J., was read by Mrs. Florence Kelly of New York City.

GOLDFIELD MAN IS CHOSEN

A. H. Howe Is Elected Director of Goldfield Consolidated at Boston Meeting.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.) Boston, Mass., Aug. 27.—Directors of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company, at the quarterly meeting in the office of Vice President J. D. Hubbard, elected A. H. Howe of Goldfield, Nev., a director to succeed Charles Hayden, of Hayden, Stone & Co., Boston, who tendered his resignation.

The board declared the customary quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share, payable Oct. 31 to stockholders of record Sept. 28.

Vice President Hubbard said no action has been taken concerning the throwing open of some of the company's undeveloped acreage to leasers, as it has been reported might be done. He said the company had no intention of leasing any more of its property, but that the purpose of the present management is to go on developing its own claims as rapidly as conservative methods will permit.

RULES THAT MAYOR IS ALWAYS ON DUTY

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 27.—Judge Byron Preston of Oskaloosa today handed down an opinion sustaining M. A. Henderson as mayor of Marengo and upholding the new Cosson law, passed by the last legislature, which provides that officials may be removed from office for neglecting their duties. Henderson attacked the statute as unconstitutional and said he had never been indicted on a charge of neglecting his duties. Preston ruled that a mayor is always on duty.

men's not paid. At this time the check had been given to the creditors and had been cashed—still the arguments were thick and fast in favor of not paying the bill.

From a patriotic standpoint, there are many in Salt Lake who are sorely deficient. I never in all my experience saw so many bills for services rendered. Everybody who walked across the street or blinked an eye for the encampment was on hand with a bill for "services rendered." It was the first time in my experience that such a state of affairs has existed.

"In the first place we never before paid a cent for a director of a living flag. The work was taken from a patriotic standpoint and carried through without charge. He was paid well for it. We had to pay a big price for music here. Never before have we had to pay the chairman of the music committee a cent. Here we paid Professor J. J. McClellan a good salary. Then there were other small and unimportant bills brought up which should cause those who presented them to turn pale with shame.

"A member of the women's committee did a few hours' work and failed absolutely to put that work through successfully. She presented a bill for $50, which, of course, was not paid. All of these works should have been done by those who undertook them from a patriotic standpoint, as in other encampment cities, and not for individual gain.

"Among the committeemen there were many peculiar and silly propositions brought up which completely astonished me. In one case, where certain articles were to be contracted for, a local company came in with a bid for $3,500. Another company had a bid for $1,500, exactly half of the other bid, and guaranteed the same class of goods. It took me and others a long time to convince the members of the committee that they should accept the lowest bid. That was something that I could not see through until I realized over it and made an investigation. I then found the reason was that two committeemen were big shareholders in the $3,500 bid company.

"Just such moves as these cost this encampment a great amount of unnecessary money. One of the deals which shows about how money was thrown away is in the matter of coats for free accommodations. I had made arrangements for the securing of 1,500 coats at 75 cents each from a local manufacturer. This would have cost $750. After making these arrangements former Governor Black came to me and stated that government coats could be secured free of charge.

"I told him that he was mistaken, as the same propositions had been brought up at other encampments, and it was learned that a special act of congress was necessary. Governor Black said immediately that the proposition would be brought before Smoot and the coats would be secured free of charge. He said he would write at once to the secretary of war and ask him for the coats. I said to him then, 'Governor, you write your letter and I'll write the answer which you will get.' The letter was written and I wrote an answer.

"When the reply came from the secretary it was substantially the same as the reply which I submitted to Black before he sent the letter. It was too late then for me to have the order filled by the local company and I told Black that it was up to him. He took the matter up with Senator Smoot and got a bill passed in the senate authorizing the loan of coats. Several thousand more than were needed were sent here, with a freight bill of $400 attached. They were left in the cars at the Denver & Rio Grande depot.

"Governor Black's idea that the number of coats needed was about 5,000, I told him that it was about 1,500. He seemed to be much wiser on the subject than I was. By the governor's intrusion into the bill, $250,000 of money might just as well have been rolled up and thrown into the fire.

"There were many other propositions of the same kind. Upon one occasion a member of the committee in a meeting was looking over the bills, and he picked up one of the ridiculous and unprofitable ones for $100 for 'services rendered.' Throwing the bill on the table in disgust, he exclaimed: 'That is the limit! I wonder what has become of the patriotism in Salt Lake.'

"Personally I liked most of the members of the executive committee, and have confidence in them as men. But I cannot quite see why I am banking my money on the business men and merchants could handle business in such a childish manner.

"I personally considered some of the things done in those meetings disgraceful for children, let alone business men, who are supposed to understand every phase of business and affairs. By those silly breaks in the meeting I figure that the encampment cost more than it should by considerable.

"Of technicalities and 'niggers in the woodpile' there were more than I have seen in any business meeting and encampment experience. And that it kept the fat, curly niggers at that. It kept them from driving me away.

"But the whole affair is over now. The bills are straightened out and the money paid. Maybe Salt Lake's business executive men will be better prepared another time to handle a convention or an encampment.

Sterrett's Relatives.

W. J. Halloran, president of the Commercial and Mercantile Association and chairman of the executive committee, said he was amazed at the statements attributed to Colonel Sterrett's relatives here, could not be verified, for the reason that the executive director left Salt Lake before the interview was published. "If the money is so freely quoted in that interview he has shown an amazing lack of ordinary decency and business courtesy. Moreover, he has shown a decided contempt for truth in his statements," said Mr. Halloran last night. "Every courtesy was extended Colonel Sterrett by the executive committee and by the citizens of Salt Lake. He was paid an exceedingly good salary and his relatives were paid $100 a month at salaries aggregating nearly $300 a month, and the business of the encampment was conducted on lines which he suggested throughout.

On the day of the opening of the encampment, Mayor Bransford and I called on the commander-in-chief, Henry M. Nevell, and asked him if there was anything that could be done to perfect plans for the encampment, or to add to the comfort and convenience of the visitors or to the success of the encampment. The commander-in-chief said there was no objection on his part to the plan. Salt Lake had lived up to the letter of its agreement, adding that he would be frank in criticism if there was anything wrong. We also took pains to call on past national commanders, asking if there was anything lacking in the provisions made for the encampment, and the reply was always that everything possible had been done and that the arrangements were perfect.

"If the executive director has been correctly quoted, the matter will be carried out to the bottom at the next meeting of the board of directors of the club," said Mr. Halloran.

Sterrett Well Paid.

Colonel Sterrett received a salary of $200 a month for ten months while in Salt Lake, and to this was added an expense appropriation of $9 a month and his entire expenses from his home in Ohio to Salt Lake and return. In addition to this, there was no protest when Colonel Sterrett engaged three of his nieces from the east as stenographers, paying each $12.50 a month. They were engaged on the statement of Colonel Sterrett that they were experts and experienced in encampment work and that their services were absolutely necessary.

The only woman who was paid for her services in committee work during the encampment was Mrs. L. H. Stocking, secretary of the women's citizens' committee. Mrs. Stocking did more actual work than all the other women, and all three of the stenographers in Colonel Sterrett's office, and she received $75 a month. Colonel Sterrett would not allow a stenographer for the women's committee until two days before the encampment opened, and all of the office work, including the listing of thousands of private accommodations, was done by Mrs. Stocking, while she attended to the numerous other duties of her office. Mrs. W. H. Jones, chairman of the committee, did excellent work, devoting her entire time for nearly three months to the office, and she refused any remuneration.

Former Governor George A. Black says the matter of providing coats for the veterans was the work of Colonel Sterrett, and other members of the committee say that in every important action taken the suggestions of the executive director were

COUNT ZEPPELIN IS A HERO IN BERLIN

Great Welcome Is Planned on the Arrival of Airship at Capital.

Berlin, Aug. 27.—Count Zeppelin occupies the minds of the population of Berlin tonight, and a welcome has been prepared for his coming tomorrow in his big airship, such as has never been equaled since Prince Bismarck's return from Versailles, after the coronation in 1871 of William I as emperor of Germany.

Early today the people were thrilled when it was announced that the Zeppelin III had departed from Friedrichshafen for Berlin, 450 miles. When the news came that a broken propeller and a defective motor had necessitated a landing at Ostheim, the faces of the people fell. When dispatches announced the rescension of the balloon, they greeted them with shouts of joy.

When the bulletins said the dirigible had been brought to land at Nurnmberg, 150 miles on its journey, for repairs, the disappointment was renewed. It was relieved when a telegram was received from Count Zeppelin saying that the airship probably would arrive at its destination on schedule time.

The revulsion of feeling in favor of Count Zeppelin, as compared with that of three or four years ago, is remarkable. Then he was regarded as a visionary, throwing the family fortune away for the sake of the airship. Now he is honored as a living German. It is generally reported that he will be created a prince by Emperor William.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Three men on a farm west of here were killed by lightning this afternoon.

A deluge of rain broke over this city today, flooding basements and doing other damage, and bringing a hot spell of seventy-two hours' duration.

For nearly half an hour the city was in darkness as deep as night.

HARRIMAN'S LIFE HANGS ON AN OPERATION TODAY

Very dangerously ill man. His walk down the gangplank of the Kaiser Wilhelm II on Monday was a feat of bravery unadmitted. His interview in a stifling railroad coach on the way to Arden was a bit of courage absolute.

A railroad man, a member of a commoner would have been on his back helpless. But Mr. Harriman—you can't quite figure Mr. Harriman. Little, frail, "aged" (you might, alas, call him that)—he almost simultaneously with the unloading of this freight came the word "Dr. Walter Crile of Cleveland is on his way here on a special train from Bretton Woods."

There has been every possible effort to dispel the gloom of the newspaper men and other waiters at the foot of the mountain which Mr. Harriman's new castle crowns. "Operating table?" asked one of the Harriman superintendents. "His, his, why that was only a cot for one of the servants." But the "servant's cot" was of white enamel, collapsible at either end and equipped with rubber tires.

"Oxygen?" asked another superintendent. "Why, those things are only the ammonia gas we use in the refrigerating plant every few days." Yet the ammonia gas was hurried to the top of the mountain in an automobile driven by a chauffeur who started off like George Robertson did in the last Vanderbilt cup race.

True, these are only opinions more or less, formed four miles away from the Harriman house. But no one can get near enough to it to learn certainities. At the picturesque old farmhouse on the mountain, E. H. Harriman, an unworldly man, used to receive all interviewers. The "new house," the far-famed million dollar castle, is tonight as inaccessible as the citadel of a feudal lord. No one can get within 200 feet of it. Guards armed with bludgeons form two circles about the place. By strategy the first citadel was penetrated tonight, but the second was impossible.

"A servant's cot and a couple of tanks of ammonia gas" all the guests have been taught to say. "Why bother about such things?" But the important articles were beyond all doubt tanks of oxygen, which is administered only in last extremities and on an operating table.
