TRICKY JAPS CAPTURE RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOATS

Used Russian Code of Signals to Lure Four of the Czar's Destroyers to Their Undoing.

The Nagasaki correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, cabling under date of February 22nd, reports that the Japanese squadron has captured four Russian torpedo boats at Port Arthur by using Russian signals.

This dispatch appears to confirm reports from various quarters of a fresh attack on Port Arthur by the Japanese.

The report reached Nagasaki from Chefoo, and it adds that the Russian crews of the four torpedo boats have been transferred.

No other news of this attack has been received in London, but the Chefoo correspondent of the Morning Post, in a dispatch dated February 22nd, says the statement is current there that the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers in the attack on Port Arthur on February 14th sunk or damaged two Russian battleships, in addition to the torpedo boats already reported.

It is possible, therefore, that the report of the Telegraph's Nagasaki correspondent also refers to the earlier attack.

IN A PRAIRIE LAND.

(Editorial Correspondence.) Moose Jaw, Assiniboia.

Farmers' Review, Chicago, July 22, 1903. Most of the prairies in the United States have ceased to exist. Man has broken them up with orchards, forests and farm buildings. But in Western Canada the prairies still stretch grandly from horizon to horizon as yet unmarred by the hand of man, save where the iron road has been laid. To a city man there is something deliciously restful about the vast grassy solitudes of
