PLANT TROUT IN NEARBY CREEKS

Local Association Will Stock Sanctuary With Wild Game And Fowl

Streams in Ogden valley yesterday received 50,000 trout fingerlings which have been reared in Winter's pond in Hunteville which has been leased to the Weber County Rod and Gun club for the purpose of replenishing the Weber county streams with trout. Under the direction of A. T. Heistmark, president of the club, the fish were taken from the pond and planted in all streams that flow into Ogden river. The trout were four-inches in length and should furnish anglers with intense activity during the next fishing season.

The coming fall months will be an important period for the game sanctuary in the Ogden canyon vicinity and for the Weber Rod and Gun association, its sponsor. Wild goats will be sent here and planted in the sanctuary for propagation purposes, insuring in future years many herds of these animals.

Mountain quail will be sent here from California, next month and placed on the sanctuary. These birds have been promised by the California game commissioner and a recent letter has stated that the local club officials may look for their arrival next month.

The arrival of the animals and birds this fall will mark the beginning of effort to fully stock the sanctuary with an abundance of all kinds of game and fowl. The work is being done wholly through the activities of the club officials and members, and within a few years they expect to make the sanctuary one of the best in the western states.

Day of Atonement to Be Observed by Jews

Jewish people of Ogden will celebrate the Day of Atonement beginning at sundown tonight and lasting until the sun sets tomorrow evening.

Services will be held in the Eagles' hall starting at 6:30 this evening and 8 a. m. tomorrow, conducted by Rabbi L. Lehrer of Congregation Brith Scholom. The day is called by the Jews Yom Kippur. All Jewish stores will be closed.

The Day of Atonement, which marks the end of the period of repentance beginning on the Jewish New Year, is the most solemn in the Jewish calendar. On this day, according to the tradition of the church, the possibility is provided for returning to God and finding reconciliation with him through prayer. The day is observed by fasting, praying and repentance by members of the faith. The forgiveness, however, that is provided is only for ceremonial transgressions. Sins against one's fellow men can find atonement, only by asking forgiveness of the person wronged, according to the Jewish faith.

YOUTH KILLED IN U. P. TUNNEL

Fourteen Year Old Section Hand Dies Under Train Wheels

Yafuk Kishi, 14 years old, was instantly killed in the Curve tunnel near Castle Rock shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a freight train en route east over the Union Pacific. Kishi was seated on a hand car and was with a party of ten other laborers. The other men seeing the obstacle jumped to the side of the tracks and Kishi was sent flying a distance of 100 feet from the center of the tunnel and beat the train, but he was easily overtaken and crushed by the heavy engine. His body was sent to Ogden, where an investigation was to be conducted today by railroad officials.

PENDER FREED AFTER 6 YEARS

Ogden Man Once Sentenced to Hang, Given Liberty in Oregon

Declared innocent of the crime of murder after serving in the Oregon state prison since November 19, 1914, John Arthur Pender, formerly of Ogden, was released September 11 by Governor B. W. Olcott. At the time of release Governor Olcott declared the man innocent. The case had been a notable one in Utah as well as Oregon history, on account of an energetic fight put up in the boy's behalf by his father, James P. Pender, who for more than twenty years was connected with the Ogden police department, most of the time as captain of detectives.

PENDER SUSPECTED. John A. Pender had gone to Oregon to take up land, and was known to have become involved with a neighboring family named Wehrman in a dispute over title. One morning Mrs. Wehrman and her child were found brutally murdered. The circumstances surrounding the crime caused great indignation. On account of the previous disputes, suspicion fell on Pender, and he was arrested.

Then followed a strenuous legal battle, in which Captain Pender was able to enlist the aid of some of the best detective agencies in the country, but to no effect. His son was convicted and sentenced to the hang. This sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor West of Oregon, and now Governor Olcott grants him unconditional pardon, declaring he believes the man innocent and has believed him innocent for a long time, following a searching investigation into all the details of the case.

Governor Pender pardoned Pender at the same time he pardoned William Branson, also serving a life term for murder in Oregon.

Reference is made by Governor Olcott in a statement containing the pardons to the fact that a man named Serks, now an inmate of the Oregon state mental hospital, as a homicide patient, had confessed to the crime for which Pender was serving sentence. At the time of that confession, Governor Withycombe is said to have expressed himself as convinced of Pender's innocence.

MAKES UP MIND. "Last November," said Governor Olcott, "my mind had become definitely made up that I would unconditionally pardon both John A. Pender and William Branson. By a strange coincidence on the night of November 22, the time when but a few days would have elapsed before I intended to issue pardons for both of these men, the horribly atrocious Claremont tavern murders were committed near Portland, in which two of the most prominent men in eastern Oregon lost their lives at the hands of bandits and highwaymen. The public mind became highly inflamed. For many months it continued so, and resulted in the restoration of capital punishment in this state. I saw at the time of these murders that for the benefit of Pender and Branson themselves, and for the benefit of everyone concerned, it would be a sorry mistake to grant them executive clemency at that time. I deemed it better that these two men should make vicarious sacrifices for a time for the benefit of the large number of men involved."

Governor Olcott classes himself as being ultraconservative in the exercise of executive clemency. "I hold rather old fashioned ideas," he stated, "and he refers to some of the conditions he has thrown around applications for clemency which make it necessary for the convicted man to put up a strong case before being granted even a hearing."

GOVERNOR GETS STATEMENT. He forwarded a copy of his statement to Governor Danberg of Utah with the explanation that Utah had interested themselves very keenly in the case. He added that Pender had been welcomed to the home of his mother in Portland after being pardoned, and had been given what was in the nature of an ovation by the citizens of that city. Pender was a trustee for practically his entire service in the Oregon prison. His father died in 1915, about a year after leaving public service in Ogden. His mother and other relatives then moved to Oregon.

Pilgrims Will Be Honored in Schools

Schools of Ogden will celebrate the centenary of the landing of the Pilgrims, according to Superintendent W. K. Hopkins of the city schools. Superintendent Hopkins today said: "Utah believes most firmly in the free Anglo-Saxon institutions of America. To prove this we are this year celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the pilgrims. It is a national movement. The celebration in our schools are concerned, has been officially launched with the appointment of a general committee. The Utah celebration is state-wide.

Each public and private school is making a study of Anglo-Saxon institutions and ideals brought to America by the pilgrims and subsequently brought to Utah by the pioneers. The work in English, history, civics, reading, art, and physical education is being shaped to that end. The general state plan is that each school shall give a special program on December 21st of this year, the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the pilgrims. This plan will be carried out in Ogden and it is further planned to put on an open air pilgrim pageant next spring.

To assume charge of the plans, Superintendent Hopkins, member of the executive committee of the state, has appointed a local committee as follows: Supervisor Sophie W. Reed, chairman; Mrs. Lillian A. Farnsworth, Supervisor Mark Robinson, Principal D. H. Adams, Miss Vera Hassenfug, Supervisor Carrie V. Knapp, and Miss Ethel Lee Howie.

Case Against Woman May Be Dismissed

Motion to dismiss the case of the state against Gurtha Wheeler, charged with a statutory offense, was filed in the district court by District Attorney Stuart P. Dobbs. The motion states that the complaining witness in the case is now absent from the city and went to Salt Lake after promising to send his address to the district attorney. From Salt Lake he went to Denver. The motion states that without the witness there is insufficient evidence to prosecute the case and asks for dismissal. The complaining witness is Elmer Wheeler, husband of the woman.
