

Jesse L. Lasky's latest production entitled, "A Night on a Houseboat," heads the bill. These productions are world-famous. The act for next week is said to be his best production, the scenic effect is novel, displaying an elaborate double-decked houseboat profusely decorated with garlands, flags and lanterns, on which a party of young people and their chaperon are enjoying a summer outing. A foppish Englishman visits the boat, the part of the Englishman is played by O'Malley Jennings, a well-known English comedian and the comedy he obtains from the part is perhaps one of the best bits in vaudeville. Then there are other good character parts.

Next is Miss Katie Barry, the famous little English comedienne, who has been connected with a number of the most popular musical attractions. She came to America from England to create the part of "Pifi" in "The Chinese Honeymoon." Miss Barry sings delightfully and will render a number of the songs that she has made popular in the East.

Three years ago last Christmas the Orpheum opened and one of the most pleasant recollections of the program of the opening night was the dainty, charming act of the Misses May and Flora Hengler. These beautiful sisters dance with a grace that is fascinating and they sing melodies in a sweet tuneful manner. They will be here again.

Lew Hawkins will furnish a minstrel act. Minstrelsy is something that every American audience enjoys. If anyone is at all addicted to melancholia a few minutes with Lew Hawkins is sure to cure.

A sketch of the bill will be presented by Frank Mostyn Kelley & Co., who have an entirely up-to-date, novel and amusing comedy sketch that comes recommended as being one of the very best one-act sketches in vaudeville.

Coyne & Tinlen do a turn in artistic hand balancing that is truly wonderful.

Two pictures will be shown by the kinodrome, one a comedy subject and the other a novelty picture. The bill will be filled to overflowing measure by the selections of the popular Orpheum orchestra.

Grand Theatre.

Next week is the last of the present admirable stock company playing at the Grand. The bill will be "Under Two Flags," which is one of their best productions. Each member of the cast has a part suited to his or her particular abilities and a satisfactory performance should be given.

An announcement of interest to Salt Lake amusement lovers is that commencing Saturday night Kathryn Fitzpatrick will be the regular soloist at the Louvre Rathskeller.

EVER STOP TO THINK

What it would mean to those who like to dine and wine well—to those who make the real Bohemian life of the city—if they could not go to the LOUVRE for dinner or for supper after the theatre? The LOUVRE where every dainty dish may be had in or out of season, where the service and cuisine are the best, where the music is excellent and where you can find your friends. The one real rathskeller between St. Louis and San Francisco.
