JOHNSON LEADS IN UTAH'S POLL

Hoover Second in Straw Vote Conducted by the Literary Digest

Senator Hiram Johnson of California is Utah's presidential choice as shown by a campaign which is being conducted by the Literary Digest to determine the presidential sentiment of the nation. The campaign has now been going on five weeks and it is believed that about one-tenth of total number of returns have been received.

Utah gives 1330 votes to Johnson, the nearest candidate being Herbert Hoover with 1091 votes. Leonard Wood is next in line with 619 Utah votes and William G. McAdoo fourth with 494. Cox is the low man in the Utah column, receiving but 24 ballots. The complete figures of the Utah vote follows:

Democrat—Bryan, 195; Clark, 37; Cox, 24; Edwards, 52; Marshall, 26; McAdoo, 494; Palmer, 65; Wilson, 259.

Republican—Coolidge, 77; Harding, 33; Hoover, 101; Hughes, 134; Johnson, 1330; Lowden, 361; Taft, 51; Wood, 619.

Socialist—Debs, 81.

The total vote cast during the past week in all parts of the United States greatly favors Johnson. On six of the seven days his name has stood at the head of the list, credited with a greater number of ballots than any other contender. Since the last report he has gained some 3000 votes upon General Wood, the only candidate now leading him.

Wood is now leading with a total of 202,039 votes, Johnson second with 137,140, and Hoover third, with 109,552. President Wilson has received 45,369 votes.

MOST TALKED OF NEW YORK WOMAN LIKES MEN BEST AND GIVES HER REASONS WHY

Put on "High Brow" Play and Made Great Success for Theatre Idealists

By DJUNA BARNES. NEW YORK, May 15.—Who is the most talked of woman in New York today?

Ask it in literary circles and the answer will be—Helen Westley.

Ask it in theatrical circles and the answer will be—Helen Westley.

Ask it in Greenwich Village—where they all talk—and still it will be—Helen Westley.

All conversational roads in New York today lead to—Helen Westley.

Who is she—this person that everyone talks about and praises, as they praised Sylvia in Ben Johnson's famous song, "Who is Sylvia?" "Who is Helen"—Helen Westley? Well, she is an actress, a thinker and a conversationalist-de-lux.

Made Theatre Guild. She is the woman who has made successful the Theatre Guild here, that organization of idealists who put on "John Ferguson's" "High Brow" play and yet made it one of the greatest financial successes in 10 years of the theater history.

Helen Westley has so much wit, so much charm, that the brainiest men in New York seek her to talk with and one day you will see her at Henry's luncheon with Phillip Moeller, the brilliant author of "Madame Sand" and "Sophie," now running at the Greenwich Village Theater, the next day you will find her talking at the Claridge at tea-time with Gene O'Neill the author of the hit of the New York season, "Beyond the Horizon" while that night, if you happen to take dinner at Delmonico's she will be the table companion of some Wall Street money-wizard who likes "smart women."

Helen Westley likes men; she says she prefers them to women as talkers. "They are more amusing than women," she explained to me. "They have more background. Every year for them is 'the dangerous year.' Men go up against fate as a wild cat jumps in the dark at the enemy. Yes, and men are better looking than women because they are not afraid to be ugly from having suffered and looked into their souls."

Men Not Langorous. "I like men better than women because they are not instinctively langorous, and because they do not drink chocolate in bed so much. Women wake up in the morning and thing of love—nonsense, I call it. Of course one has to think of love sooner or later, but surely not before breakfast. It's what you think before breakfast that makes the day."

"A woman should stop relying on men at the age of, let us say, 40—by this time, unless she has a family, she should be able to think for herself, to live for herself. Women have never been able to make mistakes, to bark their intellectual teeth on hard realities, as it were, without running for shelter. But where there are no fears there are no thoughts, and where there are no thoughts there is no conversation—and I like conversation—that conversation which, with minute analytical persistence lays the heart bare; that conversation that marks the difference between the gesture with which we came into the world, and that with which we go out of it. We come into this world knowing nothing, and we generally go out of it in the same way if we are women, whereas men—well, they come in crying and they go out crying, but the one is the cry of nature and the other is the cry of conscience."

So Much to Hate. "And then, I like men, because there is so much to hate in them, and unless there is something to hate there is nothing to love. I like men because they resent me; I like them because they resent all things that detract from their own omnipotence—it does not take me very much to do that—I despise them because they do not make the most of what they are—but then I must despise women for that, too. There are so many patterns in which to shape our little lives here, and so few of them are used. "But do you understand men?" she was asked. "No, I misunderstand them—we love them that."

COAL PRICES IN UTAH INCREASED

May Go to $9 a Ton in Ogden, Says Local Fuel Dealer

Coal prices jumped yesterday, car shortage and inability of operators to ship enough coal to warrant sale at former prices being given as reasons for an increased cost of 50 cents per ton at the mines. The increased cost at the mines has reacted on local dealers, forcing them to put their coal on the market at a 50 per cent increase in price, according to W. B. Porterfield, manager of the Ogden Sewer Pipe and Clay company.

The Carbon Fuel company of Salt Lake has issued a statement "to the trade" in which the advanced price at the mines is quoted from $4.50 per ton to $2.25 per ton, f. o. b. from the company's mines at Rains, Carbon county, the variation in price depending on the grade of the coal.

The statement says that the car shortage is serious, the matter having been taken up with the Denver and Rio Grande and with Harriman lines without any encouragement being extended. The Denver and Rio Grande railroad, while it has returned to normal so far as the handling of traffic is concerned, cannot furnish more than enough coal to supply the mines three days of the week.

Dealers were urged in the statement to have cars of coal emptied as soon as possible after arrival, to release them as soon as possible for further use.

Mr. Porterfield stated that he was opposed to higher coal prices, prices being high enough at present. He said that the 50 cents increase in coal at mines would boost coal prices to $9.00 per ton in this city. Utah Fuel company coal, he stated, is the only fuel that thus far has not been advanced in price at the mines.

He stated that the situation will be relieved when car service makes the handling of a greater volume of coal possible.

Col. Jackling Here on Way to Salt Lake

S. L. GIRLS ON HIKE TO CANYON

Come to Ogden in Automobiles and Spend Day and Night in Famous Gorge

Fifty Salt Lake high school girls, clad in khaki outing suits, invaded Ogden canyon on foot yesterday. The party arrived over the electric line in special cars, bringing their camping equipment from the capital in automobiles. After a short stay in the business district, during which they were guests of James S. Carver, they started on the hike to the Hermitage and arrived there about noon. Kathleen Harms, daughter of the state chemist, acted as hostess and Miss Eva Paek, a teacher, as chaperone. The girls passed the afternoon in climbing the mountainsides near the resort. In the evening, they made their beds in true frontier style on the glassed-in porch of the Hermitage hotel. This accommodation was made by Manager Billy Wilson as the visitors would accept nothing more "civilized."

The vacationists will leave for home this afternoon. Members of the party included: Helen Pope, Gwendolyn Jones, Dorothy Vogeler, Janet Robbins, Janet Rosenberg, Emilie Sweet, Persis Quayle, Mary Nell, Ruth Sweeney, Dixie White, Helen Wixey, Anega Dunyon, Helen Clifton, Bleuda Carlson, Barbara Vorse, Josephine Ritter, Pearl Kimball, Jane Hampton, Aldrea Hatch, Grace Winkleman, Merriam Lamus, Hebe Ligat, Marion Knickerbocker, Lois Bacon, Gertrude Lacovek, Nellie Morris, Jennie Jones, Margaret Cunningham, Margaret La Sher, Dorothy Bratton, Katherine Silver, Hazel O'Neil, Marjorie Nice, Deborah Wilkes, Kathleen Strickland, Mary Siddoway, Dorothy Smith, Marion Grover, Florence Breckham, La Vonne Fowler, K. Colonel Jordan of the aerial mail service who visited Ogden last Tuesday and went over the proposed site of the aviation field here with members of the Ogden Chamber of Commerce committee on aerial mail service has visited San Francisco and left there yesterday for Los Angeles where he is conferring with Otto Praeger, second assistant postmaster general.

Mr. Praeger and Colonel Jordan are expected to visit Ogden again in the immediate future, says Warren L. Wattle, president of the Chamber of Commerce when further definite news about Ogden's selection as an aerial mail office will be published.

W. H. Taylor, chief clerk of the Railway Mail Service has been in San Francisco during this past week in conference with officials of the service there and it is believed that the matter of Ogden's location as an aerial mail point has been one of the subjects engaging the attention of officials. Mr. Taylor is expected in Ogden on Monday.

PEAK IS NAMED 'MOUNT OGDEN'

Dr. Condon Receives Word From National Geographic Society

Dr. A. S. Condon yesterday announced he had received a letter from George McGuire, secretary of the national geographic society, in which announcement was made that the official name of the peak directly east of the city is Mount Ogden.

Thus ends a battle which has been waged for many months and in which much correspondence paper was used to convince the powers that be that Observatory peak should be renamed Mount Ogden.

"It was a long and hard fight," Dr. Condon said, "but now it has been settled and Mount Ogden is the official name. They told us that the name could not be changed, that it was registered as Observatory peak in official documents and upon official maps. But we persisted and the board held another meeting, and at this meeting the name was changed."

Dr. Condon has led the fight to have the mountain peak named for Ogden and he has been backed up by many citizens, including Warren L. Wattle, president of the Weber club, and by O. J. Stillwell, secretary of the Ogden chamber of commerce.
