MAN PLACED ON FIRST WIVES

short Girl Hates the Subject After Her Experiences. "Nothing makes me feel quite so dilly," said the short girl, "as to be old by some man that I look like his first wife. I never know what to say. On the first occasion of that kind I asked if the dear departed was good-looking."

"No," said the man candidly, "she wasn't, but she was a good cook. She could mash potatoes better than anybody I ever saw."

"The next time I tried the sympathetic racket. 'It is too bad you lost her,' I sighed.

"Oh, said he, 'you needn't take it so hard. I don't. The other fellow can worry along with her a good deal better than I could, so we are satisfied all around.'

"The third man, in reply to my compassionate murmurs, responded heartily. 'She was all right. She had nine sisters, all beauties, but I chose the plain one of the family, and I never regretted my choice.'

"And so it goes. No matter what I say I do not seem to strike the right key. There must be some appropriate answer for sentimental compliments of the kind, and before I have further need of it I wish somebody would tell me what it is."—N. Y. Sun.

ONE OF WEBSTER'S SON MOTTS.

Containing a Meaning More or Less Effectually Concealed.

During middle life Daniel Webster was fond of revisiting the trout brooks he had fished as a boy, and was often accompanied by his "hired man," who was a native of the same village and had been a companion and schoolmate.

On one of these excursions the statesman related the story of a very large trout he had captured when a boy from the brook in which they were then fishing. The "hired man" responded with a story of a trout he had caught in that same brook, and which, of course, was many ounces heavier than that of the "great expounder."

Mr. Webster eyed his companion in silence for a moment, and then exclaimed, with emphasis: "Jerry, you are an amphibious animal; you lie in the water and you lie out of it."

Reprint, News-Herald: "There is at least one effectual, safe and reliable Cough Cure—Dr. Shoop's—that we regard as suitable, even for the youngest child. For years, Dr. Shoop bitterly opposed the use of opiates or narcotics in medicine, offering $10 per drop to any one finding Opium, Chloroform, or any other poisonous or narcotic ingredient in Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And the challenge is as yet unanswered. Here is one manufacturing physician, who welcomed with satisfaction, the new Government Pure Food and Drug Law. The public can now protect itself at all times, by insisting on having Dr. Shoop's, when a cough remedy is needed." Sold by all dealers. j 19

TOOK ROSSETTI AT HIS WORD

Artist the Unwilling Purchaser of "Work of Art."

When Rossetti was a student of art he one day happened to go with some fellow-students to the east end of London. There, at a wharfside inn, he saw an immense canvas on the bar-room wall. After laughing at it for some time, and thus provoking the inn-keeper's wrath, the following conversation took place:

"Where did you get that picture?" "Oh, never mind, young man, where I got it."

"What price do you set on it?" "More than you can afford!" "Indeed!" said Rossetti. "Now, how much?"

"Three thousand pounds," replied the innkeeper. At this there was a loud burst of laughter from the young artists.

"O'D you know how much I would give you for your three-thousand-pound picture?" "How much?" asked the innkeeper. "Three pounds," said Rossetti. "Done," said the innkeeper, promptly; and to his amazement and amusement Mr. Rossetti found himself the owner of the colossal daub.
