TAMMANY'S MAN FOR MAYOR

William J. Gaynor, justice of the supreme court, has been nominated for the mayoralty of New York City by the Democrats. In the campaign that will follow he will be opposed by Otto Bannard, nominated by the Republicans and endorsed by President Taft. Tammany will do its utmost to elect Justice Gaynor.

If Justice Gaynor wins it will be a victory of a plow boy who became a school teacher, then a lawyer, then a political giant who overthrew Hugh McLaughlin, for 25 years the "boss" of Brooklyn; then the implacable enemy of trusts, just of the supreme court, and finally mayor.

It will be a victory for a man who had scorned to run for governor when he might have won, and who once rejected "Boss" Croker's offer of Tammany's nomination for mayor of the city.

Justice Gaynor is 58 years old. It was on a story farm that William was born. It was there he toiled when a boy in a warring battle with poverty. He went to the district school and grew up sunbrowned and strong. After graduating from the Whitestone academy he taught school in Boston. Accumulating sufficient funds to permit it, he moved to Utica and began studying law in the office of Ward Hunt, who later became justice of the supreme court of the United States.

As long ago as 1875 Mr. Gaynor moved to Flatbush, L. I., then an independent municipality having 40 saloons, but only one operating under a license. This, he discovered, was due to corruption in municipal government.

In 1885 Mr. Gaynor moved to Brooklyn, then held in the despotic political grip of McLaughlin. Brooklyn was expanding. The town of New Lots, which had a little institution known as the Long Island Water Supply Company, was annexed. Gaynor discovered that the "McLaughlin ring" had bought out this company through dummies for $185,000, and had contracted to turn it over to the city of Brooklyn through the mayor for $1,500,000. He denounced the deal as a swindle.

MAKES $7,500,000 IN A HURRY

Charles W. Morse is well along the road leading to multi-millionaireville again. He has wiped out all his debts with the exception of $500,000. Mr. Morse regards this as a paltry sum. He has securities worth three or four times the half-million he owes and if necessary he could wipe out that debt and still have left what would be regarded as a large fortune by 99 men out of a hundred.

When Mr. Morse got out of the Tombs June 17 last his affairs were in what his own lawyers admitted to be a hopeless angle. They confessed they saw no chance of saving anything from the wreck and frankly told Morse so.

At that time Morse was confronted with a clamorous army of creditors, to whom he owed $4,500,000. At the beginning of the panic, in October, 1907, he was worth $22,000,000. The depreciation in security values that followed cut this fortune into less than half, for the Morse securities were about the hardest hit of all.

His credit was greatly extended when the tumble came. He owed money to more than a dozen financial institutions in New York City and to many more in New England. These loans were secured by stocks and bonds. As they shrunk in market value they were sold by banks and trust companies at panic prices. The slaughter was so severe that in many cases they did not bring the amount of the loans. These sales of his securities converted paper losses into actual losses.

GOT DIPLOMATIC CALL-DOWN

Mulai-Abd-El-Hafid (that's most all of it), sultan of Morocco, has been made the subject of a diplomatic call-down by France, which said, in effect, he needn't have been so rough with El Roghi, the pretender, who was merely trying to take his sultan job away from him. Several bewhiskered kaidas et al. recently surrounded El Roghi, took him prisoner and, on the orders of the sultan, threw him into an iron cage. Then, placing the cage on the back of a camel, they took him to Fez under an escort of 1,500 troops armed with spears and guns.

France, in objecting to this form of hazing, reminded Mulai that he was one of the pretender tribe once himself—before January, 1908, when by taking four new wives and adding new fathers-in-law, one of whom was Hamo Hoeko, and their armies to his forces, he managed to push his half-brother, Abd-el-Aziz, into deeper than ex-vice-presidential obscurity.

Then came the news that Mulai had El Roghi thrown into a cage of lions and that when the lions, disgusted with their job of eating the pretender, refused to claw him further, the sultan had the unconscious pretender soaked with oil and burned to death.

Mulai is declared to be an enemy of Europeans, but has listened to their voices when they were backed up by force.

"C. Q. D." HERO A "FRESHIE"

Abandoning the sea for the law school, Capt. Inman Sealby, of the White Star liner Republic, which went down off Nantucket island last winter after passengers and crew had been rescued through the "C. Q. D." messages of "Jack" Blinn, wireless operator, has been enrolled as a freshman in the law department of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

The hero of the marine disaster that thrilled two continents began to realize the dreams of his youth when he appeared at the registrar's office and matriculated. Years and years ago, long before he snuffed the salt breeze from the captain's bridge, the master of the Republic had ambitions to take a course in admiralty law. Promotions came, the lure of the ocean was strong, and Capt. Sealby would probably have gone down to the sea in ships all his days had not the Italian steamship Florida poked its nose out of the fog on January 23 and rammed a hole in the Republic.

Then came the drama of the high seas that held the attention of whole nations for days. "C. Q. D." messages crackled through the air summoning steamships to the rescue. Six persons, two of them passengers, were killed, but the rest of the human cargo of both crippled boats, 1,650 lives in all, were transferred to the steamer Baltic without mishap. Next day the Republic went down Capt. Sealby sticking at his bridge until the decks were under water and then climbing up the mast as it sunk still lower, refusing to abandon his boat until the last vestige was under the waves.

MINES AND MINING

High officials of the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining company are on a tour of inspection of the company's various properties in Utah, California and Mexico.

The test run on ore from the Spring Hill mine at Cow camp has not yet been made at the Pittsburg-Silver Peak company's mill, but it will be made soon, according to the Blair Press.

One of the large western holders of Boston Consolidated has been approached within the last few days, according to a Boston dispatch, with the view of securing an option upon all of his holdings at $20 a share.

A sampler is soon to be erected at Manhattan, Nevada, by Frank Peterson, owner of the Peterson mill and holder of a five-year lease on the Sullivan properties. An excavation for the plant has been started beside the mill on Mustang hill.

A lease covering one year has been signed up by Henry Bogan and Lou's Colvin on the old Joe Bowers property near Silver City, and in view of the development work they have already done, they expect to have a shipment on the market in the near future.

Up to October 1 the Ray Consolidated Copper company had developed 38,361,919 tons of ore, averaging 2.26 per cent copper, on a total of ninety-six acres. This statement will appear in the annual report for the year ended June 30, 1909, which will be mailed to stockholders.

Developments in the Prince Consolidated company's mine the last week have been as interesting as usual, says the Pioche Record. On the 460 the ore body varies in width from 10 to 14 feet, with values running about 8 per cent lead, 12 ounces silver and $1.50 in gold.

The entrance of the Cole-Ryan interests into the Ely, Nevada, district on a far-reaching scale, together with the recent encouraging developments in the Ely Consolidated and Ely Central properties, is given as the reason for the active trading and advanced prices of the Ely stocks.

The Provo Mining company, it is announced, is just breaking into the northern extension of what is known as the East Tintle Development east vein. It is on the 160-foot level that the Provo company has the ore. The same crosscut went through a small quantity of ore in the west vein.

A car and necessary track for the lower tunnel of the Silver Island property in the Silver Island district, was sent out to the mine from Salt Lake last week. A shipment of ore will be made from this property at once, and should it prove as rich as it looks, the mine will become a steady producer.

There was recently acquired by the Ray company 4,000 acres of land for mill, smelter, power plant and tailings site. Construction on the mill has started, and when completed it will have a daily capacity in eight furnaces of 5,000 tons of ore. Treatment of ore is expected to commence Jan. 1, 1911.

Since the copper properties of the Yerington district have to a large extent been proven up beyond the uncertain stage of the prospect, and the erection of a smelter has been promised by the Mason Valley people, mining men are devoting their interests to that part of the country with renewed energy.

There is a genuine gold stampede to Bruneau, Idaho, on account of some very rich ore that has been found on the mountain. The rich float was found first and later the ledge was struck. The ore was assayed at the assay office in Boise and returns of $400 per ton were had. Many claims have been taken up.

Hance Johnson, one of the leasers of the old Jones Bonanza property on Bonanza Flat and part of the Daly-Judge holdings, says the Park Record, was down town Tuesday last and reports conditions at the property encouraging. Some thirty or forty tons of ore have already been taken out by the leasers.

News comes from the Deep Creek mining country of the sale to the Juggenheim people of the property of the Woodman Mining company in that section, the consideration, it is said, being $280,000, to be made in three payments. The property transferred consists of all of the Woodman holdings in the Clifton district.

Silver King Consolidated has a new strike, in entirely new ground, which appears to be a big one. In a cross-cut driven in a southern direction from the east drift on the contact, on the 1,550-foot level, has been encountered a new vein carrying three feet of ore of the character from which Park City has derived its fame as a high-grade camp.

Owing to the impracticability of operating the mines of the Nevada United Mining company at Copperfield, Nevada, during the winter months, these properties have been closed down and work will not again be resumed until next spring.

NORTHWEST NOTES

Robert Craig, thirty-five years old, dropped dead near Gardnerville, Nevada, from heart trouble.

Two million feet of lumber, the property of the California White Pine Lumber company, was burned at Verdi, Nevada. The loss is $50,000.

The grand encampment of the Odd Fellows of Montana came to a close at Butte on Thursday, Helena being chosen for the next annual meeting place.

Mrs. Ida Strobbridge of Humboldt county, Nevada, was awarded the gold medal at Seattle exposition by the art department for the highest skill in book binding.

The Rhyolite townsite contest, which has been waged before the land office at Carson, Nevada, for some time, has been decided in favor of the townsite company.

The fire that destroyed the Denver hotel in Gullard, Wash., caused the death of Edwin Burch, who had arrived from Alaska the previous day. Three other men were seriously, perhaps fatally, burned.

Accidentally routed from his hiding place in a haystack by the prodding of a pitchfork, Charley Williams, the Reno burglar, who shot two men and stabbed one in a hotel at Vinton, Cal., was subsequently shot to death by a posse.

C. L. Cudahy and James Smith, employees of a steel company at Irondale, Wash., were drowned by the capsizing of a sailboat in which they were crossing the bay. A launch sent to pick up the men failed to reach them in time.

An unknown burglar after shooting two men and stabbing a third in a battle, when he was surprised in the Vinton hotel, at Vinton, 35 miles northwest of Reno, Nevada, on the Western Pacific railroad, escaped and a posse is in pursuit.

Clarence E. Hunt, a well known automobile man, and Dr. Edward Grove of San Diego, Cal., met death when the automobile in which they were riding turned turtle on a grade while they were speeding from Ramona to San Diego.

George Sabin, Thomas Diaz, Ed Eaton, B. Brink, M. A. Alexander, Charles Ferris and William Keyes, prominent stockmen of Big Horn county, are on trial at Basin, Wyo., charged with the murder of Joe Alemanda and Joe Emge, sheep owners, and Joe Lazler, herder.

Rocky Boy and his band of Chipewa Indians, numbering about 150 braves, encamped near Bird's Eye, Mont., probably will owe their rescue from death by starvation to the promptness of Indian office officials, who have taken means to relieve their desperate plight.

A bond sufficient to bail L. Gutierrez De Lara out of prison, where he is held on a charge of being an alien anarchist, has been pledged at Los Angeles, and "the De Lara Defense League," was organized to aid him in his effort to escape deportation to Mexico.

After beating her 18-months-old baby's head to a pulp, Mrs. Lena Helny, wife of a sawmill employe, committed suicide by throwing herself in front of an inter-urban electric car at Portland. She had shown signs of insanity of late and had been treated for a time in a sanitarium.

It develops that the man claiming to be Francis Schlatter, the "divine healer," who died at Hastings, Neb., was an impostor. Persons who saw Francis Schlatter in Denver in 1895 and who have recently seen the man who died at Hastings, declare positively they were not the same.

Mrs. J. Fenton, aged about 50 years, and claiming Reno as her home, was found wandering on the desert near Manhattan, Nevada, and is in a critical condition. The aged woman when found was nearly starved and said she had not eaten for three days. She exhibited signs of dementia.

Governor Norris of Montana, president of the Dry Farming congress, will open the International Dry Farming exposition at Billings, Mont., October 25, with impressive ceremonies. James J. Hill will deliver the principal address. Two hundred school children will sing national airs.

The total attendance at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition from the time the gates opened on June 1 until the close, October 16, was 3,740,551. Of this number, 2,765,683 were paid admissions and 974,868 were free. It is estimated that the fair earned a profit of $200,000, which will be returned to the stockholders.

Five convicts of the Oregon penitentiary, working as trustees at the state feeble-minded school, a few miles from Salem, overpowered three guards and escaped. They have all since been captured, one being killed and two wounded by a posse.

WAS ON TO HIM.

"Good morning, ladies!"
"Aw, g'wan! Youse needn't come around bein' so polite, just because you see we're eatin' apples!"

The Main Question.

This story is current in the Arkansas hills. A woman was telling some friends what a delicate childhood was hers.

"When I was born I weighed only four pounds. They put me in a cigar box for a cradle."

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed one of the listening women, leaning forward with great interest, "and did you live?"—Kansas City Times.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. EMMA LMSIE, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.
