

OFFICIAL WORK IS COMPLETED

Irrigation Congress Chooses Its Leaders and Adopts Set of Resolutions.

SPECIAL PAPERS FOR TODAY SPOKANE IN THE LEAD FOR NEXT YEAR'S MEETING.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 2.—The sixteenth national irrigation congress in this city completed its work today with the adoption of the report of the committee on resolutions and the election of officers of the seventeenth congress.

The officers-elect are: President—George I. Barstow of Texas. Vice President—H. D. Loveland of San Francisco.

Second Vice President—L. D. O'Donnell of Montana. Secretary—E. A. Fowler of Arizona. Foreign Secretary—E. McQueen Gray of New Mexico.

Special papers remain to be read at tomorrow's session, but the only business of general interest remaining is the selection of the next meeting place.

It is conceded that Spokane holds the lead in the contest, and will probably be successful.

The report of the committee on resolutions was adopted without discussion at the morning session.

Criticism of Forest Service. After a long contest before the committee, the critics of the forestry service were satisfied with the following:

"Be it resolved, That it is the sense of this congress that such legislation should be had, in justice to the forest service and claimants to property rights within the national forests, as will provide for a review at the instance of any party affected, by a competent tribunal of controversies relating to homestead entries or forest control or regulation, arising from any action, regulation or ruling of the forestry office.

"That whenever large tracts of land suitable for agriculture and which are not naturally forest, and which are not intended to be made forest, and which are not necessary or proper for the preservation of the forests or the water sheds or water supplies for the purposes to which they have been devoted, lie within forest reserve boundary, such tracts should be restored to entry as public lands."

Another resolution bears upon the utilization of streams for the creation of electric power, and favors the removal of restrictions upon such use.

The resolution: "That the necessary rights of way and rights for construction of reservoirs and other uses of the public lands, for development of electric power, should be encouraged and aided in every possible way, and all such rights and uses should be granted and allowed upon equal terms with similar rights granted for the direct purposes of irrigation, such uses being public uses subject to the ruling of the state, should continue so long as the right to the beneficial water and the duty to supply the power continues under state laws. And no burdensome charges or discriminations should be enacted or imposed as a result of which such beneficial developments may be delayed and the investment of capital therein prevented and the cost increased to the consumer."

"That a census of the standing timber in the United States should be authorized by congress, and that the states should be urged to co-operation with the nation for the preservation and enlargement of our forest resources by adoption of uniform forest laws, and that forestry, irrigation, drainage, flood protection, water storage and river regulation and control for navigation and water power should be regarded as one great interrelated subject in all legislative and executive policies.

"That power made available by national irrigation works, when once applied by pumping or other duty connected with irrigation, should be regarded as appurtenant to the land, and we urge the enactment of laws to this end."

The resolutions give sweeping endorsement to the work of the reclamation service, the forest service and the geological survey, and urge on congress continued support and increased appropriations for all of these bureaus; urge the repeal of the timber and stone act "to the end that the accumulation of the public timber lands in the hands of a few great corporations may be arrested; urge the speedy creation of the southern Appalachian and White mountain national forests; ask congress for an adequate appropriation for the use of the hydrographic division of the geological survey to determine by experiment and measurement and observation the practical effects of grazing and lumbering on the supply of water for irrigation and on the erosion of the soil, and that such investigation extend over the entire watershed, both in and out of the national forests, and that such investigation be prosecuted simultaneously throughout all the states and territories of the arid and semi-arid west."

Against Free Sugar. A strong resolution against free sugar is included, also resolutions for the creation of immigration bureaus by the western states and territories; requesting co-operation with the national conservation commission, a conservation committee of the irrigation congress being authorized; urging that the Carey act be made applicable to the territories; endorsing the movement to hold a session of the congress in Washington in 1910, to be known as an international congress on irrigation, and asking appropriations from the state and the federal government for this congress; and authorizing the present congress to appoint a committee of five, to be known as the congressional committee, charged with the duty of organizing the recommendations of the organization on the congress.

A separate resolution was adopted providing for the election of a board of governors, consisting of the chairman and four other members of the executive committee and the president and congress, with full authority to act for the committee in all matters in which it has authority under the constitution, the aim being to secure a compact organization which will allow a continued activity between sessions of the congress.

A report of the special committee appointed at Sacramento, consisting of Gifford Pinchot, F. H. Newell, F. A. Bard of California, F. J. Kiesel of Utah and George I. Barstow of Texas, to investigate the feasibility of holding an international congress on irrigation, recommended the appointment of a committee of five to arrange for the holding of such a congress either in Washington or at the capital of one of the Latin-American republics within the next two or three years, the committee to report to the seventeenth congress.

Mr. Hearst was the donor of several handsome trophies to the industrial exposition, held in connection with the congress, and was given an ovation when he was introduced. Mr. Hearst said:

"My attention has not been directed to water so much lately as oil—Standard Oil—and I have no letters which refer to irrigation congresses."

This was his only reference to politics, the rest of the speech being devoted to a general discussion of irrigation and its benefits.

Mr. Hysgen was introduced and spoke for a few minutes of the work of the congress, making no reference to politics.
