ALL CAMPS ARE HOPEFUL ON EVE OF BIG DECISION

Woman Reporter Gets Cheerful Predictions From All Political Managers

By MABEL ABBOTT.
(N. E. A. Staff Correspondent)
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 2.—“You can't measure this convention by its hotel corridor aspects,” said William Jennings Bryan with his justly celebrated smile. “One of the pleasant things about a convention is that you never can tell what is going to happen.”

Mr. Bryan was one of several of whom I got a glimpse on the eve of the balloting. A few floors higher up in the St. Francis hotel than Mr. Bryan, is Senator Owen of Oklahoma, the par-Cherokee candidate for the presidency. He thinks the whole H. C. of L. question, from production to consumption, is the biggest one to be faced by the next president, and he hopes to have the job.

Love Talks McAdoo.
T. B. Love of Texas has the delicate job of managing a balky candidate. Mr. Love was assistant secretary of the treasury during the war, and when anybody wants to know anything about the candidacy that is going on north or south of Mr. McAdoo, he is generally told to “see Tom Love.” Love believes McAdoo will be nominated.

Ed. H. Moore, campaign manager for Governor Cox, dinnerless and haggard and explaining at the top of his voice to a room full of Oklahomans why he hadn't been able to get seats for all of them at all of the sessions, was still cheerful. “We think Governor Cox is going to be elected because he has the record that will make the strongest appeal to the American people,” he summarized.

Palmer Backers Busy.
Mitchell Palmer has headquarters right down on the street. There is no Quaker quietness about this Quaker's campaign. His supporters invade cafes and hotel lobbies with banners and campaign songs, a scenario which himself as the central figure will be thrown on the movie screens, and his picture is being distributed as a souvenir fan.

C. C. Carter of West Virginia, his campaign manager, said: “We believe Mr. Palmer will lead from the first ballot and will be nominated. We represent the administration policies.”

CHURCH UNITY IN MARRIAGE

Dr. William Spiegel Marries Marie J. Miller of Denver; Is Preacher-Botlemaker

(By International News Service.)
DENVER, July 2.—Abandoning his pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Cincinnati, the Rev. Dr. William Leonard Spiegel was married here by a Catholic priest to Miss Marie J. Miller, of Denver, today.

The ceremony was performed in the sanctuary of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception by Father E. J. Manna.

Dr. Spiegel, who is on a temporary leave of absence from his church, announced that he would resign the pastorate upon the completion of an extended honeymoon trip.

When questioned concerning the attitude of his church and congregation in regard to his marriage by a Catholic priest, Dr. Spiegel said his parishioners knew nothing of his plans and doubted if they would discuss the matter at all.

“I do not care what they think or say,” he said. “It is purely a personal matter.”

Dr. Spiegel said he would not recommend the marriage of every one of opposite faith, as a great deal of trouble frequently results. “But ours is an exceptional case,” he added.

“Our marriage will be church unity worked out in a practical plan,” Dr. Spiegel declared, “and there is nothing in either denomination to prevent such an arrangement. As to the ceremony being performed by a Catholic priest, has not the bride always the choice of who shall marry her?”

Dr. Spiegel said there was bound to be some criticism of his marriage, “but it will be from those who have not figured out the proposition in a practical manner. Religion is a matter of personal choice, and we each respect the other's faith, and in that way keep the things that are dearest to us both.”

Dr. Spiegel, who has been pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Cincinnati for nearly fifteen years, also holds an executive position with a steel and tank foundry company in the Ohio city. He has been previously married, his first wife having died several years ago.

Dr. Spiegel says he is evidently unique in two things—his present marriage and the fact that he is a botlemaker-preacher.

“Botlemaker-preachers are not unusual,” he said, “but I have never heard of one who is a botlemaker before. No doubt many will be interested in that fact.”

STRUGGLE BEGUN WHEN BRYAN SUBMITS REPORT URGING BONE-DRY PLANK

had carried it a little way a man took it and put it into place with the big assemblage around the platform.

A parade in which practically all of the standards joined was organized when the demonstration had been going on five minutes. The marchers tramped around the hall to the tune of “There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight” and then the organ dropped into “Smiles” and most of those on the floor took up the words of the song.

It was a thirteen-minute demonstration. When order had been restored Senator Glass again took up the reading. There was some more hurrahing a few minutes later when Senator Glass, at the end of the long list of things the party proposed to do for women, said in another aside to those near the platform: “If we have omitted anything, we mean that, too.”

“I'll have to read it in my own brogue,” said Chairman Glass when he reached the Irish plank, to the accompaniment of a roar of applause and cheers.

ANOTHER WAVE OF APPLAUSE.
When the applause had died down he added: “That's the American brogue.” There was another wave of applause to that.

The plank merely expressed sympathy for the aspirations of Ireland for self government, made no mention of recognition of the Irish republic and was read and passed without any great demonstration of approval or disapproval.

Shouts of “Okeh” and “Good” answered the reading of the plank on Arizona.

Then when Chairman Glass struck some of the routine planks he hurried over them like a congressional reading clerk disposing of a president's message three lines at a time. The audience caught the humor of the burst of speed and returned with shouts of “Go to it” and “More speed,” as the chairman tumbled the sentences over one another.

The reading of the platform was concluded at 12:47, two hours and seven minutes after it began. At the concluding words the band started up again and the delegates stood and cut loose with another crash of applause. Then there were some more cries for Bryan and clamoring for the fight over adoption to begin.

BRYAN BOUNCES FROM CHAIR.
Senator Glass moved that the platform be adopted as read and W. J. Bryan bounced out of his chair on the platform to begin his fight for his minority planks. He was greeted with a minute of cheering in which very few delegates took prominent part. Opening his speech diplomatically with praise for the platform, he declared it one of the strongest ever adopted by a political party. He added that whatever difference of opinion there had been in the platform committee had been over the means and not the end to be accomplished, but it was one of the prerogatives of a Democrat to speak his own views.

“I am glad to come to you and say that I am ready to endorse almost all that is written there,” he continued, and an uproar of approval and disapproval greeted his words. “Make it all, make it all,” yelled several of the delegates.

Under the rules Mr. Bryan was required to read all of his proposed planks before the discussion of any of them could begin. The boneyard proposition he presented first and then followed the declarations he had drafted for publication of a government bulletin, for dealing with profiteers and to put the party on record as opposing compulsory military training in times of peace.

Elwell, according to Mr. Shevlin, was a member of a “whisky ring,” which included several prominent business men. His information, Mr. Shevlin said, showed that this “ring” had made plans for a large profit through the sale of liquor in this city and at Saratoga during July and August.
