RECALLS THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

A controversy is on between Colonel Woodruff and Colonel Seaman as to the relative merits of the Russian and Japanese armies in the last war, from a health standpoint. Colonel Woodruff maintains that the official reports of the war just issued, prove that more Japanese were afflicted with preventable disease during the conflict than Russians; that the surgeons of the Mikado army had not given their wounded first class care and the wounded men had not shown resistance or great recuperative power. To this Colonel Seaman replies that Colonel Woodruff has misunderstood the figures with which he was dealing; that the Japanese hospitals were filled with Russians left by Kurapatkin's army in its flight northward from the Yalu, and the prisoners swelled the list charged to the Japanese.

Colonel Seaman says the total sick in the Japanese army was 251,185 in two years, and the Russian 358,077 in twenty months, and he attributes the better showing made by the Japanese to the medical preparedness which he illustrates by relating that when the forces were drawn up for what was expected to be the great battle of the war, 62,000 clean beds stood waiting with plenty of attendants to receive the wounded, who never came.

Dr. W. A. Evans, reviewing the contentions of the two army officers, says:

"It is quite possible that Colonel Seaman has given the Japs more credit than they deserve. It is equally possible that Colonel Woodruff has given them less credit than they deserve. With such figures as 30,000 unclassified, 48,000 discharged, and about 90,000 missing,—no detailed information being given,—statistics can throw these lumps as their sympathies direct, and the showing will depend upon how they are thrown. It is well to bear in mind that the Japs are an exceedingly unwarlike people. Those who have been in contact with civilization have absorbed everything in sight. They are up to standard. They apply what they have listened to others discuss, and even adopt as a matter of form, but not as a matter of fact. On the other hand, the Japs of the interior are still savages, and not even their splendid fellowship suffices to bring them up to standard.

"This point was made clear by Kitazato in his article on smallpox in Japan. The up-to-date parts of Japan are vaccinated and smallpox does not trouble them. The wild portions of the Japanese people suffer as do wild people elsewhere.

"It is more than probable that Dr. Seaman was somewhat deceived by the Oriental minds with whom he was in contact. But even at that, there is glory enough for the Japs, also there is for us most valuable material for study. This war furnishes the first illustration of the principles worked out by our people for Cuba being applied to forces in the field under conditions of actual warfare."

HOW THE JUDICIARY HAS DISAPPOINTED.

At the meeting of the American Bar association at Montreal, E. R. Sunderland, of the University of Michigan, addressed himself to the failure of the lawyers to awaken to the fact that public opinion is demanding more justice from the courts. He said: "Criticism of the law, the courts and the legal profession is one of the popular customs of the day. The public have become convinced that there is gross inefficiency in the administration of the law. It has weighed current procedure in the balance and found it wanting. There is too much delay, expense and uncertainty about it. It does not produce results commensurate with the efforts employed."

This acknowledgment of the shortcomings of the judiciary causes the Pittsburgh Leader to make this comment:

"Recently a writer expressed the opinion that the legal profession has made less progress than any other. The justice administered by Solomon was more satisfactory than the administration of the law today. The gross inefficiency in the administration of the law was recognized long ago by the public, but the lawyers are just beginning to see it. The lawyers were blinded by their prejudices. The suggestion of a judicial recall aroused the lawyers and the courts to a frenzy; they refused to reform themselves and did not want the public to undertake the work, although the people suffer from the inefficiency that is so apparent. A speaker before the Bar association declares that the inefficiency of the administration of the law is due to a lack of regard for the finer ethical standards of the processes of the law, and that no legislation can reach this problem. The lawyers are still fighting against the enactment of laws to regulate the practices of their profession and prevent unnecessary delay and expense and the uncertainty of the administration of justice. The people have had too much ethics and law and not enough justice."

The Progressive party, if it has accomplished nothing more than arouse the people to the weaknesses of the bench, has proved worthy of perpetuation. Eventually the recall will be made to apply to judges and their decisions, if the abuses of legal procedure are not remedied.

WHEN EMPLOYMENT IS NOT TO BE FOUND.

A laborer complains that work is not always as readily obtainable as some would declare and he makes this explanation:

"If you have walked the streets all day under the delusion that you were hunting for work or have stood for hours in the lines answering a help wanted and go home with your heart as heavy as the sinker you were afraid to spend your last pennies on, it serves you perfectly right if your wife, who has read in the paper that there is plenty of work, destroys your last bit of courage with reproaches.

"A helper is needed on the eighth story of a skeleton skyscraper. You may be a land animal and given to blind staggers when walking on air, but climb right up. There's the work for you.

"If you are a bookkeeper out of a job, back to the land, my boy. You don't know a seed potato from a pullet's egg, have no land and no farmer will have you, but you can dig on somebody's land until you are arrested, and lo, a job on the rock-pile. Nobody is interested in whether you eat or not as long as you are good. A dangerous doctrine to teach? I'm not teaching it; just pointing out how society teaches it. However, I am conscious of a perverse respect for the people who are getting tired of just working and who want a chance to LIVE."

Just at present there are half a dozen avenues of employment for men in Ogden, but the complaint of man-out-of-work, nevertheless, has merit. Often there is work in abundance for those who can bend over all day at concrete mixing or who can run along the narrow iron beams of a skyscraper, while there is nothing for the men who have been trained in other lines, as office work for instance.

In this great resourceful country of ours, no one willing to work should be deprived of an opportunity, and yet there are times when hundreds of thousands of willing fellows are out of employment, and this is especially true of the larger cities.

MANTI NOT AS EASY AS OGDEN

The Manti Messenger does not intend to have its "leg pulled" by Salt Lake without uttering a protest. That paper says:

"Salt Lake is strictly 'on the job' when it comes to working the rest of the intermountain country. The boosters there are now figuring on securing the services of a dozen or more brass bands at the coming fair by paying the price of one band. They are promoting a band contest week when nearly $500 in cash will be awarded the winners. As an inducement, contestants will be admitted to the fair grounds free only on date concert is held. The highest prize offered is $125—just about enough to board the band one day in Salt Lake. No thanks; nothing doing in this vicinity."

That is the one objectionable feature to these big hurrahs for Salt Lake. Back of them is the extreme selfishness that demands everything for that city and concedes nothing to the other communities, except in a parsimonious way.

A few well directed snubs might correct this niggardliness and help to establish reciprocity by which good things would be passed around. What we object to is the Salt Lake spirit of grab. One day the "Rockies" in the capital resolve to wipe Ogden off the transcontinental trail, and the next day they come bearing olive branches accompanied by appeals to the "loyalty and patriotism of Ogden" as they pass the hat.

Any community to be respected must possess enough pride to resent being spit on, and sufficient discernment to distinguish between honest friends and scheming flatterers.

BUSINESS IS ON THE IMPROVE

The trade journals continue to report business good and improving. Dun's Review says that, notwithstanding the crops losses, it is gratifying that sentiment remains cheerful. While the delay in the adoption of the pending tariff bill acts as a check, business, nevertheless, has emerged from its customary summer lethargy and with the approach of the fall season the revival of activity is becoming more pronounced.

Bradstreet's says that business, though irregular, tends to broaden. The crop deterioration, while reducing tonnage, has increased prices, so that the farmers are in fair prospect of obtaining as much money from their produce as a year ago. The west, where the harvests are the largest in years, is facing an unprecedented period of good times, and no part of the west will enjoy more of this prosperity than Ogden.

WORLD'S MARKETS

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 6.—The only important move in stocks today was a slump in New Haven following the withdrawal of J. P. Morgan and Company as fiscal agents of the road. New Haven opened a point off at 90 3/4 and declined to 90, but soon rallied to 90 7/8. Changes in the rest of the market were unusually small and revealed no trend in either direction. Reading and Copper opened slightly higher, Union Pacific was unchanged and Steel was up 1/2.

The market closed strong. Trading during today's half session was dull and in many active stocks there were no transactions.

A contributory cause of the dullness was the holiday on the London exchange, which eliminated foreign interest in dealings.

Uncertainty as to the market effect of the latest developments in New Haven affairs lent considerable interest to the opening. The weakness of New Haven and Steel threatened for a time to undermine the cheerfulness which surrounded yesterday's operations. Some of the traders put out small lines of stock. These sales, however, had little effect.

Monday's report on the copper industry is expected to reveal an unusually large reduction in supplies, which has been foreshadowed by the advance in the metal both here and abroad to a 1-2 basis.

Gains from one to four points were scored by various specialties today but improvement of the stand railroad stocks averaged only about half a point.

Bonds were steady.

Chicago Grain.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Frost in Canada and rain in Minnesota and North Dakota helped give the wheat market today an upturn, after an early dip. First prices ranged from 1-4 to 3-8c off to a shade advance, with the rally extending to 1-4 to 3-8 to 1-2 5-8c above last night's level.

Dry, hot weather over the greater part of the belt put strength into corn. The market opened unchanged to 3-8c higher and continued to advance.

Oats rose with corn and demand was of a miscellaneous sort, but on a liberal scale.
