BEGGARS GAIN WEALTH IN MEXICO

Hordes of Mendicants Infest Mexico City, But in Spite Of Numbers Some Acquire Fortunes

By LOUIS P. KIRBY, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Sept. 25.—Beggary, like all other professions, has a few who are brilliantly successful and a horde who merely exist, and this is particularly true in this land of beggars, where competition is keen. So many beggars make their appeal throughout Mexico that it seems impossible that any could grow rich, but some of them do, showing skill in handling money that would fit them for a more honorable calling.

A beggar was recently killed in the streets by an automobile. The police found that the ragged old man was worth $15,000, or $30,000 Mex. Another beggar who was also killed in an accident was the owner of a large hacienda in Michoacan. His was a romantic story, if there is such a thing as romance in beggary. Early in life he adopted the career of beggar. He was an industrious hard-working beggar and soon made money enough to buy a piece of land in Michoacan. This he farmed successfully without letting his begging interests interfere with his begging operations. In course of time he married and reared a family in Michoacan, his wife and children having no idea that he was a beggar in the capital. He had been rich many years before his death, but loved his profession caused him to make regular visits to Mexico City for a begging campaign. It was on one of these visits that he was killed in Michoacan. Not until then did his wife know that he had married a beggar, not until then did his neighbors know that the rich and successful farmer was a noted mendicant.

It is said that it is impossible to drive out the professional beggar from Mexico City because they are able to pay tribute to the police. A policeman here, it is said, gets $1.50 Mex., which is 75 cents in American money. Few of them are above temptation, it is said, even of a petty kind. Efforts are being made to increase the pay of the policeman to $5 Mex. a day, or the equivalent of $2.50 in American money. This, it is believed, would check graft and cause greater efficiency.

PRAGUE—Mme. Catherine Breshkovskaya—the "Little Mother of the Russian Revolution"—is seriously ill at her home in Bestyanos, at the foot of the Carpathians. Dr. Edward S. Egner of Philadelphia has just returned from Bestyanos, where he took her a cartload of supplies for relief of the village. Mme. Breshkovskaya visited the United States in 1919.

FIND FEDERATION BEST WHEAT FOR WESTERN USE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Tests of wheat best adapted to conditions on the Pacific coast, made by the agriculture department, show that the federation group, consisting of three varieties of wheat, is best suited for the western region, according to the expert's report. Hard federation produced the larger yields in Oregon, and white federation did the better in California. Milling experiments indicated that hard federation was equal or superior for milling and bread-making purposes to the leading commercial varieties now grown on the Pacific coast and also superior in this respect to federation and white federation. The federation varieties were compared in yield with the leading commercial wheats, including biostena, Australian varieties, Pacific white Australian and early hart, and produce higher yields, the department reported.

SIX MARRIAGES; DOCTOR CRIES ENOUGH

Took Six Trips to Altar and Five Jaunts to the Divorce Mill; Declares Firmly "Never Again"

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO—Enough is usually enough. Dr. Gabor Kingstone, chiropractor and famous here as a prize-fight referee, and also as a glutton for punishment in the matrimonial arena, declares that he has had enough. Six trips to the altar and five jaunts to the divorce court are said to be responsible for his new conviction.

The recent and last marital bout in which the doctor-referee was given a decision is the straw that broke the back of the dromedary. Coming as it did a short two years after a previous grilling, Dr. Kingstone was forced to throw up the sponge and cry "Never again."

Dr. Kingstone was first married in 1895 to Miss Flora Cohen and for fifteen years the couple lived happily. Then his wife died. And then began an unbroken line of bitter matrimonial defeats each of which added so much more to the doctor's cup of woe.

In 1911 he married Miss Maude Mannie, and was granted a divorce in 1916 on the ground of extreme cruelty. He then became enamored of Miss Ruby Armstrong and, resolving that his luck had changed, he led her to the altar. He led her to the divorce court in 1918 and was divorced on the ground of extreme cruelty. In a few months he was again married to Marie Stanley, was divorced and married her a second time in the same year. The latter marriage was annulled on the ground of fraud.

"CONFIRMED BACHELOR"
Two years passed. The doctor had become a confirmed bachelor. He was no longer on the matrimonial market, he was through. Then one afternoon Miss Mildred Gardner came rushing into his office at 101 Post street and begged him to marry her, he declares. Gabor didn't want to, as he told the judge, but the anxious one was so insistent that he put the "classical" sign on his office door window, too his fiancée to Oakland and was united. Three days later the first smoke of the erupting volcano of matrimonial trouble began to curl up to the skies. The doctor said that he knew there was mischief afoot when his wife lost a number of hairpins while in the kitchen of their home with a young law student at a party.

Witnesses at the divorce trial testified that the wife had said that she didn't love the doctor, that she had married him for money and a home. They said that she had told the young law student: "You know, darling, that I love only you."

Kingstone affirmed that he had brought his sixth spouse a gold wedding ring, and suitable clothing, but that she pined for a platinum circle set with diamonds, and that her heart was set on a sealatin coat. He told his wife that he couldn't afford these things, and in three bitter words of repartee she broke his heart. She called him "an old man."

CUP OF WOE OVERFLOWS
The cup of woe was now flowing over. The doctor was further embittered when he learned that his wife had fainted to him as to where she had passed an afternoon. He came to the court for consolation.

"If this court had the jurisdiction I think it would be advisable to issue an injunction to prevent this man from marrying again," said Judge Flood, when the testimony showed that the doctor had been to bat six times with Cupid hurling the arrow. Dr. Kingstone was stunned by the court's remark. There was no need of an injunction he told the judge. He didn't intend to marry again, he said—he had had enough. The doctor's attorney interposed legal objections to any provision in the decree which would prevent his client from marrying again. The judge admitted that he could not legally prevent the chiropractor from making a seventh trip to the altar. The doctor left the court a miserable man, his voice trembling as he spoke. Once outside the halls of justice, however, he brightened up. His cigar assumed a combative upward slant, his hat was tilted over one eye. And to his friends he admitted that a seventh call upon Hymen might be made if Cupid shot straight enough.

Why You Will Prefer the STARR

This phonograph which has been selected for the musical programs of the Standard-Examiner Cooking School has several points of exceptional merit but one stands in pre-eminent position. The "Singing Throat" and Sounding Board Horn of the Starr are made of time honored Silver Grain Spruce, selected by old masters as the proper material for musical instruments because of its acoustic properties. There is an entire absence of all nasal, metallic and harsh qualities, each and every tone is sweet, rich and clear.
