

BABE RUTH TALKS ON MONEY END OF SPORT

Fan Traveled Far to Shake Hands With Yankee Star.

One Ambition Was to Greet Man Who Made $50,000 a Year as Baseball Player and Then Tell Folk at Home of Incident.

Babe Ruth is willing to admit that ball players are strong for "commercialized" baseball to the point of getting what they think is their fair share, in the way of salaries, from the receipts of the gate, and the average ball player is pretty much Boishhevik on that point, but the Babe says a little incident in Louisville started him to thinking along a new line as regards the money end of it.

The Yankees played an exhibition game in Louisville and the Babe, as the big noise, was the center of attraction, of course. He gave the usual amount of time to visiting a school for boys, talked to them in the way they like, extolling the idea of playing ball to win for the sake of winning, admonishing them to always play fair and square, etc.

Then Ruth went to the ball park. There was more or less introducing and butting in of bugs who hadn't been introduced, all of whom wished to meet Babe Ruth. Up comes one guy, crowds his way to the fore and says:

Babe Ruth.

"Mr. Ruth, will you shake hands with me?"

"Sure," said the Babe.

When the man had released Babe from his fond grip he cocked one eye and said, with a smirk of satisfaction: "Well, I come a 100 miles just to shake your hand. I always wanted to shake hands with a man who made $50,000 a year, and now I've done it."

Babe Ruth is pretty young, but he has an appreciation of values. "That seemed to be all that guy had in mind," he said. "Just thinking about the money I make, or he thinks I make. Reckon if I'd given him an autographed ball he'd peddled it around the pawn shops or put it up at auction to see what he could realize on it. And then they talk about us ball players being money mad!"

BASEBALL RULE OVERLOOKED

No Longer Any Such Play as "Ball Accidentally Hitting Bat Becoming Dead Ball."

Baseball players of the fields and the smaller cities seem to have overlooked the fact that the rule about a pitched ball accidentally hitting the bat, even though the batter tries to dodge it, has been annulled. There is no longer any such play as the "ball accidentally hitting the bat becoming a dead ball." When the ball accidentally hits the bat it is in play as if it had been swung at by the batsman.

CINDER TRACK FOR HARVARD

New Course Enables Track and Football Squads to Practice Without Interfering.

A new quarter-mile cinder track has just been completed on Soldiers' field by the Harvard Athletic association, enabling the track and football squads to practice without interfering. Previously the only track was the cinder path in the stadium, and when the football players held secret workouts the track men were forced to forego practice.

TANK-MADE

Johnny Weismuller, Chicago A. C. sprint swimmer, has taken the "king" out of Duke Kahana-moku.

The new water star set a record by swimming 100 yards in 52 1/2 seconds.

A year ago Weismuller couldn't swim a century in less than 100.

He has been ably coached, being a running mate for Norman Ross.

But he learned quickly. He is tall, rangy. He cuts the water like a blade.

The duke is a born swimmer. Weismuller is a tank-made star.

OUSTED BY BRITISH, IS MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY

Dr. Levy, Pro-Ally During War, Forced to Leave England Under Alien Restrictions Act.

A man without a country or citizenship. Such is the tragic plight of Dr. Oscar Levy, publicist and author.

Dr. Levy, as a person of German birth, has received notice to leave England. This step is taken by the home office under the aliens restriction act of 1919.

Dr. Levy was pro-Ally during the war. He has lost his German nationality because he has lived in this country since 1894, and has therefore nowhere to go with his wife and daughter.

Dr. Levy, who was the official translator of Nietzsche, the German philosopher, into English, is at the present time lying seriously ill.

The home office case is that no "former enemy alien" under the act is permitted to remain in England more than three months unless an extension is granted. Residence in England before the war does not exempt Dr. Levy from the act, and there are no special grounds for allowing him to remain.

The work done during the war by Dr. Levy was in tracing British prisoners in Germany. He was always enthusiastically pro-British and anti-German. He left this country in 1918 for Switzerland, and remained in Geneva until April, 1920, when he returned by permission of the British legation at Berne.

The last published writings of Dr. Levy were in a preface of a book, "The World Significance of the Russian Revolution." In this, as a Jew, he said:

"We who have posed as the saviors of the world are today nothing else but its destroyers. We who have promised to lead you to a new heaven have finally succeeded in landing you into a new hell."

SON OF HIGH PRIEST OF PARSEES HERE TO STUDY

Jai Cursetji Pavry, first son of a high priest of the Parsees ever to come to this country, photographed in New York where he has entered Columbia university. He comes from one of the leading families of the Navsari priests, the followers in India of Zoroaster. When he has completed his course of study will make a tour of the educational, social and religious centers of the United States and then return to India to be a priest himself. None but a son of a priest can be a Parsee priest.

STARLINGS DISLIKE WAR

Birds Flee as Soldiers Come to Garden City, but Return Now.

Starlings ought to attend the armament limitation conference en masse, for they have demonstrated to the people of Garden City, N. Y., that they dislike war.

When in 1917 the soldiers came tramping down to Camp Miles and the flying fields around Mineola, the birds imported from England twenty years before, fled. They stayed away until Miles was abandoned and the flying fields became less active.

Now they are back, nesting in the spire of the Garden City cathedral and making Hempstead plains echo with their chatter.

Booze Family Doesn't Like Name. Mrs. Rose Anne Booze and her two sons, James and Joseph of Baltimore, Md., have applied in court for an order changing their name to Hughes. The name Hughes sounds better than the name of Booze, they contend, and they believe the change would be of great benefit to them.

Junk Dealer Dies, Worth $537,823. Emell Popper of Chicago, a junk man, died recently and left an estate valued at $537,823. His will gives $20,000 to charity. He started out in business 40 years ago with a pack on his back.

Copyright 1921 Hart Schaffner & Marx

Some of the things you should know about the new fall styles

Coats have lower openings; lapels are longer and narrower; the draping is softer. Two or three button models are good; some have belts. Double-breasted suits are popular too

We'll show you these features now in Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes

They're here in wide selections; new fabrics; new colorings. The prices are very low for the fine quality you'll get. We'll be glad to show you any day

The MEN'S Shop

The home of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes

LOGAN UTAH