Scandinavian Outing—The Scandinavians of Ogden and Utah will hold their annual outing at Lagoons tomorrow, and a large crowd of Swedes, Danes and Norwegians and their friends are expected. C. J. A. Lindquist will be the orator of the day.

The next issue of the Telephone Directory will go to press on August 5. Persons desiring changes in listing or service or wishing to subscribe for new service should notify this office at once. Telephone No. 2600. The Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co. F. W. Carroll, District Manager.

Lagoon Outing.—The Scandinavians of Salt Lake and Ogden and vicinity will have an outing to Lagoons next Tuesday, the 5th. As this will no doubt be their final excursion for the season, preparations are made for an elaborate time, and a record-breaking attendance is looked for, especially in view of the 25c rate from both points. Swedes, Danes and Norwegians, with their friends, will this time join hands for a rattling good time in that beautiful resort, Lagoons, next Tuesday. Everybody is invited—no restrictions on account of nationality. A good time for all is the main object.

House Entered.—While Henry C. Olsen, 465 Twentieth street, was away from his home Saturday, burglars became active but were observed by neighbors and the police arrived just minutes after the intruders were frightened away from the house by the return of the owner. As most of the valuables had been stored elsewhere for safe keeping the burglars secured but little of value.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

SCHMALTZ.—Funeral services for Jennie Schmaltz were held yesterday afternoon in the South Weber meeting house and were attended by scores of friends and relatives, while the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Elder Adolph Fennelsoff officiated and, in his eulogy, spoke of the splendid character possessed by the young woman who was known as a promising young musician. Others who spoke were James Harberson, James H. Cook, John C. Child and William Moyes. Two duets, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Some Time We'll Understand," were given by Mrs. Bernice Glazier and Mrs. Bernice Erickson. "Jesus is Calling" was given by Mrs. Erickson and Joseph Cornelius sang "Perfect Love." Six young men acted as pall bearers and interment took place in the City cemetery.

OPENING OF A STATIONERY STORE

Wilford Bramwell, under the name of the Bramwell Book & Stationery company, has opened a stationery store at 232 1/2 Washington avenue, next to the I. L. Clark store. He is to have a general line of book stationery and sundries and office and school supplies, and the unpacking of stock has commenced. The new stationery house will be able to fill orders of all sizes and of every description. Mr. Bramwell was formerly in charge of the Utah Book and Stationery company and is an Ogden product with a good record back of him.

NEW BUSINESS COLLEGE IN OGDEN

L. A. Roach, a brother of G. F. Roach, head of the commercial department of the Ogden High school, arrived Saturday from Everett, Wash., for the purpose of establishing a business college in the Thomas block in this city.

Mr. Roach had charge of the commercial department of the Everett High school and comes well recommended. He will open his school which is to be known as the Central Business college, on September 1.

SHOP TALK.—A young woman of Baltimore was asked by a friend as to the likeableness of a young chap who for some time had been paying devoted attention to the young woman in question. "Oh," replied the fair one, carelessly, "William is a nice fellow, but he talks shop too much." "How's that?" was the next question. "I thought he was a street car conductor." "So he is," returned the other, "and he's continually saying, 'Sit up closer!'"—Exchange.

HEALTH RECORD FOR MONTH OF JULY

Whooping cough, numbering 17 cases, and typhoid fever, 10 cases, head the list of contagious diseases submitted by City Sanitary Inspector George Shorten to the monthly meeting of health at the monthly meeting this morning.

Because of the agitation against failure of physicians to report births, the record for this month has male births numbering 59 and female births numbering 65. The number of contagious diseases in quarantine are: Scarlet fever 2, smallpox 3, diphtheria 2, typhoid fever 10, whooping cough 17, measles 1, chicken pox 2. There were 33 deaths during the month of July.

RECALLS THE CANYON WRECK

Mrs. Ann E. Sherman, widow of the late John M. Sherman, who met his death in the canyon car collision July 4, has petitioned the district court for letters of administration.

The petitioner relates that Mr. Sherman died intestate July 10, 1912, leaving real property valued at about $2,700 and personal property consisting of a damaged suit against the Ogden Rapid Transit.

It will be recalled that Mr. Sherman was motorman of the eastbound canyon car, the one in which so many people were seriously injured, three being killed. Mr. Sherman had both legs broken and suffered internal injuries.

Mrs. Sherman states in her petition that, besides herself, there are nine surviving heirs, children of the deceased.

ERIE RAILROAD OFFICIAL HERE

Geo. F. Brownell, first vice president of the Erie railroad, accompanied by his wife, two sons and Miss Mary Abbott, arrived here this morning, to remain here three days on a visit with J. W. Abbott and family.

Mr. Brownell, who is one of the big railroad men of the east, is a brother-in-law of Mr. Abbott.

YOUNG OGDEN MEN TO MINE IN ALASKA

George L. Abbott, son of J. W. Abbott, and Abbott G. Glick left for Kodiak, Alaska, on Saturday to be gone three months.

The young men have caught the mining fever of the great northwest and they are proceeding to claims which already are in possession of the Abbott family.

If the work before winter brings favorable results, the Ogdens boys will plan a more extensive campaign of development for next season.

BODY BROUGHT HOME FROM IDAHO

The body of Mrs. Emma B. Stone, the widow of W. S. Stone, was brought to Ogden this morning from Twin Falls, Idaho, where death occurred Saturday of chronic Bright's disease.

Mrs. Stone, who is the mother of E. B. Stone, manager of the American Linen Supply company, with her daughter Elsie, was visiting with a married daughter, Mrs. Maude Moore, in Twin Falls, when death came. Although she had been a sufferer of Bright's disease for some time, her health was not alarming when she left Ogden. Three days before her death, however, she grew suddenly worse and death came Saturday.

Mrs. Stone was born in England July 20, 1845. She had lived in Ogden for many years where she gained a host of friends because of her lovable nature. She is survived by the following sons and daughters:

F. W. Stone, H. T. Stone, E. B. Stone, Mrs. W. H. Parry, and Miss Elsie Stone, all of Ogden, and Mrs. Maude Moore of Twin Falls.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the Fourth ward meeting house with Bishop E. A. Olsen officiating.

A chemical laboratory of Glessen university where Liebig did his epoch-making work a century ago, has been restored as a shrine for scientists.

KILLED WHILE AT WORK ON TOWER

Sidney C. Thompson, aged 28 years, a signal maintainer for the Southern Pacific company, with headquarters at Lakeside, was killed this afternoon by electrocution while he was working on a signal tower near Lakeside station. The body is being brought to Ogden this afternoon on Southern Pacific train No. 4, which will arrive at 4:35 o'clock.

The peculiar part of the accident is that Thompson is a brother-in-law of Morris Fretwell, the signal maintainer who was killed in the local yards on July 27. The father-in-law, Joseph Fife of Riverdale, is suffering of a nervous shock as a result of the two deaths of his sons-in-law.

ing on a signal tower near Lakeside the details received in Ogden were meager, but relatives have received information to the effect that death resulted in the same manner as that of Fretwell.

TWO NOVICES IN AERO RACING MAKE WORLD RECORD CRUISE IN 880-MILE FLYING BOAT TRIP OVER LAKES

Aviator Havens and O. B. R. Vorplank.

Aviator Havens and his passenger, O. B. R. Vorplank, owner of the flying boat, plowed through the water of the Detroit river with a beautiful swash, on the boat's glide to the Detroit boat landing, after successfully completing the 880-mile trip from Chicago around the lakes and making a world record. Neither of the two men had ever before participated in aero racing.

Charley Hall, Ray Collins, Hugh Bedient and Buck O'Brien, were the heavy swat-smiths of the Philadelphia Athletics. But even these famous artillerymen were not expected to make any noticeable impression on the phenomenal hurlers of Beantown who had been the sensation of the American league in 1912. Four of Stahl's hurlers had pitched for averages that totaled up about the 600 mark and O'Brien, winning five more games than he had lost was credited with 581.

The Red Hosed moundsmen did not hesitate to dis-illusion their admirers as soon as the championship campaign of 1913 was over. They slumped with a thump and a bump right at the starting line. The losing fever developed by the Boston pitchers proved contagious and eventually their team mates of the inner and outer defenses proved very effective aides in fumbling away a game that one of the pitchers seemed for some reason or other unable to lose single handed.

Indeed, O'Brien's case was so manifest that Dr. Stahl, in an effort to put an end to the epidemic quarantined him with the Chicago White Sox. While the change may have lightened the Red Sox burden to a certain extent, it is not known that O'Brien's exile helped him any or added any much needed strength to the White Sox staff.

A comparison of the pitching averages of these former stars for this season and 1912, will give an accurate idea of how their brilliancy has been dimmed. Last season, Wood, who was the pitching sensation of the year, had a grand total average of .872. He won 34 games and lost but 5. So far this season his average is well below the 700 mark. He has already lost as many games as he dropped all of last season, but his victories do not yet total 15.

In 1912, Hugh Bedient was credited with a total average of .667. He won 20 games and lost but 16. This year his average is hovering about the .500 mark, and considers himself lucky according to reports from the inside.

Charley Hall won 15 and lost but 8, last year, for an average of .652. This season he was out of the game for a spell with a bad leg. What chance he did have in the box this season, Charley did not show much.

His average is way below the .350 mark. Ray Collins had 11 wins against 8 setbacks last year. His average was .636. After getting away to a head start at the beginning of the present season, this veteran recovered and settled down to his true form. He manages to keep his average up near the .567 mark.

Last year O'Brien got better than even break, with 18 wins and 13 defeats. This season he has apparently hit the tohoggan for keeps. His average is below the .300 mark, and his team-mates hold out little hope for his ever climbing back.

Just what caused this sudden reversal of form in the Boston pitchers is unexplained. During the last world's series there were rumors of a fight in the dressing room in which O'Brien and Wood were said to have been the principals. In an affair of this kind it is inevitable that the players are bound to take sides. The forming of factions has been the ruin of more than one good club and the Boston Red Sox was no exception to the rule.

MOHAMMEDAN COUNTRIES

The birth of the modernized type of humanity, of both sexes, in Moslem lands undoubtedly is due to the impact of the Occident upon the Orient, the missionary influence playing a large part in the liberalization of Mohammedan men and women. It is noteworthy that in every Moslem country, without a single exception, the first girls' school was established under the auspices and through the instrumentality of the western (and also American) religious teachers. Today no part of the Moslem world (with the exception of Afghanistan, which still stubbornly repels the Christian propagandists) is without such missionary academies.

As a rule these institutions are of an elementary character, and only teach the rudiments of the three R's, a little sewing, and simple domestic economy. Girls of all classes are admitted, and in all cases proselytizing is subordinate to educational work. However, here and there the missionaries are conducting academies where the highest form of culture is imparted exclusively to young ladies. The most prominent endeavor of this kind is the American college for Girls in Constantinople, established in 1871 as a high school, and in 1899 raised to the status of a college. Most of the members of its faculty are American women with American university diplomas, and it is being maintained through the liberality of American philanthropists. At present it has 125 pupils, about thirty-one of them Moslems, who are taught English literature and composition, German, French, vernacular, mathematics, the Bible, physiology, history, physics, Latin, Greek, chemistry, biology, ethics, and music. Another institution maintained by missionaries for the higher education of women in Moslem lands is the Isabella Thoburn college of Lucknow, India, which owes its existence to American generosity.—Review of Reviews.

SAYS GIRL'S WEIRD STORY IS FALSEHOOD

Miss Josephine Selwood.

Frederick S. Mordant, president of the National Railway Publishing Company, arrested in Chicago on the charge of abducting seventeen-year-old Josephine Selwood, a pretty department store employee, declares his arrest was a "frame-up." Mordant is out under $2000 bond.

The girl charges that Mordant, who is fifty years old and married, flirted with her in the department store, took her to dinners and to the theatre, and then, under the name of "Jack Randolph," went through a fake marriage ceremony with her.

IT'S SIGNIFICANT TO HIM.

"Your people had not come to this country at the time of the Civil war, had they?"

"No."

"I suppose Memorial day is, therefore, of no particular significance to you?"

"It ain't I should say it was. I got all my money invested in amusement enterprises."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A CONSTANT READER.

"What is your favorite diversion in summer?" asked the serious girl.

"Reading," replied the young man, who was trying to make an impression.

"But don't you need outdoor recreation?"

"Yes, I stand outdoors and read the baseball bulletins."—Washington Star.

HIS ADVERTISING CHANCE.

"I suppose the parent of young Lord Softpat must feel dreadfully cut up over his engagement to little Tottle Poser of the Gaiety?"

"Cut up? Why, say, if it wasn't for Tottle nobody would ever have known that Softpat had any parents."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
