to see women smoking. The foreign ladies didn't understand English, so although the feeling of disgust was mutual, the parties concerned were in blissful ignorance of their opinion of each other.

In this country mighty few clergymen drink whisky, and still fewer would gulp down a drink in a public place, but on the other side of the ocean much liberty is allowed the cloth in the enjoyment of worldly things, and we suppose a little nip in the vestry before the Sunday sermon is no uncommon thing.

It is a matter for congratulation that the women folk of the United States are not addicted to cigarette smoking, though it is probable we should love 'em just the same if they were. All things considered, we feel constrained to back our parsons and women against the civilized world.

MUTES IN DIVORCE COURT.

A mute living at Newark, N. J., has sued his wife for divorce, claiming in his bill that she "finger-lashed" him until the air was blue with her language. In her answer the woman averred that her husband spelled off cruel and unkind messages, telling her among other interesting things that to hang for killing her would be a positive pleasure. "He was so angry his fingers fairly flew," says the document, in conclusion.

These family jars must have been interesting as well as exciting. Imagine a man working his fingers to call his wife names, when it would be so much easier to use the digits in the grasping of some handy article to throw at her, and the woman "finger-lashing" her lord and master when she could scratch to such good advantage.

Some people are so constituted that in addition to being deaf and dumb they should also be blind. A captain in the army recently on trial before a court-martial on a charge of conduct unbecoming as officer and a gentleman, which in this particular case means drunk and disorderly, pleaded that he was suffering from sunstroke. In order to affect the captain the sun must have been on duty at 12:30 in the morning, but the plea was unblushingly made. Whether the members of the court believed the officer or not, he deserves acquittal on account of his gall.

Former Congressman Lacey of Iowa has been selected to run against Cummins in the race for the dead Allison's stand. Lacey is a stand-patter from Standpatville, and lost his seat in congress two years ago on account of his extreme high tariff views. It should be easy for Cummins to beat Lacey.

Senator Foraker says he was an attorney for the Standard Oil, and was paid as such. The records do not show that he ever appeared in a case for the octopus in the Ohio courts. He was probably put on the payroll when he was elected governor.

How came Con Kohrs, the stalwart Montana Republican, to entertain any doubts regarding Taft? Perhaps that's a foolish question, in view of the fact that Republicans all over the country have doubts as to the fitness of the Roosevelt appointee.

The spectacle of the Democratic party killing the fatted calf in honor of John D. Rockefeller's joining the party will certainly provoke a smile. The Standard Oil people are for Taft, and Mr. Hearst knows it.

Wright's aeroplane came down faster than it went up. The air remains unconquered.

SOCIETY

A thoroughly delightful event was the dance last evening given by Colonel and Mrs. Edwin F. Holmes in honor of their guest, Miss Laura Bransford of San Francisco. The beautiful art gallery of their residence was cleared of everything save its art works, and here the young people kept up the merriment till early morning. An orchestra stationed on the dais in the cove at the west end furnished delightful music, and the brilliant lights shone over the entire house and grounds.

The verandas connecting the art gallery with the main house were enclosed from the cool night air, and within the library, convenient to the dancers, a punch bowl was placed. Late in the evening a buffet supper was served in the dining room, and here decorations of yellow flowers were used. Colonel and Mrs. Holmes received their guests with their niece in the drawing room, and here only American Beauty roses were used for decoration. Many noticeable gowns were seen among the dancers. That worn by the hostess was a French gown of cloth and trimmed with gold lace. It was made in Empire style and was elaborately trimmed with hand work. Miss Bransford's gown was a simple girlish dancin' frock of white net cut deep, and made in the young girl's dancing length. Harold Lamb, who was to have been one of the guests of honor, was prevented from attending by an accident to his car while he was on a hunting trip in Idaho.

Mrs. William P. Kiser was the hostess yesterday afternoon at a beautifully appointed bridge tea for Mrs. Samuel C. Adams and Mrs. Raymond S. Messon, the married daughters of the McMillan family, who are here visiting their parents. Seven tables of the game were played, and later fully as many more guests came in for tea. Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Louis Cates poured tea and coffee, and assisting them were the Misses Hess and Mildred McMillan, Eleanor and Margaret Stewart and Louise Sullivan. The tea table was bright with nasturtiums, a great mass of which formed the central decorations. A cloth of cluny lace covered the board, and the bright autumn tones were carried out in everything. The prize winners in the game were Mrs. Messon, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. W. D. Donohoe, Mrs. W. C. Alexander, Mrs. Ashby D. Cleveland, Mrs. W. H. Child and Miss Margaret Harris.

Mrs. John C. Daly entertained again yesterday at bridge at the Blatz home, when six tables were filled with the players. The hostess was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. William M. McCrea, Mrs. William M. Hunt and Miss Merce Berkeley. Prizes were won by Mrs. George Lambourne, Mrs. W. S. Henderson, Mrs. Vaughn Paul, Mrs. A. Fred Wey, Mrs. S. B. Tuttle and Mrs. Clarence Warnock.

Mrs. Andrew S. Rowan of Fort Douglas entertains this afternoon at the first of a series of teas, the affair today being in compliment to Miss Eva Madigan and only the young girls and the bachelor officers being invited.

Robert Chapman of Boston arrived last evening to be here for the Pabian home for the next few days. He will leave, accompanied by his sisters, the Misses Ruth and Beth Chapman, for home on Tuesday.

Mrs. Richard A. Keyes has issued invitations for a tea to be given next Thursday afternoon at her home to meet her guests, Miss Madigan, who is instead of the luncheon planned for the Saturday following at the Alta club.

Mrs. Frank W. Swindler will entertain at a bridge tea on Tuesday of next week.

Miss Dean Alder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Alder, has gone to Logan, where she will spend the winter in study.

Mrs. F. D. Bickford and her mother, Mrs. Ellen Elliott, entertained a few friends at a tea yesterday afternoon for Mrs. David Evans.

Miss Mary Wall leaves early in October to spend the winter in Mrs. Sommers' school in Washington.

Harold Stephens leaves on Tuesday to enter upon his senior year at Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel L. Track will entertain tonight at a dinner at their home for the Misses Chapman of Boston.

Mrs. A. E. Hochstetler entertains on Monday at a luncheon at the Alta club for Mrs. Ira O. Rhoades.

CLEVER PARAGRAPHS.

Uses One That Doesn't Run Dry. (Boston Globe.) Besieged for autographs by the Olympic athletes at Oyster Bay, the president wrote his name until his fountain pen ran dry. When it comes to writing messages he doesn't use his fountain pen.

Politics Has a Back Seat. (New York World.) It is a sign of the state of the presidential campaign when the names of the Giants, the Cubs and the Pirates create more popular interest than the speeches of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Taft.

About All From Him. (Pittsburg Gazette-Times.) Hisgen, the Independence party nominee for president, was kissed by twenty women the evening of his formal nomination. That'll be about all for him this campaign.

Seems to Be Easy for Rockefeller. (Louisville Courier-Journal.) William Rockefeller says that money is easy, and everyone knows that John D. has the world's largest fall of easy money for years and years.

Beginning to Disappear. (Chicago News.) It is time for Speaker Cannon to start a movement to conserve the nation's supply of stand-pat statesmen.

Bust He Just Can't Help It. (Baltimore Sun.) Mr. Roosevelt doesn't want to dictate. Hit Them Below the Armor Belt. (Birmingham Age-Herald.) The navy denounces Reuterthal while it prepares to put armor plate lower on warships.

A Song That Appeals to Him. (Atlanta Constitution.) Taft is trying his best to believe that it's "Maryland, My Maryland."

Starting the Fireworks. (Boston Herald.) Mr. Gompers' allegation that Mr. Debs' red transcendental train is to be paid for by predatory wealth is another hot brick hurled into the campaign. No doubt it will be reciprocated in kind.

Got It Direct From Teddy. (New York Post.) Why shouldn't Mr. Taft be an authority on things Irish, including Irish humor? Doesn't Mr. Roosevelt know all about the Irish Sagas?

The Voters "Need the Money." (Pittsburg Post.) That resolve by Taftites not to pay campaign workers must mean saving the funds for more direct effort.

THE RISE OF TWO BOYS. (Tit-Bits.) In the year 1733 the Russians and Turks, weary of war, commissioned two plenipotentiaries on the Russian side, Marshal General Keith, on the side of the Turks the grand vizier of the Sultan—to make peace. The two plenipotentiaries met and carried on protracted negotiations through interpreters.

When all was satisfactorily settled the plenipotentiaries rose to take formal leave of each other—the marshal making his bow with "adieu" in his hand and the grand vizier his salutation with his turban on his head. These ceremonies of leave-taking over, the grand vizier suddenly straightened himself and, to the marshal's utter amazement, managed up to him, gripped him affectionately by the hand, and in the very broadest Scotch, cried: "Dinna be surprised, man; I'm frae the same country as yourself. Weel I mind seeing you and your brither, when boys, passing by to the school at Kirkcaldy."

"Why, who-are you?" gasped the marshal, staggering back in his bewilderment.

"I'm grand vizier to the sultan of Turkey, but—my father was bellman o' Kirkcaldy!"

GALLSTONES AS MEDICINE. (Consulting Report.) Much interest having been aroused in the announcement that a good market existed for animal gallstones in Japan, Consul General Henry B. Miller has secured the following statement from a Yokohama firm handling this product: "Gallstones are much in favor in this country, it being commonly believed that they possess efficacious properties when used in the treatment of diseased children. They are classified on the market, to distinguish their origin, as Oriental and Occidental, the former being made up of the greater number of cracked stones, and the latter of uncracked stones. The minimum price for good marketable stock, and the lowest valuation at which the custom house officials here will pass the invoices, is 40 yen, or $20 gold, a pound. From this figure the price runs up according to quality."
