

WINTER COURSE AT THE U. A. C. HAS JUST BEGUN

Registration for the Agricultural College Winter Courses started November 14, with several hundred applicants presenting themselves for registration. Young men, middle aged men, old men, just in from the farms, the shops, the factories, the business houses, eager to get the cream of a practical training in their various lines, filled the first day in registering. Many ready to start or to continue their college educations presented themselves. Grey haired fathers were there with their sons, both ready to register for some of the many intensely practical courses offered by the Institution this year. Not a few young women registered for work in home nursing, dressmaking, art, and allied subjects, but they were greatly outnumbered by the men.

PURITY AN ART MASTERPIECE AT THE LYRIC

An opportunity will be afforded Logan lovers of the silent drama when "Purity" America's Dramatic and artistic masterpiece will be shown at the Lyric Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday nights. This is one of the most talked of pictures in filmdom not because of its daring but because of its intrinsic value as a photoplay of art and beauty, and its still greater value as silent yet powerful moral sermon such as the present day world needs. Audrey Munson greatest of present day plastic art models is the one whom the producers of "Purity" have selected to make, on the screen, the powerful preachment, of Apostle Paul that, "Unto the pure, all things are pure," and the universal verdict is that a better choice could not have been made. Miss Munson is the model who posed for practically all of the statuary exhibited at the San Francisco Fair last year. In order to correct false impressions that may be gotten from viewing cuts and posters advertising this picture we make a positive statement here that the picture is as free from immorality or vulgarity as is a beautiful painting or piece of statuary; and only prudes can object to it. The film has been shown all over the country and thousands have attended this silent sermon only to be impressed with the truths expressed by the critic of the Ogden Examiner, who said: "Viewed in its proper light, 'Purity' is a great moral sermon such as this world needs, and the glory of pure womanhood unadorned shines forth in such a way that it won the respect and admiration of even those drawn to the Orpheum by morbid curiosity. It is a masterpiece that falls to give most hyper-critical moralist opportunity for adverse criticism." The opinion of some of Ogden's most prominent citizens was sought by the Lyric management and in every case it was the very strongest recommendation as to its wonderful photography, its artistic beauty, and the moral it teaches.

A STORY OF TWO TOWNS

There was once a small town situated in a beautiful and fertile valley. The name of the town was Unwise. This name was given to it because of the people who lived there. Whenever they wanted to buy a package of breakfast food, or a dress, or a plow, or anything else they would send to a big city more than a thousand miles away. There seemed to be no one who wished to buy from his neighbor, or even from the people who lived in the towns nearby. And so it happened that Fred Green, the blacksmith, had but little to do, and had to move away, and William Leigh, the cobbler was working but a part of each day, and some days he did not work at all, and so he was poor, and Frank Johnson, the miller, could not afford to have any help in the grist mill. All the people were poor, and the town of Unwise did not have the good schools and good teachers that many other towns had. The boys and girls did not wear very good clothes or have very good homes to live in. Everybody asked, "Why do other people have so much, and why do we in Unwise have so little?" One day a man came to town and saw the beautiful valley in which it was situated, and he said, "This is a good place to build a factory. I will build it and give work to all these people and make them prosperous and happy. And so he employed workmen of every kind—concrete men, masons, carpenters and painters and the factory was built. And then he employed men and boys and some girls to do the work in the factory, and the town of Unwise began to prosper and the people had better clothes to wear and better homes in which to live, and they were all happy. The farmer who lived near Unwise also began to prosper because the people in the town had money to buy their fruit and grain and vegetables and other things which they had to sell. And then more factories came and they canned the fruit and tomatoes and peas, and made the cucumbers into pickles and the cabbage into sauer kraut. They took the beats and made sugar, and from the milk and cream they made butter and cheese, and everybody thought that Unwise would become a great city. But when the manufacturers had made all these things and put them in the stores to sell, the people of Unwise and their neighbors did not buy them. Most of them even forgot to give these home made goods just one trial to see whether they were good or not. They continued to buy the things which were made in far-away places. So the manufacturers had to close their factories and the people had no work to do, and the town of Unwise again became poor and went back to its old ways of poverty and distress. Now there was another town which was also situated in a fertile and beautiful valley, and the name of this town was Prosperity. It was given this name because all the people who lived there had good homes to live in, good clothes to wear, good food to eat and the boys and girls had good schools to go to. This town had a good water system and paved sidewalks. There was also a good theatre and the ball team of Prosperity was the best in the league. When the town was first settled every man tried to help his neighbor. The grist mill of Herman Black was busy all the time and two of the Smith boys and one of the Browns had work there because the people bought Black's Best Flour. Late Drew, the cobbler, worked eight full hours a day and some days he even had to work longer because all the shoes to be repaired in Prosperity came to his shop, and sometimes those who could afford it, had him make them a brand new pair of boots or shoes. When a boy needed a suit of clothes his father bought it from Lefel, the clothier, and usually it was made from cloth from the mills only a few miles away. So the stores of Prosperity did a good business and many people had work as clerks and bookkeepers and deliverymen. Then a bank was established, and this also gave work to a few people. And all these people needed homes and this drew to the town the men who build houses, they gave work to carpenters, masons and other workmen. Now it happened that when the manufacturers left Unwise, they sought for another place to build their factories, and when they heard of Prosperity they decided to go there because the people were loyal to the town and prosperous. And factories were built in Prosperity, and it became a big city. When the boys in the town grew up to young men, and when they had graduated from the high school, and some of them from college, they found plenty of work to do in their own town. They did not have to leave their friends and go away. As Prosperity grew into a city the people had money to pave the streets, put in sewerage system, light the streets with electricity, build office buildings buy playgrounds for the children and make many beautiful parks. Prosperity is still growing because the people still buy the goods made in their home factories and the other factories of the state. Their own factories are growing larger because Prosperity is selling goods to the people in other towns.

CLARKSTON CLIPPINGS

Clarkston, Nov. 15.—The election passed off here very quietly. Some few bets were made; the one that caused the most sport was that of Steve Cline and M. H. Clark which took place on Sunday last, when Mr. Clark wheeled Mr. Cline in a wheelbarrow from one end of town into the other. Mr. Cline wore the National colors as he is a Wilson man. We have had one more case of diphtheria of little Miss Annie Griffiths but she is reported as getting along nicely. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Atkinson are rejoicing over the safe arrival of a new son. Mr. Russell Jardine and Ben Clark have purchased homes up at Teton Basin and recently moved there. We have just learned today that the milk haulers from this side of the river had to close down on account of feed being so scarce for the cows. A great many farmers have sold their cows. Our Sacrament meeting was well attended on Sunday and the choir did some excellent singing. The choir was assisted by J. M. Larson as director and Jennie Clark as organist. One of the latest events was the birthday party of little Cora Archibold who served an oyster supper to a number of little girl friends. They all had a splendid time. Quite a number of our people are suffering from bad colds, owing to the severe cold weather we are having at present. Mr. Jess Griffin and family have just moved to Rexburg, Idaho.

A HINT TO THE MERCHANTS ON XMAS SELLING

Much effort is expended every year to induce the buying public to do their Christmas shopping early, and with each succeeding holiday season this problem remains to perplex the merchants. Now it is our belief that much can be accomplished, and this vexing question at least partially solved if the merchants will make early preparations for their holiday business. Get out your Christmas goods, show them, advertise them, push their sale early. It is just as much to the advantage of the public to buy early, as it is for you to sell early, but it will not buy as long as the goods are in dark basements or hid away in storage. A concerted movement on the part of all the merchants, in this direction will help greatly. Display your holiday goods now. The public are aware of the advantage of early Christmas shopping. The argument of the choicest lots, the greater selection and all others are understood by the public and too, they sympathize with the overworked salespeople at that season. They will buy if you will show. Some of the local firms are already showing their holiday merchandise. Let's all do so.

ELECTRICAL WK. ANNOUNCED FOR DEC. 2-9

With the idea of promoting early Christmas shopping, the electric dealers of the United States are advertising America's Electrical Week, December 2 to 9th. The local representatives of the Utah Power & Light Company are on the move to take advantage of the National advertising and make a regular electrical week in Logan and will offer to the general public bargains in electrical appliances as suggestive gifts for Christmas. Mr. S. F. Reynolds, local field representative for the Utah Power & Light Company has conceived the idea that the Commercial Club of Logan should join and make the week a community week, and offer inducements to the country trade to come into Logan during the first week in December to do their shopping. Most of the merchants have begun to display their Christmas goods already, others could not do so and the idea could be made as big a success as was the Dollar Day last summer.

SMITHFIELD HAPPENINGS FOR THE WK.

Last Friday evening a number of friends of Miss Clara Burgess gave her a bundle shower. A jolly good time is reported by the girls. Many beautiful presents were received. Miss Burgess became Mrs. Joseph Crockett Wednesday, November 15, both being prominent young people of our community. Mrs. Annie Miles was pleasantly surprised last Thursday, it being her birthday, by a number of friends and relatives. Mr. David Moritson and Mr. Weber of Bennington, Idaho were visiting with Mrs. Robert Griffith this week. Mrs. Adelia Moreshead of Great Falls, Idaho was visiting with her sister, Mrs. Rebecca Erving. Miss Louise Barber of Logan has been visiting the past week with Mrs. Mae Cantwell. The business block of W. H. Griffiths on Center street is being pushed so as to be completed by the first of the year. Miss Emma Munk, a returned missionary, delivered a very interesting talk at the First Ward Tabernacle Sunday which was very much enjoyed. The Smithfield Sentinel is to issue a Christmas Edition this season and the Sentinel force is hard at work. Mrs. Ollie Rigby of Salt Lake City is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roskelley. Miss Viola Gyllenskog entertained at dinner Sunday. Mrs. Tate of Ogden; Mrs. Crero of Seattle, Washington; Mrs. Hannah Ostland and daughter of Logan; Mrs. John Potts; Mrs. Celia Gyllenskog. Mrs. E. B. Lundquist entertained a number of relatives and friends from Hyde Park Wednesday afternoon in her beautiful new home. Mrs. Julia Lewis of Ashley Fork is visiting with her mother, Mrs. Sophronie Tidwell.

RITER BROS. ONE CENT SALE IS A WINNER

The One-cent Sale which the Riter Bros. Drug Company has been conducting the past two days has been a great success. It will continue throughout the day. After today, the sale will be off and the line of Rexall remedies, including drugs and drug accessories, which have been sold during the sale at such a bargain, will again be sold at the regular list price. The rush for toilet articles, stationery, brushes, rubber goods, toilet water, and hundreds of household needs, has kept the sales clerks taxed to the limit to hand out the merchandise and collect the money fast enough to suit the many customers. The purpose of this sale is to advertise the Rexall remedies, to get the article in the home, and once the manufacturers who co-operate with the retailer in putting on the One-cent Sale feel that the quality of the Rexall line will so please the new customer, that money spent in other lines of advertising could not begin to equal the results obtained through the satisfied customer who has actually tried the merchandise. Remember the sale will last today only. Riter Bros. Drug Company, 33 North Main, Logan, Utah. The Rexall store. Later—inasmuch as certain lines that were included in the sale have been exhausted, it is the intention of the management to take the orders from the customers and fill them upon the arrival of the merchandise. —Adv.

FARMERS ARE EXPERIENCING DIFFICULTY

Benson, Nov. 17.—The cold snap we are having is working a great disadvantage to those who are still digging beets; in fact the ground is frozen so hard that it is with the greatest difficulty that the beets are plowed out of the ground, and that can be done only toward evening when the ground is not too damp. The farmers, however, in our locality have dug most of their beets—at least 90 per cent of them. Now that election is over, neighbors are able to meet and converse in much lower tones that they were able to do before. As far as we are able to learn all seem delighted with the results of the election. It might be mentioned that it was not necessary to go after any of the voters in a hearse as they were sufficiently alive to come otherwise. Although the day was cold, Mrs. Sarah G. Reese, 83 years of age came down from Logan where she is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Reese to cast her vote for Woodrow Wilson and the others on the Democratic ticket. Her nephew, Dave went for her, and it is safe to say he never did any thing that was more appreciated. Mr. James Chantrill with all his belongings left our ward last Saturday. Mr. Neph Martineau came down from St. Anthony to help him off. Our best wishes go with Mr. and Mrs. Chantrill. Mr. Burger, a nephew of Mr. G. Beutler has bought the old Chantrill home and now he needs a companion. At the meeting of the Young Men and Young Ladies association last Sunday evening there were present the following visitors from Logan: Prof. Frank Daines, Mr. C. C. Keall Jr., and Mrs. Frank Daines, Miss Edith Bowen, and Miss Anderson all members of the Mutual Stake Board. All spoke and gave much valuable instruction. A reorganization of the Y. M. M. I. A., was effected with the following as officers: Lee Reese President, Melvin Ballard First Counsellor. The following named brethren were named as officers: Lee Reese, president; M. J. Ballard and Sylvia Peterson, Counsellors; L. E. Harris, Secretary; Golden Barrett, assistant Secretary; W. J. Funn, Treasurer; M. J. Funn, Finance; and Willis Reese, songs leader; all collaborating at the meeting.

SAD DEATH AT WELLSVILLE

Wellsville, Nov. 17.—Arthur, the 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Douglas of this city, died of rheumatism at 12 p. m. on Thursday. He has suffered untold agony for the past four years and the way he has held up through the pain, without a murmur, has been beautiful to behold, and it was only because of his strong desire to live, and become a joy and comfort to his father and mother, that he has lingered until now. In his past life he has been a boy of strong moral character, bright intelligent and ambitious and he leaves a host of friends to mourn his death. Everything that medical science could do to relieve him of his pain was done, the family sparing no expense, but it seemed to be of no avail, and the constant care the mother and family seemed to do more good than the care of the doctors. Funeral services will probably be held Sunday.

THEODORE ROBERTS IN "ANTON THE TERRIBLE"

Theodore Roberts, the celebrated character actor, may have played many mean parts in his career, but in "Anton the Terrible," which will be seen at the Lyric on Monday and Tuesday, he has reached the mean zenith of his career. In a casual observation of the rehearsals, it would seem that Mr. Roberts' favorite pastime is choking beautiful young women and having handsome young men lashed. He looks so fierce in his Cosack make-up that his own dog tried to bite him. Mr. Roberts is supported by Anita King, Horace B. Carpenter, Harrison Ford, Edythe Chapman and other prominent artists. The picture is being produced for the Jesse L. Lasky Company under the direction of William C. DeMille.

GRAVES CASE CONTINUED

Hearing Postponed Pending Advice From Berlin. Washington, Nov. 16.—The preliminary hearing of Karl Armgard Graves, self-styled international spy, charged with attempting to extort $3000 from Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German ambassador, was postponed today until December 6 at the request of the United States attorney's office. When Graves, with his lawyers, appeared before United States Commissioner Taylor, the prosecution announced that testimony of Prince Fitzfeld, counselor of the German embassy, with whom Graves dealt, was essential. The prince, however, was not to appear without permission of his government. It may be two weeks before permission is received.
