Asserts Germans Have Almost Shot Their Last Bolt

War Situation Reviewed Hopefully in a Speech Before House of Lords by Earl Kitchener

London, Sept. 15.—"The Germans appear almost to have shot their bolt," said Earl Kitchener, secretary for war, today. "Their advance in Russia, which at one time averaged five miles a day, now has diminished to less than one mile a day."

Earl Kitchener's statement was made in a review of the war in the house of lords.

"The response of the country's calls for recruits has been little short of marvelous," he said, "but the problem how to insure the field force being kept at full strength is engaging our close attention and will, I hope, soon receive a practical solution. I do not for one instant doubt that whatever sacrifice may prove necessary will be undertaken cheerfully by our people."

This was the only portion of Earl Kitchener's speech which might be regarded as a reference to the possibility of conscription.

Western Front Unchanged
Regarding military operations, the war secretary said:

"For the last few months the front held by the allies in the west has been practically unchanged. This does not mean that there has been relaxation of active work on the part of the forces in the field, for the continuous local fighting which has taken place all along the line has called for the display of incessant vigilance."

"Meanwhile our positions have been much strengthened, not only by careful elaboration of the system of the trench fortifications that already existed, but also by a large increase in the number of heavy guns which have been placed along the lines."

"The Germans recently on several occasions used gas and liquid fire and have bombarded our lines with asphyxiating shells, but these forms of attack, lacking as they now do the element of surprise, have failed in their object and lost much of their offensive value, owing to the steps taken by us to counteract the effect of these pernicious methods."

Recruits Found Satisfactory

"As new armies have become trained and ready to take the field, considerable reinforcements have been sent out to join Field Marshal French command. You will be glad to hear his opinion of these troops, communicated to me. He writes: The units appear to be thoroughly well officered and commanded. The equipment is in good order and efficient. Several units of artillery have been tested behind the firing line in the trenches, and I hear very good reports of them. Their shooting has been extremely good and they are quite fit to take their place in the line."

"These new divisions now have had the opportunity of acquiring by experience in actual warfare that portion of the necessary training of soldiers which it was impossible to give them in this country, and which, once acquired, will enable them effectively to take their place in line with the rest of the British army."

With these additional reinforcements, amounting to eleven divisions (about 219,000 men.) Sir John French has been able to extend his lines and take over from the French approximately seventeen miles of additional front.

Ground Gained by French

"Throughout the summer months the French have held their own along their extended line of the front and in some places, notably near Arras and in Alsace, have made substantial progress. In the struggles around Arras early in June they captured whole heights at Notre Dame de Lorette, as well as a number of strongly fortified villages around this high ground, thereby securing an area of great tactical importance. In view of future operations. In Alsace a number of dominating eminences have been wrested from the enemy and have been subsequently hid in the face of formidable counter attacks."

One particularly commanding summit which overlooks the left bank of the Rhine in this quarter and which had been the scene of continuous encounters for many months, after changing hands many times, rested finally in possession of our allies. "French trenches along the entire front have been developed and strengthened and now everywhere presents a network of almost impenetrable fortifications. Of this, I was able to satisfy myself during a visit lately to our allies, at the invitation of General Joffre, when I was profoundly impressed with the high state of efficiency and morale of the French army. It was evident that officers and men recognized that the only possible termination to the war was to inflict on the enemy a thorough defeat. Their resolution to do this was never firmer or more intense."

"Our allies aircraft have been particularly active. They have carried out numerous effective raids on a large scale, penetrating far into hostile territory."

Germans Plan Thwarted

"Turning to the eastern theatre, the enemy, taking advantage of the central position, since early in June have been employing a very large proportion of their forces in strenuous efforts to crush our Russian ally. In prosecution of these operations, which we all have followed very closely, the Germans, in addition to their great numerical superiority, developed vastly preponderating artillery which enabled them to force the Russians from their defenses. The German objective was evidently to destroy the Russian army as a force in being and thus set free their troops for action elsewhere; but, as in the case of many other plans arranged by the German staff during this war, there has been a signal failure to carry out the original intentions."

"In the history of this war few episodes stand out more prominently, more creditably than the masterly manner in which the Russian forces, distributed along a line of 750 miles, have been handled while facing violent assaults from an enemy greatly superior in numbers, especially of guns and munitions. The success of this great guard action had been rendered possible by the really splendid fighting qualities of the Russian soldier, who in every case where actual conflict has taken place, has shown himself infinitely superior to his adversary. These fighting qualities of the Russian army empowered her generals and competent staff to carry out the immensely difficult operation of retirement of the whole line over some 100 to 200 miles, without allowing the enemy to break through at any point or by surrounding their forces to bring about a tactical position, which might have involved surrender of a considerable portion of the Russian army."

Russian Army Intact

"Thus we see the Russian army remaining today intact as a fighting force. It doubtless has suffered severely from the hard fighting to which it had been subjected during the recent months, but the German forces also had to pay a heavy toll for their advance into Russia, and who will venture to say until the present grips are relaxed which armies suffered more?"

"It must not be forgotten that Russia, with her vast territory has been able ultimately to envelop and annihilate large invading armies. In this she certainly is no less capable today than she was a century ago. As regards the net result all that the Germans can place to their credit is that at an enormous sacrifice they have captured certain fortresses. But our recent experiences shows that the best fortifications and practically the only ones that can effectively resist the new machinery of war are those which can be quickly dug deep into the soil. Such trenches today form better defenses than the most carefully fortified places of which the engineers until lately were so proud."

Announcement of Success of Negotiations is Expected Within a Few Days

New York, Sept. 21.—Borrowers and lenders of the vast sum sought in America on behalf of Great Britain and France were said tonight to be in virtual accord on all details of the proposed loan, except two. These it was said, were not of prime importance. Formal proclamation of the success of the negotiations is expected within three or four days and possibly, within forty-eight hours.

Persistent reports were current during the day that the entire matter would be settled tomorrow and that a formal announcement might be expected within twenty-four hours. This was said to be a bit premature but there was unanimous confirmation of the report that both parties to the proceedings were very nearly together in their plans.

More progress was said to have been made today than on any other two preceding days. A rough inventory of what was accomplished, it was said, would read about as follows:

Members of New York's so called pro-German banking houses will help float the loan.

Munitions of war no longer enter into the topics discussed. While it cannot be guaranteed that they will be excluded from the loan's operation, it is the present tentative plan to continue paying for them by shipments of gold and American securities from London and Paris to New York.

The size of the loan has been definitely agreed to, subject of course, to eleventh hour revision. It will be less than $800,000,000 probably $700,000,000 or thereabouts.

The notes issued for the loan will run five years.

These notes will carry a conversion privilege entitling the holders to surrender them at maturity, if desired, for joint Anglo French government bonds bearing 4 1/2 per cent interest and covering a period of probably twenty years, redeemable, however, at the option of Great Britain and France before maturity and at the conclusion of a term not as yet disclosed.

Heals who drove the physician's car the night of the murder was arrested on a charge of murder on September 2. Cecil Victor Brown, formerly employed as a hostler by Dr. Mohr, and Henry Spellman a half brother of Brown, also were arrested at the same time. All three are negroes. Mrs. Mohr whose arrest followed an alleged confession by the negroes has been at liberty under bonds of $10,000.

On the day the arrests were made the police declared that the negroes confessed they killed Dr. Mohr at the instigation of Mrs. Mohr, whom they are alleged to have said offered them $5000 to put her husband out of the way. A few days later the negroes denied that they had made any confession.
