

FREE TRAINING OF NURSES.

By the terms of a fund to be administered in connection with the Philadelphia School for Nurses, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, a number of young women from every county will receive free training in nursing. It is planned to ultimately reach and help in this way every village and township.

The young women will be provided with room, board, nurse uniforms and all the refinements of a well-appointed Christian home. At graduation the diploma of the school and the order of the Red Cross will be conferred, qualifying for practice in any state or country; the railroad fare will then be paid back home.

Those applying and chosen to receive the benefits of this fund will be given two years' training with a rich experience in nursing the sick poor of the city under skilled leaders. The term may be shortened to eighteen months by taking a preliminary course of six months' reading and study at home. A special short course enables young women to quickly qualify themselves for self support and a substantial income.

In addition to regular nursing, the young women are taught how to preserve their own health; how to recognize, avoid and destroy contagion; how to establish and maintain perfect sanitary conditions about the home; they are prepared for positions as office nurse and physician's assistant; they get a practical knowledge of city mission movements, deaconess training, college settlement work, and are trained for special positions of trust in institutions.

The school is ten years old and is endorsed by physicians, leading educators and prominent men throughout the country.

In Darkest Russia.

To ward off cholera, the young women of the Russian village of Klimovsko, clad only in their nightdresses and with their hair all loose, made the rounds, barefooted, of the village at midnight. One of them, carrying a small idol, marched in front. Immediately after her another on horseback, with an oven rake, carried bread and salt in her hand. Five paces behind there followed twenty girls pulling a plow.—Westminster Budget.

What the Deacon Wanted to Say.

A good old deacon in Colchester, Ct., who had a somewhat pompous and majestic air, once arose in a temperance meeting in the Congregational church of that town and said: "Every time I see a young man coming out of a saloon door I want to go up to that young man, tap him on the shoulder, and say: 'Turn right around, young man; you're going the wrong way.'"

Habits of Ants.

New facts concerning those intelligent insects, the ants, are still coming to light. That they keep aphides as we do cows, in order to milk them, and that they have slaves was discovered long ago, but now we hear of a South American variety making flower gardens in the tops of trees. The gardens or baskets contain certain plants, which are duly tended by the ants, and the insects plant the minute seeds whence the plants spring.

Spiritual Man's Struggles.

"The struggle of the spiritual man is to make the world around him like unto what his soul is, ever in peace with God, peace amidst endless activity, peace amidst endless war. In what struggle he lives he labors and dies."—Mozoomdar.
