THRILL after thrill, sharp, incisive debate, fierce, open struggles, surprises of strength here, displays of unexpected weakness there, repulses, rallies, counter-attacks, and through all a sentiment of courage, a certainty of triumph and a wild, untamed, unconfined, rollicking, joyous note of enthusiasm—this was the Republican county convention, which was held at the Salt Lake theatre yesterday.

From 11 o'clock yesterday morning until an early hour this morning, an army of more than 500 delegates struggled for the supremacy and success of their candidates, and out of that struggle came a ticket that will be elected in this county on November 8.

The dominant note of the convention was kindness, which spread like contagion from the platform, but now and then in the fierce heat of a struggle for a nomination, friends of candidates became overzealous, and an itinerant personal aspersion floated over the heads of the delegates.

It was a bully convention, and the man who says there was no limit to the freedom of expression, no end to the divergence of views, no bounds to the angles of competition—that man did not attend the convention. For through the long session there were struggles with flashes of color, moments of highest excitement, and when the legislative ticket was named early this morning, there was a feeling of general satisfaction—and determination to elect the ticket that had been nominated.

A BULLY CONVENTION ALL THE TIME.

No fleeting moment got by without its incident. When Chairman Fred C. Loofbourou delivered his address in the morning, the convention was delighted. When the formalities of a convention were brushed aside and the platform was read by Harry S. Joseph, chairman of the committee, the "cows were out" and the fun began.

Parley P. Christensen's tattered amendment relating to the direct primary, bearing the scars of the state convention at Ogden, was again introduced, but it was the sense of the convention that such matters were state and not local in their scope and should have been dealt with by the state platform.

The vote against this amendment was not overwhelming, and the healthy support of the amendment gave an idea of the fun that was to follow.

Later, when George M. Cannon introduced his "public utilities" plank, the convention was in a uproar, and the debate brought forth a flow of oratory that put many a delegate on record. This plank was added to the platform by a very narrow margin.

CONTESTS FOR NOMINATIONS ARE HOT.

The county commission, which brought out five candidates, was the first fight of the convention. Oscar W. Carlson, backed by the solid county delegation, won easily, and Walter J. Burton was his running mate. Then came a series of nominations by acclamation, in which Margaret Zane Witcher was renominated for clerk, Joseph C. Sharp for sheriff, Fred Jaques for recorder and Amos S. Gabbott for assessor.

The afternoon had waned, and the delegates were hungry for supper and for the stronger contests that were to come in the evening.

At 7:30 o'clock the convention reassembled. Frank Heginbotham, county auditor, who has had two terms, was the first victim of the convention, being defeated by C. Roscoe Vigus, who, singularly enough, was deputy under Mr. Heginbotham until he entered the race for his chief's job.

The greatest fight on the floor of the convention, and one that will live in political history of Utah as a titanic struggle, was the contest over the treasurership. John Groesbeck, who has had two terms at the office, made the mistake of going after a third, but so great was his popularity that he was defeated by only four and a half votes, despite this handicap.

Fred C. Bassett, a deputy in the office of the county clerk, and a man who stands well with his party and with all men who know the name, jumped into the race in the lead, carrying the First precinct. Groesbeck and Bassett were about even at the end of the Second; Groesbeck forged ahead in the Third and gained still more in the Fourth. Bassett led in the Fifth and the two candidates went out into the county with Bassett in the lead.

Bassett gained here, where it was thought Groesbeck's strength was greatest. In the end, Bassett was nominated, but not until the chair questioned the 266 1/2 votes he had received as being enough to nominate. Groesbeck

DYNAMITE ARE SET FOR DYNAMITE MEN

Big Price Placed Upon Heads of Culprits Who Blew Up the Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 3.—Under the stimulus of proffered rewards aggregating $100,000, hundreds of men, policemen and private citizens here and in all coast cities, are searching for clues that may lead to the arrest of the band of conspirators who are held responsible for the blowing up of the Times building last Saturday, and the attempted destruction of the homes of General Harrison Gray Otis and F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the Merchants & Manufacturers association.

Police and civil officials believe that there were at least three men concerned in the outrage which cost the lives of more than a score of Times employees, and the city has placed a price of $10,000 upon the head of each. The county today voted an additional reward of $5,000 for every man captured and convicted, and on top of all of this, members of the Merchants & Manufacturers' association decided to offer a reward of $5,000. Twenty-five thousand of this amount has been subscribed. The rest will be contributed tomorrow, it is said.

Upon the assumption that at least three men were responsible for the wrecking of the Times, the combined amount of rewards thus reach up to $100,000—a figure almost unprecedented in the annals of criminal pursuits, and indicative of the determination of all classes to hunt down and bring to justice the perpetrators of the dynamite outrage. William J. Burns, former head of the detective force engaged in the graft cases of San Francisco, is at work tonight in that city, with other Los Angeles detectives who were sent north upon receipt of information that men named Leonard, Bryson and Morris had purchased near San Francisco the dynamite of which the charge in the infernal machine found at Zeehandelaar's home is believed to have been a part.

Three others of the "probably drowned" and eight of the missing were heard from. This cuts the list of probable dead to twenty-three, with eight missing—thirty-one in all. Those of the "probably drowned" found safe are: J. A. Bonnock of Green Creek, N. J.; T. A. Borsall, Philadelphia; James Greene, Cleveland, O.; E. W. Seber, Chicago; E. J. Turner, East Liverpool, O.; N. Blight, Roxbury, Mass. The eight from the missing list to be heard from are: A. Dwinell, Boston; E. A. Herbert, Connecticut; L. T. Johnson, Wilmington, Del.; J. A. Leselle, Philadelphia; J. Van Peer, Paterson, N. J.; D. Mahoney, Wilmington, Del.; A. R. Chambers, Worcester, Mass.; G. S. Thompson, Bloomingdale, N. Y.

Tonight a sailor cleaning the side of the ship Solace lost his balance and was swept under the vessel by the tide. His name was not learned.

Grappling for the lost New Hampshire men brought no results today. One sailor's body was found, but examination showed it to be that of Joseph V. Dudley, a coal passer from the repair ship Panther. He had been missing since September 23.

Memorial services for the dead were held on the New Hampshire this afternoon.

The board investigating the disaster has not finished its work.

DISSOLVES FOODSTUFF TRUST AND THEN RESCINDS ORDER

Kansas City Judge Imposes Penalty, but Recalls Order—Three Concerns Are Fined

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 3.—Half an hour after Judge E. E. Porterfield had dissolved the Kansas City Produce exchange and fined three of its members an aggregate of $8,500 today, the court set aside both the order and the fines.

When the first court action was taken today none of the defendants to the suit had a legal representative in court. Within a few minutes after Judge Porterfield had fixed the penalties, however, W. S. Cowherd, attorney for the exchange, appeared and made strenuous protest against the action that had been taken. He said he did not understand that the time for the final hearing of the case had been set for today.

Judge Porterfield then set the case for hearing tomorrow morning. It is understood Attorney Cowherd will ask Judge Porterfield to appoint a commission to take the evidence in the case and submit a recommendation to the court.

Fines assessed today were: The Armour Packing company, $7,500; W. L. Grush Commission company, $500; and Hurst Produce & Commission company, $500. Had the court desired, it might have ordered the Armour organization to cease doing business in this state.

CURIOSITY IS FATAL

Farm Hand Turns Starting Crank of Machine Left in Road and Is Crushed to Death.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Curiosity on the part of James Stahl, a farm hand, 30 years old, to find out what were the component parts of an automobile left standing in the road in Worth, a west side suburb, resulted in his death yesterday, when the object of his curiosity ran him down and killed him.

The automobile was left standing in the road by a party seeking mushrooms in the woods nearby. Stahl inspected the numerous levers and then stepped to the front of it and turned the starting crank. The heavy machine bore down and crushed him before he could step aside. It then ran down a steep hill. The occupants of the machine hearing the cries of the dying man, rushed to the road to find their machine a wreck and Stahl dead.

SACRIFICES HIS LIFE TRYING TO SAVE GIRL

Sailor From Battleship Kansas Is Drowned in the Hudson While Trying to Save Woman.

New York, Oct. 3.—While trying to aid Ensign Charles Talley Blackburne of the battleship Kansas, to save a young woman from drowning in the Hudson river today, a sailor, believed to be Eugene Audit of the Kansas, was drowned.

Blackburne and Audit jumped to the rescue when she missed her footing as she was stepping from a launch to a float, and with a scream, pitched headlong into the water.

Blackburne reached the struggling woman and managed to swim with her to the float, where they were hoisted ashore. Audit was caught in the swift current, and it is supposed, was unable to breast it and was carried out into the river and drowned.

The young woman was taken by other members of her party to a waiting automobile and hurried away. Her identity was not revealed.
