

HARDING SPEAKERS AT ELKS' HOME

President-elect Gives Memorial Day Address to Throng at Bedford

BEDFORD, Va., Dec. 6.—President-elect Harding Sunday redeemed a promise to his boyhood friend, Henry Elks' national home here and practiced his own precepts of "Memory's Revelments in Fellowship and Friendships" which formed the basis of an address delivered at the annual memorial exercises at the national home of the Elks.

It was at the invitation of Mr. Stowe, formerly a business man of Marion, Ohio, that Senator Harding accepted a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, agreed to deliver the memorial services oration at the Elks' national home and when he was nominated he repeated his promise.

So Sunday he delivered the address in the presence of the friend of his youth that it is not given to all men to inspire great shafts of granite or tablets of bronze, but it is the privilege of every living being to plant an ever-blooming friendship in some fellow breast and gather all the fruit it bears.

MEMORIES IN EVERYTHING. "It is the storehouse of everything in life worth while. It fashions character and inspires all deeds. It takes all the impressions of human existence and by some alchemy of love removes the dross and makes golden the cross of faith which is the rosary to every human prayer."

MEMORIES IN EVERYTHING. "One cannot fancy a life fit to live without the memory's revelations in fellowship and friendships, without love and attachments, without encouragements and endearments, without inspirations and the consciousness of achievements."

MEMORIES IN EVERYTHING. "We are met in memory today; in grateful, fraternal memory, in behalf of those who have taken the fork of the road to eternal peace. Ours is not a memorial of grief. Only happy memories are becoming to the departed, only helpful memories are worth while to the living."

MEMORIES IN EVERYTHING. "How often do we criticize harshly, when we ought to bestow a garland. We do it in private life, we praise in public. We do it in public life and withhold from sacrificing public men the one compensation that might atone."

MEMORIES IN EVERYTHING. "Sorrow has had its becoming expressions, but normal, natural interest is in the living. We are here for the living, else this meeting would be in vain. We are met to remind ourselves that as we live, so shall our memories endure. We come to a fresh conclusion today that in our daily lives we are making memorials and it is the privilege of every human being to leave such a memory as he would like to have recalled."

MEMORIES IN EVERYTHING. "Of the disappointments of public life, Senator Harding said: 'How often do we criticize harshly, when we ought to bestow a garland. We do it in private life, we praise in public. We do it in public life and withhold from sacrificing public men the one compensation that might atone.'

IDAHO LAD WINS PRIZE IN STATE

Boy Farmer of Filer Wins in Competition With World on Wheat

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Walter Weaver, a boy farmer, member of a farm bureau junior club in Filer, Idaho, won second on white spring wheat at the International Hay and Grain show here, in competition open to the world. The show, for which a $10,000 premium list is posted, is held in connection with the International Live-stock exposition, Nov. 27 to Dec. 4.

Carl Irwin, of Kimberley, Idaho, won third, and L. D. Burley, of Fair, Idaho, was fourth, on white spring wheat. The variety in each of these three classes was Dicklow.

First on alfalfa seed also was won by an Idaho farmer, J. H. Hardin, of Kimberley.

Other Idaho winners were: Darrow Brothers, Twin Falls, second on alfalfa; H. K. Wiley, Springfield, fourth on alfalfa; C. Peterson, Crook, sixth on alfalfa. Mr. Hardin also won first on red clover seed and E. E. Newton, of Fairfield, took third on Turkey Red wheat.

BOISE, Ida., Dec. 6.—"That Idaho took eight places, including two firsts and two seconds, in small seed competition against the world at the International Hay and Grain show at Chicago, lends point to the statement frequently made by this office that Idaho leads the nation in production of high quality seeds," said C. B. Hill, assistant field agronomist of the university extension division and deputy state seed commissioner.

These winnings also lend additional significance to the approaching Idaho seed show, to be held in Nampa, January 13 to 14, which is expected to be the largest seed show ever held west of the Mississippi.

Walter Weaver, who won second on white spring wheat at Chicago, is a last year's wheat club at Filer last year, in the farm bureau junior club work, and obtained 290 pounds of pure Dicklow seed from Carl P. Irwin. He won first in the open competition at the Twin Falls county fair, and then came to Boise and won first at the state fair, in open competition with 51 Idaho seed growers.

Dicklow wheat, which brought these honors to Idaho, is the favorite southern Idaho variety on irrigated lands. Credit for its premier position is given to Mr. Irwin, who took third place at Chicago, than to any other one man. For a considerable period of years, Mr. Irwin, on his farm at Kimberley, has been hard at work selecting enough heads to plant an acre seed plot, and he has bred up this variety until it yields an average of 10 bushels to the acre more than the wheat ordinarily grown on Idaho farms. It has been distributed throughout Twin Falls county, where it was estimated to have added $1,000,000 to the value of last year's yield, and it has been distributed quite generally throughout the irrigated sections of southern Idaho and has been sold in carload lots in the Kittitas valley, Washington, and in southern Idaho.

Idaho's Grimm alfalfa is known and sought throughout the middle west and east. A representative of state farm bureaus of several middle western and eastern states makes periodical visits to Idaho to buy this and other seeds. Alfalfa of this variety survives hard winters which freeze out less hard varieties. One of the important tasks which the Idaho Seed Growers' association has set itself is to protect Idaho's Grimm seed from misrepresentation and adulteration.

The Turkey Red prize, taken by a Fairfield farmer, brings new recognition to Camas county, a newly developing, dry-land seed section.

VIENNA, Dec. 5.—A huge demonstration picket against a recent increase in the cost of food and clothing within the last month was held here today. Government action to ameliorate conditions was demanded.

Government employees to the number of 25,000 have announced that they will strike tomorrow because their wage and other demands have been refused and it is possible the police also will walk out.

In Baden, striking bank clerks invaded the town hall today, smashed windows and mirrors and then demolished several coffee houses and hotel dining rooms.

WILDCAT MOVIES. FILMFLAM MANY

More Than $250,000,000 in Worthless Stock Sold to Gullible Persons

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The annual offerings of worthless stock in wildcat motion picture companies amounts to more than $250,000,000, the vigilance committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry announced here last night.

The committee declares that the people of this country have actually bought during the past year between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 of stock issues, none of which are worth the paper on which the certificates are printed.

It should be borne in mind that these figures do not refer to stock issues offered for business expansion by well established companies with big assets and big earning power.

Most of the money invested in wildcat companies has come out of the pockets of small tradesmen, clerks, stenographers, waitresses, boot-blacks and other wage-earners struggling with the high living cost problem. Government employees in Washington are declared to have bought considerable stock in one company floated in that city. Persons in straightened circumstances, crediting the extravagant reports of stock raisers as to the great fortunes made in the movies, have exchanged their Liberty bonds for movie stock certificates which will never pay a cent.

REAL COMPANIES HURT. Officials of legitimate film producing companies, many of them pioneers in the industry who have devoted their lives to the development of the movies, feel that next to the victims of the wildcat companies, they are the worst sufferers, because of the ill repute the operations of the latter have cast on the whole motion picture field.

Only two or three of the seventy companies investigated had any assets or proven earning capacity when their stock was offered to the public. Only about a half a dozen could boast officials or promoters who had any real experience in any branch of the motion picture industry.

CHILDS VICTIM. The committee's investigation disclosed some interesting methods of finance, and some pitiable stories of individuals who had put their trust in the tales told by the promoters of motion picture companies. It found that among the victims of these unscrupulous promoters were boot-blacks, waitresses, government employees, and even a few public officials.

One young woman wrote the committee that she had invested $3,000, her whole fortune, in a company promoted by a former instructor in a dancing school. This young woman, the sole support of an aged mother and an invalid aunt, believed the glowing tales of vast returns to be made by the investment of money in the company. The dancing master induced a half a dozen of his former pupils to invest $25 apiece in his company, promising to make them film stars. He made similar promises to several waitresses and chambermaids employed in a big New York hotel, selling each of these promise notes for an amount of from $250 to $500. Finally one of the women victims complained to the district attorney, and the promoter was arrested charged with grand larceny. The return of his company is a fugitive from justice.

REPORT SOFT COAL COSTS $2.66 PER TON AT MINE. WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Out of an increase of 52 cents a ton in the cost of producing coal at the mines since 1918, the probable increase due to wage advances has averaged 45 cents, according to a report issued last night by the Federal commission on the cost of producing bituminous coal during the second quarter of this year. The report puts the increase in labor for the period at thirty per cent and the total increase in production at the mines at 25 per cent.

The report covered the average sales realization and revised costs of 256 operators producing 19 per cent of the total bituminous coal mined. Sales realizations of these 256 operators, the commission said, averaged $3.31 per ton during the second quarter of 1920 and their revised cost of production at the mine was $2.66 per ton. Of this cost $2.04 represented labor, the report continued, 20 cents supplies and 32 cents general expense.

The difference of "margin" cost will be considered profit, the commission explained, because of the necessity of including figures for taxes, selling expenses and other items.

G. O. P. CHIEFS STRIVE TO GET HIGH TARIFF

Mark Sullivan Says Leaders Want It and Want It Quickly

HARDING WILL LEARN THAT VIEWS CONFLICT. President-elect Advised Not to Consult With Friends on Men for Cabinet

BY MARK SULLIVAN. (National political correspondent of the New York Evening Post, and Ogden Standard-Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—In the discussions that will shortly begin at Marion, Ohio, between Senator Harding and the leaders of political thought, summoned there to take counsel with the president-elect on the domestic and foreign policies facing the next national administration, the tariff, of course, will be very much to the front.

On this subject the majority of the Republican leaders take the old-fashioned party view. They want a high tariff, and they want it very high and very quick, there is even talk of an embargo on some farm products like wheat and wool.

QUESTION POLICY. There can be no question that the opinion among the Republican leaders is in favor of high tariff. But there is a smaller number of Republican leaders—and they are the more studious ones—who believe that the results of the war have put the United States into a different relation to the world. They question whether a tariff policy which was adapted to conditions preceding 1914 is possible or desirable now.

The old-fashioned protectionists are unwilling to even inquire whether anything has happened to affect American tariff policies since 1914. The more thoughtful leaders say it must be conceded that something has happened and that a good deal of study of just what has happened and its more intimate bearings on our economic life is necessary before an intelligent tariff policy can be laid down for the future.

The fact that the United States has become an exporter of goods to an enormously greater degree than before and has become an exporter of money where before it was wholly an importer of money must necessarily suggest some change in pre-war conditions as to what is now desirable in the field of tariffs.

No one knows whether Senator Harding is going to ask his callers for advice about his cabinet appointments.

If he had been through the experience that almost any newspaperman has had during the past few weeks, he would probably avoid advice and make his appointments out of his own head.

In discussions of this kind, there will be place privately and publicly, a good many prejudices have arisen, a good many commitments have been made, a good deal of partisanship has been created for some men and a good deal of opposition to others.

MANY CONTRADICTIONS. If Senator Harding starts to take any large measure of advice from his various callers, he will find himself in the center of a maze of contradictions.

There will be those who will tell him that Senator Root is the only man for secretary of state, and others who will tell him that Senator Root would be the greatest of all possible mistakes, that there will be those who will tell him that Senator Root is the best equipped man in America for foreign affairs, and others who will tell him that the cabinet secretary of state will not shine the president, such as James G. Blaine, overhauled President Harrison. This argument, by the way, will probably have little effect on Senator Harding, for those who have the highest hopes of him really believe that Senator Harding has some of Lincoln's capacity for getting the best men out of men who differ with him as much as Stanton differed with Lincoln.

As regards the secretary of war, there will be those who will tell Harding that failure to make General Wood secretary of war will create dissatisfaction in a large faction of the Republican party, and others who will tell him that the appointment of General Wood will create equally serious dissatisfaction among high officers of the army.

STRONG FOR HOOVER. There will be those who will tell him that Mr. Hoover must be taken into the cabinet because of his admitted ability and his public following, and others who will tell him that Mr. Hoover is too closely identified with advocacy of the league of nations to be satisfactory to those who composed the Republican majority in the recent election. It has always seemed to me unfortunate and unfair to everybody concerned that all this discussing and surmising should have taken place. Senator Harding is entitled to name his own cabinet and stand or fall by it. In appointing his cabinet, there would seem to be from Mr. Harding's point of view, two possible lines of policy. One would be to name a cabinet of distinguished men already well known to the public and commanding the public respect—a cabinet which would be received by the public with the feeling that here is a group of men well known to be able and experienced appointments which would at the outset enlarge and crystallize the favorable attitude the public now has toward the incoming administration. This policy, however apparent its advantages, has also its defects. Ten men selected wholly on the basis of their individual ability and their individual standing with the public might or might not make a good team.

The other policy would be for Mr. Harding to consider that his administration is to be judged not by its beginning but by its ending. This policy would lead him to appoint a group of younger men, less well known to

CHICAGO SOCIALISTS RIOT AS SOVIET IS DENOUNCED

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Riot calls were turned in late Sunday when a meeting of 2,000 Socialists became disorderly after Meyer London, Socialist congressman-elect from New York, had criticized the Russian soviet government.

A detachment of police arrived shortly after the disorder started and no serious damage was done, although chairs were broken and pictures and decorations torn from the walls.

Mr. London had been discussing Socialism for an hour before the disorder began. He was loudly applauded and frequently stopped to quiet the shouts of praise which came from his audience.

Suddenly, however, he began to criticize the soviet government, asserting that "the principles of Lenin were not necessarily the principles of pure Socialism and that the Socialists of New York were out of sympathy with developments in Russia."

"But, here in Chicago," he continued, "you are too slow to realize the faults of the Russian government. You go blindly on the belief that anything a Socialist does must be right."

The start of the criticism of Lenin brought a few shouts of disapproval from the audience and before Mr. London had finished, the disorder began beyond control and the riot call was turned in.

TACOMA MAN TELLS ABOUT HIS TROUBLES

Says Tanlac Was a Blessing to Both Himself and Wife; Rheumatism Now Gone

"Tanlac has proved a blessing to both my wife and myself," said A. J. Davis, of 3109 South Sixteenth street, Tacoma, Wash., foreman for the Puget Sound Electric Co.

"For four years I had suffered from indigestion and also had rheumatism in my shoulders and ankles. My appetite was very poor and no matter what I ate I was sure to suffer from it. After every meal my food began to sour and ferment about my stomach, would float up with gas until I could hardly breathe and have a peculiar pressing sensation around my heart."

"Since taking Tanlac I have a fine appetite, eat anything I want and everything agrees with me perfectly. The rheumatism has left me entirely. I never have a headache or get dizzy any more and my nerves are in such good condition I always get a good night's sleep. I have also gained several pounds in weight, and that tired, out feeling is all gone."

"My wife also was in a badly run-down condition, had no appetite, and was extremely nervous. She began taking Tanlac, too, and today the improvement in her condition is simply wonderful. Her appetite has returned, she has regained her lost strength, and her nerves are in fine shape."

Tanlac is sold in Ogden by A. J. McIntyre Drug Co., two busy stores.—Adv.
