LAST & THOMAS

OGDEN GIRL IN MAGAZINE STORY

The last issue of the Cosmopolitan contains a story of Hazel Tout of Ogden. There are two pages of beautiful halftone poses of the Ogden girl with descriptive footnotes as follows:

"She is tall, robust, slender, and a blonde of purest type.

"She got the title role in 'The Pink Lady' because she has learned to play the violin when a child."

"A fascinating Mormon, who owes everything to that church."

The Cosmopolitan pays this compliment to the young actress:

The roseate "Pink Lady," Hazel Dawn, seemed to come suddenly out of the sky—where roseate dawns usually do come from in fact. No one in New York knew anything about her, at her debut in the piquant music-farce which McLellan and Caryl transmogrified from the French, a couple of seasons back. And New York is still more or less guessing, though there are no dark secrets about the young artist.

Smiling dawn soon became radiant morning, in the full sunshine of popularity, yet with dewy freshness, still undimmed—when Miss Hazel disappeared behind a summer-vacation cloud, as suddenly as she came.

Now she is back from London, and it seems it wasn't a vacation, after all. It was a matter of study and gowns, and preparation generally for the coming season's offering. This will be a brand-new musical piece, probably to be called "The Little Cafe," made from a Parisian farce of Tristan Bernard by the Messrs. McLellan and Caryl who are responsible for the other two works of the captivating trilogy—"The Pink Lady," and "Oh! Oh! Delphine."

Her family name is Tout, Hazel and her four equally clever and pretty sisters are the children of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Tout of Ogden, Utah. They are Mormons, of the real old original stock that migrated with Joseph Smith from Nauvoo, Ill., nearly three-quarters of a century ago. Papa Tout had musical talent, which all the little Touts inherited.

"I was taken to London when I was nine years ago," Hazel Dawn relates. "It was as a violinist that I started in—actually made my professional concert debut when I was thirteen. But the violin was slow running, so I got a chance at the Gaiety theatre, and went on in one of Paul Rubens' pieces—'Dear Little Denmark.'"

"When Mr. Ivan Caryl, the musical director of the Gaiety, picked me for the American production of 'The Pink Lady,' I had never played a principal part. I was to have sung 'Angeles; but circumstances and an odd chance led Mr. Erlanger to put me in the title-character. You know that violin solo, 'Beautiful Lady'—Well, they had a professional instrumentalist engaged just to execute that. One day at rehearsal the fancy took me, and I picked up the instrument and played that solo myself, and got away with it in fine style. And so I played the violin at the opening performance. You know the rest. I am not a star yet, and I don't wish to be, before my proper time. In the coming season's 'Little Cafe' aggregation, I'm simply one of the company—but it's going to be a high-class company."

Miss Hazel is proud to be a Mormon. She declares she owes everything to that church. It gives her human warmth and encouragement.

LIVELY FIGHT OVER PAVING CONTRACT

In paving material there is the Utah rock asphalt, the bitulithic, the Dolmarway and the ordinary asphalt, and, inasmuch as the city board of commissioners asked for bids for paving Twenty-fifth street from Washington to Harrison avenues with all of these materials and bids were made accordingly, the great question with the board of city commissioners this morning was not as to whom the contract should be awarded but what kind of material should be used. The board could not decide the question, so action was deferred until next Monday night, when the contract will be awarded.

Representatives of all the materials mentioned came before the board this morning advocating their particular kind, each urging the commissioners to consider only the bids offered for his material. However, there was no one especially advocating the ordinary asphalt paving and it is on this kind that more contractors offered bids. A number of people, including ex-Chief of Police of Salt Lake Sam M. Barlow, and A. A. Clark, were strong advocates of the Utah product and the city engineer stated that he had tested the Utah rock asphalt with satisfactory results, the material showing more life and resiliency than other materials used in paving.

The bitulithic forces contended that their material was the best and that the contract for the proposed paving should be awarded bidders on that material.

The bids offered were as follows:

Utah Rock Asphalt
A. A. Clark	$56,348.81
Bitulithic
Warren Brothers Company	$48,007.51
Strang & McGuire	$4,397.02
Dolarway
Northwestern Paving Co.	$58,832.23
Bird & Mendenhall	$6,905.78
A. A. Clark	$1,847.19
Asphalt
P. J. Moran	$51,017.49
Strang & McGuire	$7,608.79
J. P. O'Neill company	$9,152.79

Bids were offered for paving Fowler avenue with asphalt as follows:

J. P. O'Neill company	$4,993.33
P. J. Moran company	$5,061.52
Strang & McGuire	$5,894.42

The O'Neill company was the lowest bidder for paving the streets with asphalt.

The commissioners state that, aside from the fact that they have not yet decided on the material to be used, there are some legal questions they wish to consider before awarding the contract. The board gave no intimation as to what its choice of material will be.

W. R. Wheelwright, as spokesman for a number of property holders in the district to be paved, appeared before the board to demand the same class of work that was done on Washington avenue ten years ago, claiming that the work performed at that time is the only paving that has stood the test of time.

S. M. Barlow, representing the Utah Rock Asphalt association, exhibited to the commissioners this afternoon a cashier's check for $10,000 which he will deposit with the city authorities as an assurance of good faith that a surety bond in equal amount will be furnished as a ten-year maintenance bond for any contractor using the Utah rock asphalt in surfacing the street under the contract to be awarded Monday.

Protests against sidewalk district 123 were reported by the recorder to the city commissioners this morning and were referred to the engineer for computation.

Ordinances providing for sidewalk district 119 and sewer district 116 were passed and ordered sent to the Standard for publication.

Although the city engineer reported that jurisdiction had been gained in paving Lincoln avenue, from Twenty-sixth to Thirtieth streets, the matter was referred to the committee of the whole for further consideration.

The engineer reported that jurisdiction for opening Doxey avenue had been lost, there being 78.24 per cent protesting. The report was placed on file.

Claims from the engineering department for making connections between the pipe line of the Utah Light & Railway company and the city water mains near Coldwater canyon, amounting to $899.75, were allowed.

The report of the financial affairs of the city for the month of August was presented by the city auditor and placed on file. A recapitulation of the report shows the following receipts and disbursements:

WATSON HAS AN ANSWER Former Congressman Says That He Was Never in the Employ of the National Association of Manufacturers—Replies to the Charges of Mulhall

Washington, Sept. 12.—Former Representative James E. Watson of Indiana, before the house lobby committee today, made a general denial of Martin M. Mulhall's general charges that he was one of the active friends of the National Association of Manufacturers in congress during many years.

"At no time while I was in congress," said Watson, "was I in the employ of the National Association of Manufacturers for any purpose nor was I at any time a lobbyist or a lawyer for it."

Watson said he did work for the National Tariff Commission association, an organization of several hundred associations and many individuals, of which the National Association of Manufacturers was one. He declared that Mulhall's charges that he used his influence to put certain men of house committees and remove others was without foundation.

"You don't need to tell the sun to shine; you don't need to tell the birds to sing, any more than you needed to tell Uncle Joe Cannon who to appoint on committees," he said. "The committees were made up by Mr. Cannon, Busby, his secretary, and Asher Hinds, the house parliamentarian, and I never obtruded my opinions."

When asked to give an opinion on a man's fitness for a committee position, he gave it but went no further. Watson said he never was approached by any National Association of Manufacturers' officials to favor any legislation, and never was interested particularly, in any bills they favored, except an anti-injunction bill, and the proposed exemption of labor unions from the operation of the Sherman law. He said he held the same views as the association on those measures.

Watson explained Mulhall expected to assist him in his campaign for governor in 1908, but worked only a few months and did not make his promises good. He denied that Mulhall helped raise $22,000 in that campaign. His employment by the tariff association was about April 1, 1909, nearly a month after he left congress.

He said he was in charge of the campaign for a tariff commission, while the Payne bill was in the house and later in the senate.

"There was nothing secret or insidious about my employment," said he. "I was not in congress and I thought I had a right to that employment. I received $250 a week and my expenses and probably a retainer of $500. There may have been some talk of a contingent fee, but it must have been among the officers. I never heard anything about it."

"While I was whip of the house for six years," declared Watson, "I was intimately acquainted with almost every member, and I never knew a corrupt man in the house."

When questioned about lectures for the manufacturers or allied organizations, Watson diverted to take a shot at Secretary Bryan.

"He is the John D. Rockefeller of the chautauqua platform," said Watson. "He has made more money out of it than anybody else and he has gone about abusing the other fellows for making money."
