WESTERN MOVIE AT ISIS A THRILLER

One of the best and most realistic pictures seen in Ogden in a number of months is the Selig two-reel feature, "The Law and the Outlaw," now running at the Isis theater. The work of Tom Mix as "Dakota" Wilson and Myrtle Stedman as the rancher's daughter is worthy of special mention. Mix is a western cowboy who is at home in the saddle. He has had little experience with the "Movies," but in his latest portrayal he is a star. He has a personality that is not "stagey." As a cowboy Mix can get away with any belt offered at the Cheyenne Frontier day or the Pendleton or Jackson Hole roundups. His riding of a bucking broncho and "bull-dogging" a steer is good, but the climax of his work is being dragged by the foot by a runaway horse. Miss Stedman is a beautiful young woman who can ride a horse and act. Her facial expressions in the strong scenes of the picture are good. She is brilliant and fit co-star for the clever Mix.
The picture runs Tuesday and Wednesday matinees and nights.

PUBLICITY LAW LEGAL

Supreme Court Upholds the Constitutionality of the Law Which Requires Newspapers to Publish Names of Owners, Etc.

Washington, June 10.—As interpreted by it, the supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the newspaper publicity law enacted as part of the postal appropriation act of 1912. The particular section attacked was to bar every newspaper and periodical from the mails unless the editors, owners, stockholders and bondholders, and the average daily circulation and thereafter immediately published the statement. It also forbade, under penalty of a fine, the publication of paid-for articles without marking them "advertisement."
A bitter fight was made against the law. The Journal of Commerce and Commission Bulletin of New York led. It sought to have the United States district court of southern New York enjoin the postmaster from enforcing the act on the ground that it was unconstitutional. The objection then raised was that the law abridged the freedom of the press by seeking to regulate the newspaper business. The government defended the law as a regulation of the use of the second class mail privileges.
The New York court sustained the validity of the law in this case, as it did that brought by the Lewis Publishing company of New York. It is said that the law affects more than 27,000 publications in the United States.
Chief Justice White interpreted the objection as being not a restriction of the freedom of the press, but merely as affixing additional conditions for admission of newspaper to the special privilege of the second class mails.
In the course of his opinion he said:
"Was the provision intended simply to supplement the existing legislation relative to second class mail matter, or was it enacted as an exertion of legislative power to regulate the press, to curtail its freedom, and under the assumption that there was a right to compel obedience to command of legislation having that object in view to deprive one who refused to obey of all right to use the mail service."
When the question is thus defined, its solution is free from difficulty, since by its terms the provision only regulates second class mail and the exclusion from the mails for which it provides is not an exclusion from the mails generally but only from the right to participate in and enjoy the privileges accorded by the second class classification."

THEATERS

AT THE ORPHEUM.
Five young ladies, styling themselves the Gladstone sisters, do more "stunts" during the thirty minutes they occupy the boards at the Orpheum theatre this week than all the performers combined in many variety shows.
As an opener, the Misses Gladstone present a character singing sketch that warms the audience from the start. Following closely upon their introduction a group perform a dance similar to the famous Yama Yama of Three Twins fame. Before the audience has ceased applauding, the young ladies begin an acrobatic performance that resembles a whirlwind. One event followed another with lightning like speed. At the close of the act, the entire quintette appears in an exhibition of rapid dancing.
In addition to the vaudeville act, there are three reels of pictures.
A change of program is made every other night in pictures and the Gladstone sisters also give a different performance.

HANDCARS AS A THING OF THE PAST

Handcars on the sections of the Oregon Short Line will soon be things of the past or will only be used occasionally. The handcars are being replaced by the more efficient gasoline motors. Already there are 85 of the motors in use.
Where from four to six can ride on the handcars, the motors carry from 12 to 16 men and a speed of from 15 to 20 miles an hour can be secured. The time consumed in going from the house to the place where the repairs are to be made has been greatly reduced, at the same time the cars are not so heavy but what they can be easily lifted from the tracks when a train is to pass.

OGDEN WILL BE SEEN IN THE MOVIES

At a special meeting of the Ogden Publicity bureau directorate, at the Weber club this afternoon, the proposition of the North American Motion Picture company of Denver, as presented through its traveling representative, G. B. Merrick, was approved. If the references furnished to the bureau prove to be satisfactory, a reel of pictures, 1000 feet long, will be taken in Ogden within the next two weeks.
Mr. Merrick stated to the directors that his company has 40 picture houses throughout the middle west where the reel would be shown. He will deliver to the directors statements setting the average attendance at the several theatres to show the bureau just what will be given for the money expended.
As the difficulty so far in the efforts of the bureau to secure motion pictures has been in securing a contract for the demonstration of the films, the directors were pleased with the proposition of the Denver company.
In order to keep the object of the reel advertising as far from the minds of the audience as possible and to make the reel more valuable to picture houses, a story will be weaved throughout the scenes. It is probable that Captain Bridger, the man who met Brigham Young and his pioneers, will be recalled from the grave, to assist in giving Ogden publicity.

If present plans are followed, the story will open with Captain Bridger, dressed in his backwoods clothing, looking down upon Ogden from the peak at Malan's heights. From that point he will wander through the streets, the parks, up the canyon and across the cutoff with the camera man following closely at his heels, recording all that the trapper sees in the region that was a wilderness during his life.
"There is no doubt that an exceedingly interesting reel of pictures will be secured with the features that Ogden offers," said I. L. Reynolds, who acted as secretary in J. D. Larson's absence. "With the canyon and the cutoff, and about which many have read and heard, the reel should prove popular in any city exhibited. The directors and myself feel that Ogden will receive the best kind of publicity through the motion pictures and measures will be taken to have an early demonstration of the reel in an Ogden theatre."
The Denver company specializes on commercial work and upon their business cards guarantee to show the film upon a screen 48 hours after the pictures are taken. In the case of Ogden, however, a few days will be required after the pictures are taken before the reel is shown for the first time in the Orpheum theatre.

THE LAW AND THE OUTLAW

At the Isis Theatre is some sizzler of a picture. The greatest western picture since the Century Millionaire and fully its equal.
Tom Mix, the world's most daring cowboy in the role of "Dakota" Wilson, the outlaw escapes while handcuffed by rolling down a steep rocky embankment. He is dragged over the ground by his frightened horse, he saves the life of Rancher Watson's daughter by "bulldozing" the maddened steer and several other astounding and death defying feats of cowboy daring are shown. There is a fierce battle for supremacy when two herds of frenzied steers meet and in all it is one of the greatest western pictures ever produced. At the Isis Theatre tonight, Wednesday matinee and Wednesday night, 10 cents; children 5 cents.
