This store has been more than an ordinary factor in the fashionable appearance of the ladies of this city and surrounding country for the last four years. Johnny Coulon, erstwhile bantam champion of the world, who was decisively beaten by Kid Williams of Baltimore recently, declares that he is not through with the ring yet and will attempt to "come back" and get a return engagement. He will probably look up with Knockout Eggers, the hard hitting New York boy, in his first bout. Coulon admits Williams' superiority as a slugger, but says that he was overtrained and had lost much of his cleverness, thus giving a great advantage to his rival.

THOSE WHO ARE OUT OF WORK KNOW

The President's psychological view of business was broached to several men who were in Doylestown this week hunting work, but having personal experience they could not be convinced that the Schoolmaster knew the real conditions. They had been without work for months, and being foundrymen and machinists know from a careful canvass of the shops in eastern Pennsylvania that there is actually a serious depression in the trade, and no sophistry of the administration could lead them to think otherwise. One of these men had been a foreman in his shop for ten years, and another believed that he would buy a farm, as the one safe way of selling the product of his hands for people must eat.—Doylestown.
