Elephants Had Fine Feed.

Five elephants created an extraordigary scene at the goods station of Satignolles the other day. They are seing kept at the station while quarters are being got ready for them, but managed to break loose from their stables. At this time of year the station dispatches enormous consignments of fruit, which the elephants scenting at once began to devour Cherries, peaches, apricots and straw berries disappeared by the hamperful at a prodigious rate. Some porters sought to stop the dessert, but the elephants, using their trunks like cudgels, simply flogged them away and went on eating until they were literally gorged with fruit. Then they went back to their stables of their own accord. London Globe.

Hours of Sleep.

Our ancestors had an adage that six hours' sleep was the proper quantity for a man, seven for a woman, and eight for a fool, says the Lancet. Whether it is that the strenuous life of the present day is akin to foolish ness, or whether it is a simple phe nomenon of evolution, it is certain that many of our busiest men find the last-mentioned allowance none too long for them. The quality of a man's work soon deteriorates if he takes insufficient rest.

Start a Turtle Farm.

As there seems to be so much anx-lety about the turtles, why don't some one fence off some salt water and start a turtle farm? There are terapin farms; then why not logger head tarms; the eggs are easy to hatch and the turtles would not be subjected to jiggers and sorehead like chickens, and as the wild turtles are about to be exterminated, the tame ones would bring good prices.—Sarasota (Fla.)

It must be borne in mind, says a writer, that one essential for leading a happy life in the United States army is good behavior, and if any voice from the ranks tells a tale of unnecessary hardships endured, or other grievances, it is certain to be merely the natural result of bad conduct, and of leading a lazy and dissolute life. and the same man would have fared equally had in any other walk of life. or that he is inexperienced and does not know how to care for himself or falls to attend to the directions re-

This is what the average soldier in the United States army is getting to-day, when all clothing, medical attention, medicines, baths, free gymnasium, libraries, with books of all sorts, magazines. periodicals, post exchanges exclusively for the soldier's use where he may purchase at cost such soft drinks and articles as may be deemed necessary for his comfort, and where may be found billiard and pool tables and a good supply of games, such as chess, checkers, dominoes and cards, can be taken into consideration.

In addition to this, if the soldier be a good tradesman, carpenter, mason. teamster or any kind of workman or a man with a fatr education, or it may he mentioned that even when a man entists, if he is not up to his work, he

> Shrewd Father-in-Law. Very original was the idea of a barper who, on his daughter becoming engaged to his assistant, determined to regulate her dowry by her sweetheart's ability. A certain sum was accordingly set aside, from which a fine was deducted every time the flance chanced to cut a customer when wielding a razor. This had the effect of putting him upon his mettle, and his reputation as an easy shaver soon so increased the shop's clientele that on his daughter's marriage Figaro's extra takings more than compensated for the money he was called upon to disburse.

College Don's Mistake. Jewet enjoyed the company of the pretty women whom he invited Balliol, but I never heard of his being in love. One day a young lady told him it would make her so happy if he would marry her. Upon which he assured her that he was much touched by her proposal, but that he could not entertain it, as he had long given up all thoughts of matrimony She hastened to explain that she was engaged to some one else, and that she had only ventured to ask him to perform the ceremony.-Levenson-Gower's "Bygone Years."

Hard on Old England. In England the climate is fit for fish, the cooking for pigs, and the cus toms for asses. The scenery is divine, and the women have been created for it, but the climate has destroyed their constitution, the cooking their digestion, and the customs their character As most English men and women who have traveled much do not healtate to express these opinions, it is not to be wondered at that they seize every opportunity to cross to the Continent.—"Marmaduke" Graphic.

"Firedamp."

"afterdamp," "Firedamp" and words brought into terrible prominence in many disasters in mines, preserve the older English sense of 'damp"-vapor, and especially noxlous vapor. Precisely where the word came from philology does not know, but the earliest existence of its use quoted by Dr. Murray's dictionary is Caxton's (1480)-"after the dragon shal come a goot and ther shal come out of his nostrel a domp that shall betoken honger and grete deth of pepie." Bacon is one of the writers of his time who speak of the "damps" of mines. "Damp" gradually came to be applied to visible vapors, such as evening mists, and the transition to the sense of moisture is obvious. But in "damping down" a furnace one finds a relic of the verb "damp" in the sense of "sufficate."

OUST THE DEMON.

A Tusale with Coffee. There is something fairly demoniacal in the way coffee sometimes wreaks its fiendish malice on those orbo use it.

A lady writing from Calif. says: "My husband and I, both lovers of coffee, suffered for some time from a very annoying form of nervousness, accompanied by most frightful headaches. In my own case there was eventually developed some sort fection of the nerves leading from the spine to the head.

"I was unable to hold my head up straight, the tension of the marves drew it to one side, causing me the most intense pain. We got no relief from medicine, and were pussled as to what caused the trouble, until a friend suggested that possibly the coffee we drank had something to do with it, and advised that we gult it and try Postum Coffee.

"We followed his advice, and from the day that we began to use Postum we both began to improve, and in a very short time both of us were entirely relieved. The nerves becar steady once more, the headach a neck relaxed, my head straightened up and the dreadful pain that had so punished me while I used the old kind of coffee vanished.

'We have never resumed the use of the old coffee, but relish our Postum every day as well as we did the former beverage. And we are delighted to find that we can give it freely to our children also, something we never dared to do with the old kind of coffee." Name given by Pos tum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. SECRET POLICE OF PARIS.

Four Branches of Organization, With Varying Duties. "You cannot go anywhere in Paris without meeting the secret police, al though you would never recognize them," observed a Briton familiar with the French capital. "There are four divisions of these uniformed crime detectors. The first division is known as the Surety, the business of which is to track down known criminals and capture them. They are daring, wily and resourceful fellows, and It is a clever malefactor indeed who can evade them. Another body of this 'plain clothes' police looks after the tenants of lodging houses and hotels They take note of all the arrivals and departures, and gather statistics regarding the workmen in the factories the sick in hospitals and private houses, and so forth. A third division occupies itself with political plotters agitators and gamblers. At meetings of a seditious character they mingle with the crowd, and (to disarm suspicion) appland as loudly as anybody and join in denunciations of the gov ernment. They appear in gambling dens as gamblers themselves, and they also keep a quiet watch on the regular police. The remaining division consists of elegantly dressed persons who watch over the president and protect him not only from assas sins, but also from bores and cranks. -Cassell's Saturday Journal.

GIRL FASCINATES A LION.

Fair Dancer Patted Affectionately, but Her Face Is Scratched.

So great was the impression which a fascinating dancer made on a lion while she was paying a visit to a mu sic hall where it was performing that the animal, after contemplating her for some time, got on its legs, moved off in her direction, and, putting its paws through the bars of its cage, took hold of her head and patted her face affectionately.

Unfortunately, Samson had reckoned without his claws, which tore the tender skin of the pretty dancer, inflicting scars, the traces of which will, in all probability, never disappear. This result of what would otherwise have been regarded as a good joke, not being likely to enhance the professional attractiveness of the graceful Spaniard, she has taken legal ac tion against the proprietor of place of entertainment, putting in a claim for damages to the amount of $2,000.

The case has just been brought be fore one of the Paris courts, but, as the defendant is abroad on business, the hearing has been adjourned until November, when the judges may have a better opportunity for forming an exact opinion of the injury which the charms of the fair plaintiff have sustained at the paws of the susceptible Samson.

Saved from Suicide by Bath. A keeper at the county jail in Jersey City made the discovery a few days ago that Nicola Murdaco, a condemned Italian murderer, was in need of a bath.

The tip was furnished by Edward Tapeley, a negro murderer, who is under sentence to hang one week before the date set for Murdaco's execution. Tapeley said he strenuously objected to confinement in the same cell with the Italian unless "the dago had a wash."

Murdaco was ordered to get into the bathtub, but refused. He said he would die first, and then six attendants yanked his clothes off and washed him. Murdaco's yells were heard in every part of the jail. four men held him down while others scrubbed him from head to foot.

Murdaco tried to kill himself the other day by twisting and pulling his tongue until it bled at the roots. The keepers believe the Italian had an idea that he could commit suicide by allowing the pores of his skin to close up, and for that reason refused to wash himself.

Record of Yellow Fever.

Yellow fever has always been re garded as an American plague, its earliest and greatest ravages being in the West Indies and ports. In 1804 and 1814, however, it was very violent at Gibraltar, and during the next quarter of a century there were a number of virulent outbreaks in various Spanish cities. Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va., were ravaged in 1855; Wilmington, N. C., in 1862, and Savannah, Ga., in 1876. Between 1847 and 1868 there were six periods of scourge in New Orleans, the mortality each case averaging about 3,500 In 1878-79 Memphis was almost depopulated, there being 5,160 deaths in 1878 and 486 in 1879, though the larger part of the population had fied from the city. There were fever ravages during the same years in New Orleans and other gulf and south Atlande ports, the total number of deaths from the scourge in the United States during that year being 14,809.
