LOCAL LIGHTWEIGHTS TO BOX AT OGDEN

The Sporting Authority of Salt Lake

PETE SULLIVAN AND BIRD LEG COLLINS SIGN FOR RETURN BOUT

Pete Sullivan and Bird Leg Collins were matched last night to box a return match of twenty rounds at Ogden February 11. Ever since the two met before the wool growers at Ogden and boxed the limit to a draw there has been a demand from the fans that the two meet again. The knockers of each man stood by their guns after as well as before the go and it looks as if each will have the same following for the next meeting.

ONCE STARTED, RISE WAS RAPID

Less than five years ago Ad Wolgast, who is anxious to meet Nelson in a battle for the lightweight championship, traveled from Cadillac to Grand Rapids, Mich., a distance of 100 miles or more, glad to be given the chance to battle in a preliminary for a purse of $5. He made the trip with a youngster by the name of Sheridan, who was touted so strong up in his country that he was given a chance to work in the semi-windup. Sheridan met with inglorious defeat and Wolgast made good, much to the surprise even of the lad's fellow-townsmen, who came down in great numbers in expectancy of seeing Sheridan win and Wolgast defeated.

In shows that followed Wolgast worked in preliminaries about once a month, putting in the time between times slugging back at Godfrey's summer theatre at Reed's lake, a suburban resort of Grand Rapids. He managed to eke out a livelihood. About this time his pugilistic promise struck the fancy of Ernest Markwald, a wealthy young Englishman, who was sojourning at that time in Grand Rapids, and the Britisher took him to Milwaukee.

The Cadillac product's advent in a Milwaukee ring was the beginning of a career as brilliant as can be boasted by any of the country's best fighters. He soon became a main box attraction, and is not likely to box in preliminaries for some time to come. When the youngsters first started boxing before audiences in Grand Rapids he was frail and absolutely failed to show promise any greater than a dozen or more preliminary fighters around the town at the time. But he took care of himself, watched fighters of class perform, and by studying their methods, developed into a boxer of fair skill. He grew heavier and stronger and developed a punch which was a winner. Wolgast's career goes to show that a boxer does not always show great promise in his early bouts, for he was about the most awkward lad one could imagine in his early efforts, failing to show either speed or punch. Shortly after his Milwaukee debut, Wolgast was taken under the managerial wing of Frank McKern, a well-known Milwaukee manager of boxers. His present manager, Tom Jones, took up with the Michigan actor after splitting with Billy Fawkes, handling the Kewanee man's fortunes for several years. Since then his rise has been rapid and the lad is a big money-maker for both himself and McKern's deposed manager.

She walked twenty-four miles and regards it only as a pleasant jaunt.

Mr. Bean was named by Manager W. P. Fowler for Karp and M. S. Battelle for Yokel and Harry Heagren, promoter of the bout. His selection will be well received by the fans, as they know him as competent for the job, which will be by no means an easy one.

RIVAL ROLLER SKATERS MEET AT AUDITORIUM

A feature that is certain to attract a great deal of attention among roller skating fans this week will be a two-mile match race on Wednesday evening at the Auditorium rink between Fenton Hardy and Lawrence Vance, two of the fastest skaters in the inter-mountain country. There has long been keen rivalry between Hardy and Vance, as each claims to be next to Willie Schatz, the inter-mountain champion. In the recent couple race Vance was one of the winners, and he believes he is speedier than Hardy. He issued a challenge to the latter, and it was promptly accepted. The skaters will start from opposite sides of the track and will race two miles, twenty-four laps and a half. The fastest contest of the season is looked for. The winner will be given a check against Schatz for the state title.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MEN TAKE FISHING TRIP

Chicago, Jan. 31.—President Ban B. Johnson of the American league, accompanied by President Charles A. Comiskey of the Chicago American league club, left last night for Arkansas, to go aboard the cruiser White Sox, which has been laid up in dry dock for several days. The magnates will devote the week to hunting and fishing along the White river and expect to be back in Chicago next Sunday. Now that Comiskey has disposed of his contracts for the building of the new South Side park, little remains to be done in the way of preliminary save the signing of players for the season. The training trip scheme is being engineered on the Pacific coast by Norris L. O'Neill, president of the Western league, who has been covering the territory west of the Rockies for several weeks, making dates for the local American leagues.

JEFF AND GOTCH BALK WHEN BERGER ARRESTED

Bellingham, Wash., Jan. 31.—Because he refused to admit members of the local police force to the Jeffries-Gotch show at the Bellingham theatre last night, Sam Berger, manager for James J. Jeffries, undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, was charged by a squad of eleven policemen, overpowered and carried away to the city jail, where he was compelled to put up $50 bail on a charge of interfering with officers in the discharge of their duties. Late last night the police returned the bail bond and notified Berger that the charge had been withdrawn. The trouble arose after Berger had refused admittance to several officers who desired to enter free of charge. Five policemen applied in a body and were refused admittance by the box office. They left the theatre, but informed Berger that he would hear from them again in the morning. When they returned, they applied at the door. Some of them were admitted, but finally Berger refused to let in any more of them unless they purchased tickets for the show. A little later eleven patrolmen appeared at the door and descended upon Berger in the form of a flying squad. The fight manager was overpowered in a twinkling and five policemen carried him struggling to jail. The others were station Berger deposited $50 to insure his appearance in police court on the charge of interference with an officer and was permitted to return to his post. Jeffries and Gotch heard of the disturbance and returned to the show until Berger was released. This caused a delay of an hour in starting the performance.

The audience became very restless and gave evidence of their disapproval of the act of the policemen by cheering Berger and booing the officers. After the show Berger was notified that the charge had been withdrawn and his money was returned to him. It was reported that he was doing upon orders from the chief of police, who is preparing to make a thorough investigation of the action of the patrolmen tomorrow.

LURED TO FOOTLIGHT—HARD FATE FOR JEFF

Here is what "Van," author of "Under the Brown Hat" sketches, says about the one big trip: "The Big Fellow's barnyard, in the form of a flying squad, they carry the hankroll to the safety deposit vault in Los Angeles, looks in on Partner Kipper to see how the fried live free luncheon is prospering. He has a few booby traps set and put him on the place where the stomach used to be. Jim will like for the hills—the best place for him. From all accounts 'Jeff's' strained athletes have had a hot time on the road. Some of the time they played two shows a day, with jumps in between. I remember hearing Jeff express his opinion of the road as a 'stiff' with the cats and sleeps on the private car and the shows in the tents and the town halls. Looking back on the say, I think that the alalfa garara Farmer Jeff opened his heart as follows: 'Billy Brady got a lot of money for me once—and a lot for himself, because we cut fifty and fifty—but he made me work harder for it than I ever worked in my life. I got a lot of money, but I was sleeping on a shelf that was three inches too short for me, eating those Pullman car eats and getting no sleep. I was never a little bit up-town—never again!'"

COLLEGE FIVES READY FOR HARD GAMES

The L. D. S. basketball five takes its first out-of-town trip this week in the intercollegiate series, when it goes to Logan. The B. Y. C. and also to be counted with, and neither game at Logan is looked upon as a "cinch." The five is working in good form, with the men at least off the sick list. The University of Utah five go to Provo Saturday for the big game with the B. Y. C. Koskely is still laid up with the injury to his knee, and it is doubtful if he shows his true form in the game Saturday.

Corbett's latest contribution to the literature of the Jeffries-Johnson championship fight is this, which he calls "a word picture of the coming contest": "Here is what will happen: The two big fellows meet in the center of the ring, shake hands and the bell sounds. Jeffries is there with his familiar crouch. The left is extended, with the right forming a barrier for his body. Johnson tries to jab with his left. Jeffries waves the blow off with his left. The big fellow gradually crowds the black man. "Does Johnson jump to either side to get out of harm's way? No. Being flat-
