POLO GAME FOR TROPHY

United States and English Teams Meet at Westbury, Long Island—Thirty Thousand People Will Witness the Game—Line Up of the Teams

New York, June 10.—Fair weather brought out a great crowd of sports-loving persons today for the first of the polo matches between the United States and English teams for possession of the Westchester cup. The trophy for many years has been regarded as emblematic of the world's championship and the enthusiasts who flocked to the scene of the contest on Long Island felt no doubt that the opposing forces represented the best combinations of mallet wielders on mounts in the polo world today.

By bridge and tube by automobile and train, the throng started early today for Westbury, Long Island, where the Meadowbrook country club was prepared to accommodate the largest crowd that ever witnessed a polo game here. Additions to the stands which were in use when the American team defeated England two years ago had made it possible to care for nearly 30,000 persons, a crowd comparing favorably with those seen at many of the championship baseball games, although polo as a sport has generally been regarded as limited to its following. As usual, men and women of society circles, were conspicuous in the crowds.

Although not official representing the United States in this peaceful trial at arms with England, Secretary of the Treasury William G. Adoo was among those for whom a box had been reserved, while the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, was expected to be present to encourage the king's men. The United States army, which recently has taken up polo, was also expected to be represented by Major Thomas H. Barry, Major General Leonard Wood, Colonel Henry P. Allen and Colonel Charles G. Treat.

The fashionable colonies at Newport, Lenox and Tuxedo were reported as practically depleted by the rush of society to the game and many came from more distant points. Conspicuous in the throng were many who had been spectators during the past week at another international contest, the Davis cup tennis preliminary in which the Americans defeated the Australasians and sporting gossip in the corridors of the large hotels were strangely mixed with the vocabulary of the tennis court and the polo field, as the enthusiasts triumphed over one victory and discussed the chances of another.

So many overnight changes had been made in the polo situation that this feature was the center of the

POLO GOSSIP

The final decision of the polo committee to pit the old "big four" against the English challengers developed a shortening of the odds reported in the betting but the English seemed to rule a favorite.

The lineup as agreed upon today included no further changes, although there was still gossip of a proposal in the English camp to substitute Lord Wedehouse for Captain Lockett in back. It was doubtful, however, that this move would be in the first game.

It was doubtful, however, that this move would be made in the first game. The lineup therefore stood as follows:

American No. 1, L. Waterbury. No. 2, J. M. Waterbury, Jr. No. 3, H. P. Whitney. Back, Devereaux Milburn. England No. 1, Captain L. St. G. Cheape. No. 2, Captain Noel Edwards. No. 3, Captain R. G. Ritson. Back, Captain Vivian Lockett.

The English playing contingent moved over early today from the Piping Rock club, where they have been practicing, to the Meadowbrook course, followed by a squad of ponies in charge of their grooms. Although the game was not scheduled to begin until 4:30 o'clock, there was much activity at the Meadowbrook quarters in preparation for the fray.

The change in the American team by the reinstatement of the old four made it uncertain just how the players would be mounted for the first test, but it was expected that only about twenty-two of their string of ponies would be used.

These were carefully selected and their groom insisted that they were little if at all inferior to the speedy stable sent over by the duke of Westminster. Among them were Conover, Flora, Grayling and Mohawk, which were to make their third entry into an international contest. Hobson, Little Mary, Miss Hobbs, Scion and Yanqui were to be saddled for the second time against England, while the others were fast and clever animals that had shown ability to follow the ball and keep up with the fastest of games.

The Englishmen also selected twenty-two of their ponies to perform the bulk of the work. In the equipment of mallets the teams differed considerably, only Captain Cheape of the invading forces using the Malacca shaft used by the Americans. Captain Ritson had a flexible stick of Indian cane, which was very light, while Captain Edwards chose a bamboo shaft an inch longer than those of his companions. Captain Whitney of the American team had the most formidable looking mallet, 53 inches long and weighing 24 ounces with a mallet head an inch longer than that of any other.

PHILADELPHIA, PITTSBURG, CINCINNATI AND MOST CITIES IN THIS COUNTRY WHERE BOXING CONTESTS ARE PERMITTED are subjected to rigid physical examinations before entering the ring—or, at least, he rules laid down by the governing boards call for such examinations. Had such precaution been taken in the Calgary bout McCarty's ailment, if any existed, or lack of condition, would most likely have been discovered by the physicians and a fatality prevented.

While the unfortunate ending of the bout is to be greatly deplored, I do not think it will hurt professional boxing to any degree. Naturally those enemies of the sport who are always denouncing it as brutal and all that sort of thing are making capital out of the affair, but I believe boxing as at present conducted in most sporting centers of the country has too great a hold on the people to be affected seriously by McCarty's death.

TENNIS CHAMPION SAILS FOR ENGLAND

New York, June 10.—Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, who was formerly the intercollegiate tennis champion, was booked as a passenger on the steamship Kron Prinzessin Cecilie, sailing today for England, as the first of four prominent American players who will enter the all-England championship tournament which begins on the courts at Wimbledon near London, on Monday, June 23.

As announced, Maurice E. McLoughlin, the Californian, R. Norris Williams, the young Harvard player, and Harold H. Hackett of New York, who have just defeated the Australasians in the Davis cup preliminary, will follow next Thursday on the steamer Baltic to complete the quartet of American entrants, and incidentally to get practice for the later rounds in the Davis cup competitions.

McLoughlin proved such a fiery opponent yesterday in adding the third and decisive point to the American score in the Davis cup preliminary that the Australasians dubbed him "the Californian comet." His admirers among his own countrymen today could find no words too strong for his praise, and insisted that he was proving himself to be without a peer in tennis, the world over. If there were any who posed as critics of his work it was on the ground that his defense was not quite as strong as his service. His forehand cross court passing stroke was wonderfully accurate, but his backhand stroke at some times made too close to the body, handicapping its effectiveness.

FATALITY WILL NOT HURT GAME

(By James J. Corbett, Former Champion of the World) Without definite knowledge of the conditions prior to the Luther McCarty-Arthur Peiky match which resulted so fatally, I would venture the guess that Luther entered the ring in poor physical condition. And whether this was due to any natural or inherent ailment or neglect of training in preparing for the bout I am not prepared to say, but had he trained as an athlete should have for a contest of skill and endurance it is not conceivable that a blow to the heart or to the jaw would have affected him the way it did.

There is nothing particularly dangerous in a punch over the heart or on the jaw. I have assimilated many of them during my career, as any man must who follows the strenuous game of boxing. I was beaten by Jim Jeffries at Coney Island by a punch on the jaw in the twenty-third round. Jeff weighed probably 60 pounds more than I at the time, and could hit a powerful blow, yet I felt no bad effects from the blow. But I was in perfect physical condition at the time, as near as as hard work and conscientious and intelligent training could make me.

It is ridiculous and unjust for the Canadian authorities to hold Arthur Peiky for his part in the unfortunate affair. Investigation will probably show that McCarty did not train as he should have done for the Peiky bout. Like the great majority of fight followers everywhere, McCarty and his manager, Billy McCarney, may have looked upon the match as "easy money." Certainly no one who had seen Peiky box in the east ever thought for a moment that he would have a chance to beat McCarty. Luthers very likely was overconfident of success and consequently neglected his training. And if such was the case, Manager McCarney is not entirely blameless in the matter. It was his duty to the public as well as his fighter, to see that Luther was in fit physical condition to fight, or not to have allowed him to start at all. Then, too, conditions existing in Calgary are to an extent responsible for McCarty's death. In New York

WALDO UNFIT SAYS REPORT

New York, June 10.—The question of the fitness of Rhinelandier Waldo to continue as police commissioner of New York City was passed on to the full board of aldermen today by the aldermanic committee which for nearly a year has been investigating police conditions. By a five to four vote yesterday the committee adopted its report with the recommendation that Mayor Gaynor be called upon immediately to remove Commissioner Waldo as "having by temperament and conduct shown himself unfit to occupy his office."

By the ordinary rules the report as it reaches the board of aldermen will be automatically laid upon the table for a week. It is said that the board stands practically tied at present on the question at issue, but that those who insist upon the removal of the commissioner are so determined upon the matter that they have perfected plans for an immediate appeal to Governor Sulzer in the event of the defeat of the report. This appeal would be taken by the bureau of municipal research, which has cooperated with the committee and which made possible a greatly increased scope of inquiry by obtaining from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., a gift of $25,000. The governor has authority to go over the head of the mayor in the removal of a city commissioner if he desires.

State of Utah, County of Weber, ss: I, JOHN PINGREE, Cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

JOHN PINGREE, Cashier. Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of June, 1913. J. C. NYE, Notary Public.

LIGHTNING IN CACHE KILLS TEAMSTER

Logan, June 9.—Erna Nielsen of Smithfield was struck by lightning while a storm was passing over that place this afternoon and instantly killed as was the team he was driving. The young man was driving in the eastern part of the city when the bolt fell. He was about 22 years of age and leaves a widow and two small children.

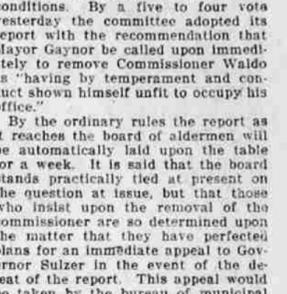

A report from Wellsville is to the effect that three sisters—Maggie, Maud and Blanche Leatham—were struck by lightning on Saturday evening while on their way to a dance. All were painfully hurt, but Maud suffered the most severe injuries, being burned on the side of the head and down one side of the body. Her shoe was torn from her foot and the foot badly burned. The other two girls had their feet burned and a tree near where they stood was torn to splinters.

OPENS FREE KINDERGARTEN

Brigham City, June 9.—The free kindergarten school to be conducted in this city by the Civic Improvement club opened this morning in the Central school with an enrollment of more than forty attended the opening today. The school was one week late in opening, due to the fact that the club could not get an instructor sooner. The forenoon session of the school will be held in the Central school and in the afternoon the rooms in the new Lincoln school will be used. The officers of the club were busy today in getting the children down to work. There is a likelihood of the membership reaching 100 this year.
