The Hopping Prince.

Senator Tillman at a Washington dinner party was talking about the duties of an ambassador.

"They are important duties," said he. "A really good ambassador should know all about the country he is sent to. Then, he wouldn't make the mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan."

"This American entertained the shahzade for three days, giving him a very handsome suite of rooms in his house."

"The morning of the shahzade's arrival the American host visited him in his apartment and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely, but instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet."

"The host ventured to ask the reason for this hopping. The shahzade politely replied:

"You see, this carpet is green, with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but is rather fatiguing, I confess."

The Great Object.

"Well," said the president of the new publishing firm, "we've done fairly well during the past year. Every novel that we've brought out has been a success."

"Yes," replied the vice-president, "luck has been with us. Now let's get out an encyclopaedia."

The Cowardly Egg.

"When I arose to speak," related a martyred statesman, "some one hurled a base, cowardly egg at me and it struck me in the chest."

"And what kind of an egg might that be?" asked a fresh young man.

"A base, cowardly egg," explained the statesman, "is one that hits you and then runs."—Everybody's Magazine.

Du Diable.

"Please, your Satanic Majesty," begged a lost soul who was fishing from the banks of a boiling lake, "can't I try my luck somewhere else? I've been fishing from this blasted place for the last hundred years and haven't had a bite yet."

"That's the hell of it," explained his Satanic Majesty. "Everybody's Magazine."

Most southerners are gallant. An exception is the Georgian who gave his son this advice:

"My boy, never run after a woman or a street car—there will be another one along in a minute or two.—Everybody's Magazine."

Pure Selfishness.

Ex-Governor Pennypacker of Philadelphia said recently of the divorced girl:

"Admittedly there are cases where divorce is a blessing; but too many divorces are demanded on grounds as purely selfish as those which prompted Philip I."

"Philip I turned his queen out of doors and robbed a noble of his wife, saying:

"I like her better than my own consort, and can provide for her better than her husband could."

BOY BUILDS AIRSHIP

California Youth Makes Successful Tests with Working Model

Gunzendorfer Machine, It is Claimed, Has Many Advantages Over Successful Monoplanes of Bleriot and Wright Biplane.

San Francisco.—A few months in the future Mervyn Gunzendorfer, 13 years old, expects to be flying over the Presidio grounds in an aeroplane invented and made by himself. He has built a working model of the machine and has made it perform successful flights.

The Gunzendorfer machine, the boy inventor says, has big advantages over the successful monoplanes of Bleriot and Farnum, and over the Wright brothers' biplane.

Mervyn, who is the son of J. Gunzendorfer, of this city, is a small boy with a big round head and big eyes. He is quiet, even to shyness, and it is with difficulty that he can be induced to talk of his achievements. He set the motor of his model working and made the propellers whirl when asked to show the machine. In unaccustomed monosyllables he told how he had induced the little craft to fly in his back yard and down the alleyway to the street. It had flown 80 to 100 feet, and the only thing that had stopped it from going farther was the wire by which the power was supplied to the electric motor.

The boy began pointing out the superior points of his machine.

"More supporting surface," he said, pointing to the arrangement of his planes, which are placed tandem style, each tilted upward toward the front."

That was clear. Two sheets of canvas placed that way would certainly offer more resistance to the air in falling than would two of equal size placed one above the other. But how was this arrangement better than that of the monoplane, with its one long stretch of canvas?

"It's this way," he said. "The air hits under here (indicating the under side of the front plane). So there's a double support to keep it lifted with the force of the air that hits it from the front. That's better for gliding and for rising, too."

"Yes, you could extend a machine of this sort. You could extend it as much as you wanted to, because every time you'd put another plane on and another, the extra weight would not be so great as the extra power and supporting surface."

"I reckon this big machine I've made the plans for would carry two men. Then, if you extended a machine like that you could carry more and more passengers. You'd have to put in strong braces here and there to make this part of the frame stronger. There would be no trouble about the propeller shaft the way I've got it now."

"This wheel arrangement is something new," continued Mervyn. "Have you seen how the steering wheel is arranged on an automobile? There is one shaft inside another. One works the steering apparatus and the other opens the throttle. I'm going to try the same kind of arrangement on my big machine. One of the shafts will work the rudder and the other the dip-plane. This arrangement will save weight and will be a lot easier to manage than the levers that are now used."

"This aeroplane is going to be as light as any of those big men have made. And I'm going to have a Curtiss motor, so I am sure it'll be able to carry two passengers. The Bleriot monoplane has carried three."

"But the monoplane could not be extended like my machine could. If a single plane were made too big there would be too much strain on the framework. Besides, you could not get enough lift on with one very big plane as you could with these planes one behind the other, each with a tilt."

The building of the big machine in which the young inventor hopes to fly over the Presidio will begin soon. It is to measure 27 feet from the tip of the rudder to the end of the dip-planes in front.

Young Gunzendorfer has written a description of his model. Here it is: "Two distinct and permanently set biplanes, placed tandem, each measuring 24x12 inches, set six inches apart, give a total supporting surface of 336 square inches. Located amidships of the main planes are two adjustable planes 8x12 inches, which are controlled from the aviator's seat and cause the biplane to arise or descend at the will of the operator. A steering rudder 4x6 inches is located at the rear and same is under the direct manipulation of the aviator from his seat at the rear of the motor."

"The initial thrust is obtained from a coiled spring operating from a steel barrel, of the catapult type, the impetus thus obtained being sufficient to get the model into the air, after which the propelling power is furnished by a one-eighth horsepower electrically driven motor capable of 1,200 revolutions per minute."

"The motor is set amidship on the main frame and is coupled by chain drive to a chain shaft driving the two ten-inch propellers, one forward and one aft of the front plane. The power to drive the motor is carried to it over two flexible wires."

"The entire construction is of aluminum in the metal work, while cedar is used for the frame standards, the body of the ship resting on four aluminum wheels, the rear set of wheels turning with the angle of the rudder."

$48,000,000 Lost By Fires

Census Bureau Makes Interesting Report on Annual Expenditure for Protection.

Washington.—It costs each person in the United States only $1.65 a year to go to bed early and sleep sweetly with a sense of security created by the knowledge that if his house starts to burn firemen will come quickly to put out the flames. The census bureau, which has made an investigation of fire departments and fire losses in the largest 153 cities of the country, recently issued an interesting report on the subject.

In Berlin it costs only 25 cents a year, in London 19 cents and in Milan 17 cents to sleep easily. The United States geological survey has made computations to show that this difference exists because building restrictions in Europe are closer than in this country, because there are more fire-proof buildings and because there the cost of maintaining fire departments is not so high.

When it comes to conserving the country's assets the toll of fire teaches a powerful lesson. During 1907 the largest 153 American cities lost more than $48,000,000 through fires, with insurance amounting to $42,000,000. It costs these cities about $38,000,000 a year to maintain their paid fire departments.

Leaves Fortune to Horses.

Boston, Mass.—A fund of $70,000 to care for favorite horses and dogs and over $25,000 left to household servants are among the bequests of Charles Francis Wright, who died recently.

The bulk of the estate, which is estimated at several million dollars, is to be divided between the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children of Boston and the free hospital for women of Brookline, upon the death of a relative.

Why does Great Britain buy its oatmeal of us?

Certainly it seems like carrying coals to Newcastle to speak of exporting oatmeal to Scotland and yet, every year the Quaker Oats Company sends hundreds of thousands of cases of Quaker Oats to Great Britain and Europe.

The reason is simple; while the English and Scotch have for centuries eaten oatmeal in quantities and with a regularity that has made them the most rugged physically, and active mentally of all people, the American has been eating oatmeal and trying all the time to improve the methods of manufacture so that he might get that desirable foreign trade.

How well he has succeeded would be seen at a glance at the export reports of Quaker Oats. This brand is recognized as without a rival in cleanliness and delicious flavor.

WHERE IT WORKED.

"While we were on our honeymoon, I always spoke French to my husband, so that no one should understand us."

"So you went to France, did you?"

BREAKS A COLD IN A DAY

And Cures any Cough that is Curable.

Noted Physician's Formula.

This is said to be the most effective remedy for coughs and colds known to science. "Two ounces Glycerine; half ounce Concentrated Pine; Put these into half a pint of good whiskey and use in doses of teaspoonful to a table-spoonful every four hours. Shake bottle well each time." Any druggist has these ingredients in stock or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. The Concentrated Pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce vials each enclosed in an air tight case. But be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." This formula cured hundreds here last winter.

Saving Time.

The family was to leave on the two o'clock train for Broad street station, so the mother was all in a flurry as she hurried the children in a certain West Philadelphia home.

"Now, children, get everything ready before luncheon," she said. "Don't leave everything until the last minute."

And the children said they wouldn't. Luncheon ended, they hurried into their wraps, and started. In the hall the mother said:

"Edward, you didn't brush your teeth."

"Yes, ma'am, I did."

"But you couldn't," she said, "you didn't have time. Why you just got up from the table."

"I know that," said Edward; "but we were in such a hurry I brushed them before I ate."—Philadelphia Times.

Professional Conduct.

One of the best stories told about Mr. Birrell concerns a poor client, whose case he took up for nothing. When the case had been won, the client gratefully sent him the sum of 15s, which he accepted in order not to give offense. A colleague reproached him, however, for this "unprofessional conduct" in taking less than gold. "But I too call the poor beggar bad," said Mr. Birrell, "and I consider that is not unprofessional."—M. A. P.

A Modest Doctor.

While on his vacation, a city doctor attended the Sunday morning service at a little country church. When the congregation was dismissed several of the members shook hands with him, and one, wishing to learn if he were a Methodist, inquired: "Are you a professor, brother?" "Oh, no, indeed," answered the physician, modestly; "just an ordinary doctor."—Lippincott's.

It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

Whiskers.

A Roman poet told of the pride of the late Caesars took in his great whiskers. On some of the wildwood Hill Billies I have seen beards some feet long, a switch of the loose end hanging out from under the waistcoat. Others braided the growth and tied around the neck, while still others braided it around the waist, tying behind like apron strings. One to me he combed and plaited his evening, and put it away into a linen bag or nightgown, so as to keep it from getting all tangled up with his wife and his feet.—New York Press.
