REV. BROWN IS TO LECTURE ON WHITMAN

On January 15 Rev. William Thurston Brown is to lecture on Walt Whitman. An admirer of Whitman, who is also an admirer of Rev. Brown, writes of the author:
"IT is not saying too much, I think, to say that Walt Whitman is perhaps no man of any time—his during his own life been the subject of such extraordinary estimates by such eminent men as Whitman has. Some of the most eminent men in literature and philosophy, both in America and England, have written long books in extenuation of Whitman's remarkable message. Among these may be mentioned Robert Louis Stevenson, Richard Maurice Bucke, Horace Traubel, Hamilton Mable, John Addington Symonds, Bliss Perry, Havelock Ellis, Edward Carpenter and John Burroughs. It is impossible not to believe that the man whose writings have called forth such a noble series of tributes from men of such moral and mental endowments as these is well worth knowing something about."

The many friends of Hans Madsen will be pleased to learn that he is expected to arrive in Ogden from his tour of the Utah Hot Springs sanitarium. County Commissioner O. B. Madsen and family are also among the guests.

FOUR IN HAND DRIVE OVERLAND TO NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 9.—Planning to traverse the line of the old Overland Stage Route of the days of '49, Morris E. Howlett, the professional four-in-hand whip, it was announced tonight, will start from the Palace hotel in San Francisco, on June 15th next in the coach "Magot" for a four-in-hand drive to the Holland House, New York.
On his venture, which he says he hopes to complete in less than ninety days, Mr. Howlett will have the cooperation of two wealthy New Yorkers, one of them a prominent coaching man and the other a well-known automobilist. He estimates that he will have to travel nearly four thousand miles by road on the trans-continental journey. He plans to pick up his horses en route, calculating that fifteen hundred of them will be required. The run, if completed, will, it is stated, be by many hundreds of miles, the longest coaching trip on record.

MISS KATE BARNARD ON WITNESS STAND

Leavenworth, Jan. 9.—In the prison investigation at Lansing today, Miss Kate Barnard, Oklahoma's superintendent of prisons, and corrections, was examined and reiterated her charges of graft and corruption in the management of prison affairs.
Senator Reed, who acted as attorney for Warden Haskell, asked Miss Barnard whether she had made out and authorized the publication of a statement in which she makes charges that coal from the prison mines was misappropriated by the prison officials and that fresh meat intended for the prisoners did not reach them.
"Do you mean by your statement that you insinuate this thing?" she was asked.
Miss Barnard reiterated that she meant what her statement said.
Miss Barnard told the committee that if they would come to Oklahoma, she could produce witnesses who have testified to her that coal has been misappropriated and that "prison hogs had no hams."
Miss Barnard displayed indignation when Senator Reed tried to elicit a direct reply to his questions and she declared he was trying to get her tangled up.
At this stage General West, of the Oklahoma committee, interferred and insisted that the attorney and the witness act in a "more gentlemanly and ladylike manner." General West told the witness she could answer "yes" or "no."
Miss Barnard insisted that she did not see how she could answer either way.
"I don't charge anything personally. I simply retortate what witnesses have told me," said the witness. Miss Barnard was then dismissed from the stand.

OLD TIMER A WELCOME VISITOR

OGDEN PIONEER RELATES SOME INTERESTING HISTORY.

Mr. Langlois Strong Advocate of Good Roads Proposition and an Enthusiastic Fruit Grower.

George Langlois, 326 Thirteenth street, ex-cort pioneer, foot racer, and one of the best known "old timers" of this region, called at the office of the Standard Friday to renew acquaintances and swap yarns with the reporters. Mr. Langlois is always a welcome visitor and his tales and adventures are without number. He was one of the first white men to cross into Ogden valley via North Ogden canyon and was associated with Captain Jefferson Hunt, of the famous Mormon battalion, when the village of Huntsville was laid out.

Mr. Langlois is a native of the Isle of Jersey, off the north coast of France, near the Isle of Guernsey, his father being a native of the latter island a miller by trade. In speaking of his native land, Mr. Langlois always reminds his hearers that Jersey, although a small spot on the map, is a place with a history. He is now having been a favorite dwelling place for many centuries before Roman times, Caesar landed there in the year 912 A. D. and left ten of his men to divide the island between them, naming it Caesarea, after himself. The Roman word has since been corrupted by later inhabitants and many stages to the word Jersey.

Mr. Langlois, who was born in St. John's Parish, Mount Meadow, 1837, lived for twenty years within sight of the coast of France, yet never visited it. Neither did his father, before him, who spent his entire life on the islands, Jersey and Guernsey, without ever visiting the great continent so near them. Mr. Langlois assisted his father in the stone quarry business for some years and was identified with the building of the famous "Long Pier" in the harbor of St. Heliers, Jersey, which is a mile and a half long and took five years to complete.

In 1855 Mr. Langlois became converted to the Mormon faith and emigrated to America, sailing in the ship Chimborazo from Liverpool to Philadelphia.
The trip across the Atlantic in those days says Mr. Langlois, "was rather a tedious proposition. We were five weeks making the voyage, and a ship which crossed at about the same time was out nine weeks between ports. They did, however, make some good records even in those days. I remember a couple of lads from my home at Mount Meadow who had a sixty-ton schooner called the "Johnny," about seventy-five feet in length, in which they made a voyage from the Isle of Guernsey to the coast of Labrador in fourteen days. That was a remarkable record, considering the boats constructed at that time.

Arriving in America, Mr. Langlois made his way to Kansas and then crossed the plains with an ox team to Utah, where he has since made his home. In the year 1864 Mr. Langlois returned to the Mormon settlements in Kansas for a party of newly arrived immigrants and again crossed the great desert with his four yoke of oxen, that being the third time. It was on the latter trip that the romance in Mr. Langlois' life took on a new phase. He met a fair daughter of Sweden in the person of Mary Charlotte Ohlsson, a young girl who had overland so captivated his soul and lady with his tales of "fair breadth escapes by flood and field" that she became his wife soon after their arrival in Utah and still blesses his declining years at the age of sixty-five. He has since visited his native land (1892), remaining there part of a year.

Mr. Langlois was prominently identified with the founding of Huntsville when the only wagon route from Ogden was by way of North Ogden canyon. He and Captain Hunt were the fortunate possessors of the only two plows suitable for ditching purposes, and with these rude home made implements the first plowing conducted in the first irrigation ditch in Ogden valley. Their mole-boards were of strap iron and the plow frames of wood.
The Indians were numerous in those days but gave the settlers little trouble. Mr. Langlois tells of a famous battle which took place in Ogden canyon a half mile above the mouth, between two hostile bands of Indians, in which two noted chiefs were killed, the story of which, told in picture painting upon the walls of the north side of the canyon, high up on the side of the cliff, remained for many years and could be deciphered by the early pioneers.

Mr. Langlois is an enthusiastic fruit grower and has ideas of his own as to superior methods of tree growing which he hopes to introduce in this vicinity. One of his plans is to plant a young tree to grow flat upon the side of a house by fastening each year the young shoots as they branch. He tells of the famous Jersey cattle; also giant "cow" cabbages of his native isle, which grow to a height of twelve feet, and exhibits photographs to substantiate his statements. He is also fond of telling of the celebrated Lillian Langtry, the "Jersey Lily," who was born on his native soil and who was a favorite at one time with King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, until she playfully slipped a piece of ice down that gentleman's back one day, much to the latter's discomfort and mortification.

Mr. Langlois is known throughout the countryside as a champion foot racer, and still challenges, at the age of seventy-two, anyone in his class, and is still able to make a goodly snowing on the cinder path. This accounts for his enthusiasm in the good roads proposition, of which he is a strong advocate. Congratulations and a long, long life for George Langlois.

DRESSED IN WOMAN'S ATTIRE

ASTONISHMENT AT MAN IN UNUSUAL COSTUME.

Police Notified and Party Held at Station Pending Investigation As to Mental Status.

Somewhat of a furor was occasioned at the Eureka rooming house on lower Twenty-fifth street last evening when a large, burly man, of coarse facial expression and wearing a good sized mustache, made his appearance, gaily costumed in woman's attire. The man had been a guest of the house for about a week, during which time the landlady had observed that he frequently came to his room with his hands full of woman's clothing. She took no particular thought of this, thinking, of course, that the man likely had a wife and was buying clothes to send to her, but she became much alarmed last evening when she observed him posing before the looking glass in the hallway, quite elaborately dressed in woman's garb. He "primped" and strutted before the mirror quite as much as would an old maid with a new gown, preparatory to meeting a prospective lover.
Officer Crompton was called, and when he entered the room of the would-be woman he found him in the attire above mentioned, sitting in an easy chair, apparently waiting for the arrival of a new beau. The officer, upon entering the room, busily apologized for intruding upon the presence of a lady so debonnaire, whereupon he received an indignant reprimand for his audacity. The gaily attired personage told the officer that he had no business in his room, that he had come in for a new gown, was strictly his and for his own and exclusive use. The officer asked the fellow why he was so dressed, to which the man replied that it was none of the officer's business.
Crompton telephoned for the patrol wagon, which, with Officers Burk and Wilson, was soon on hand. The queer man was taken to the station, where he gave his name as George Whale. He was dressed in his female habiliments, which, by the way, was of fine texture, some of the attire being trimmed with lace and dainty ribbons. "The hose" were of the latest design and were fastened above the knee with dainty white garters embellished with artistic bows.
The man willingly gave his name to the desk sergeant, but declined to give an account of himself or explain why he was wearing woman's clothes. The officers stated that as had the appearance of being a heavy drinker and his summary of the case was that the liquor he had taken had possessed him of an hallucination of the fairy land. Mr. Whale was landed in jail, where he will remain, pending further investigation.

BASKET BALL SEASON IS OPEN

FOUR LOCAL TEAMS WILL STRUGGLE FOR SUPREMACY.

Weber Academy Victor Over Brigham Jolly Bachelors Score 39 to 18 Over Ogden High.
The basketball season is now fairly on and the various teams which are made up of the students of the various schools of the state are struggling hard in the initial struggle to gain an advantageous start over each other. Ogden has four teams in the field this year, coming from the Weber Academy, the State Industrial School, the State School for the Deaf and Blind, the Ogden High school, and the Jolly Bachelors.

The Weber academy team played its first league game with the Brigham high school team Friday afternoon, winning a decided victory, with a score of 28 to 19. The game was a spirited one and withal well played by both teams. It was a sort of rough and tumble game, the center of both teams being suspended because of rough playing. The lineup for the academy team was Hancock, center; Clark-Evans, left field; Jensen, left field; Watson, right guard; Driggs, right guard; Thomas, sub. The next game to be played by the team will be next Friday night at Salt Lake when the academyites will battle with the Granite high school team of the capital. The academy team belongs to what is known as the northern league of the state.

Last night at the Ogden army and high school team of the city met the Jolly Bachelors in an interesting contest, the latter team winning by a score of 39 to 18. In the first half of the game the high school made a score of 8 to 7 against the Bachelors and it was fully expected that the latter team would win the struggle. In the second half the Bachelors gingered up and set a pace that the high school lads could not well follow. The work of Watson at center and right forward for the Jolly Bachelors was especially good. The high school team, however, is not discouraged over its defeat and is anxious again to meet the Bachelors. The team for the deaf and blind school defeated the Bachelors in a spirited game a few nights ago.

CONVENTION IN OGDEN 1910

LOGAN OF WOOLGROWERS WHO GO TO POCATELLO WEDNESDAY.
Special Will Carry Boosters for Junction City and Weber County Determined to Secure Convention.
If the National Woolgrowers' convention of 1910 is not held in Ogden it will be because the united efforts of the Weber Club and the Woolgrowers' association of Ogden cannot secure it. Means and energy will not be spared on the part of these two organizations to induce the members of the national convention, which convenes at Pocatello the latter part of this week to decide on Ogden as the convention place for next year.
In the first place, every possible effort on the part of the Utah delegates to the convention will be put forth to bring the convention to Utah and in the second place the Ogden delegation are determined that Ogden shall be the convention city of the state. As a matter of fact Ogden is going out to capture that convention. Secretary Reynolds, of the Weber Club, said last night: "We are going to Pocatello in a united body for that convention. We are not only going to try to get it, but we are going to GET it. The forces of the club and the Woolgrowers' association of Ogden are united on this score, and the decision to secure the same is final. We will burn the bridges behind us, which means that there will be no turning back. Ogden is not only deserving of the convention, but as a matter of right is entitled to it, and if it is within the power of a united force, such as we will have and the showing we will make at Pocatello, we will have the next convention of the woolgrowers of the nation in Ogden."

Expatriates Going Home.

New York, Jan. 9. The colony of Venezuelan expatriates here, which has been rapidly dwindling since President Gomez took charge, was further depleted today with the sailing for Caracas of Caesar Zumeta, Guillermo Egea Mier and Hyacinth Lopez. All have had interesting careers. Senator Zumeta, one of the best known writers on political subjects in South America, was formerly vice consul of Venezuela in this city and consul in Liverpool. Senator Egea Mier was in the losing side in the Matos rebellion and has since conducted newspapers in Santa Domingo and Havana. Senator Lopez is a writer and poet.
Such of the Venezuelans as are in New York are awaiting developments before returning.

WILL BE EXECUTED BY THE GUILLOTINE.

Paris, Jan. 9.—As a result of the cabinet decision to adhere to the resolution of parliament in favor of retaining the death penalty, next week probably will see several executions in the northern part of the country by the guillotine. In spite of the excuse law permitting the infliction of the death penalty, it has been the custom for several years for the president to commute all death sentences to life imprisonment. There are today twenty-two persons under sentence of death. Four of them are in Paris, and this city consequently will soon see the restoration of the guillotine.

CHAMPION SPRINTER DEAD.

Cleveland, Jan. 9.—Harry Bethune, formerly champion sprinter of the world, died at a hospital here today. Bethune, in the early eighties, was one of the greatest foot racers in the world. For years he held the championship at 100 yards. He ran the distance in 9.45 seconds.
