WAGON STRUCK BY A TRAIN NEAR THE HOT SPRINGS INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

This morning, at 10 o'clock, while attempting to cross the tracks at the Utah Hot Springs, Daniel Zundell of Willard, was run down by the Oregon Short Line Overland Limited No. 32 and badly injured. He was taken immediately to the Dee hospital where he later was reported resting easily.

An examination disclosed that Zundell had suffered a fracture of the right shoulder, his head and face were somewhat bruised and lacerated and the right side of his body was quite badly bruised.

When picked up by employees at the Hot Springs after the collision, Mr. Zundell was unconscious but he regained consciousness before reaching the city. The train that struck him stopped to pick up the injured man who was hurried with all possible speed to the ambulance waiting at the Union depot.

Mr. Zundell is past fifty years of age and his injuries will be rather severe on him because of his age. For a number of years he has hauled dressed chickens and other footstuffs to Ogden and other places for sale and he was on his way to Ogden this morning when the accident happened.

An eye-witness states that the train was coming down the line from Cache Valley at about 40 miles an hour as Mr. Zundell undertook to drive across the track, immediately in front of the Hot Springs hotel. The engineer blew the whistle but the speed of the train was so great that a stop could not be made until the engine had struck the hind wheels of the wagon. The seat upon which Mr. Zundell was riding was partially covered with a rain canvas and this is thought to have obstructed his view of the train as it approached. The entire outfit was thrown into the air. The fragments of the wagon fell on top of the driver. The rig was completely demolished but the horses escaped injury. Chickens were thrown in all directions and a dressed hog landed near the front porch of the hotel, having been hurled a distance of about fifty feet.

It is considered quite extraordinary that Mr. Zundell was not instantly killed. All that saved his life was that the engine so struck the hind end of the wagon as threw everything clear of the track.

Dr. B. H. Baumgardt, a lecturer of international reputation and one who has a repertoire of 60 lectures, held the rapt attention of a large crowd of lecture patrons at the Weber academy last night.

Dr. Baumgardt is engaged to speak several times at the 1914 Chautauqua on subjects relating to astronomy, but, by request of the lecture committee, he obtained the consent of Dr. E. P. Mills to lecture last night on "Night With the Stars," using material that will not be used at the Chautauqua.

He spoke first about the science of astronomy, giving the very latest discoveries of the world's greatest astronomers and then, with the latest telescopic photographs of the heavens, he explained many things connected with the science that were almost awe inspiring to his audience.

Among other things were pictured and explained the process of world making, beginning with star dust, which rotates around a nucleus and condenses into a central sun and then in other places he showed the beginning of planets. A single star seen by the naked eye, he demonstrated when seen through a telescope, became a cluster of suns.

His closing picture was a constellation of star dust the exact shape of the American continent in all its details, Panama, the Gulf of Mexico and other places being plainly discernable.

Dr. J. D. Martin's resignation as manager of the Utah Hot Springs will go into effect tomorrow morning and he will return to the city to resume his professional practice. He will be succeeded by William W. Wilson, son of "Bilby" Wilson, who has been employed at the Springs a number of weeks past.

C. H. Barton, cashier of the Ogden Savings bank has the general management of the place, but Mr. Wilson will have direct charge. The medical department will be under Dr. S. W. Badon of this city.

Manager Wilson is well known here and under his direction the sanitarium and pleasure resort should continue in popularity. Mr. Wilson has spent most all his life at the Hermitage, which is owned by his father, and he is familiar with the needs of such a place as the Hot Springs.

Under the direction of Mr. Barton and Dr. Martin, the Springs have been greatly improved and the hotel remodeled. The ground in front of the hotel has been parked, and concrete conduits conveying the hot mineral water from the springs to the bathing pools and private baths have been laid, increasing the water supply and raising its temperature.

Letters received by the family yesterday and this morning continue to speak highly of the regard and trust in which the young man is held in the Idaho community.

It was learned today from the family of George Corlew that Mr. Corlew was not carrying money from the Burley bank to a bank in Salt Lake City, at the time he disappeared, but had done so on previous occasions; also that the railroad ticket he had purchased was one for Ogden, where he intended to stop on personal business.

The juvenile court was in special session yesterday for the investigation by Judge V. C. Gunnell of charges placed against several boys who have been breaking windows and playing truant from school.

Another case considered was that of a boy who had taken a joy-ride to Evanston, Wyo., on a horse. The case has been under consideration for several days on account of the expense of the county and the owner of the horse in bringing the boy to justice.

The judge said that he desired to save the boy from the industrial school, if any tendency toward reforming is shown, and he carried the case over until the regular court session on Saturday morning.

LAND COMPANY A LAUGHING STOCK

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 20.—Everybody in Panama knew the Panama Development company didn't have any land. The company was a laughing stock down there.

When Hernando de la Guardia, formerly president of the defunct Panama Development company gave that testimony in the United States district court today, everybody smiled except Dr. John Grant Lyman, the Panama land promoter, whose trial on charges of having used the mails to defraud was in progress.

De la Guardia, who is the son of Santiago de la Guardia, the attorney general of the Republic of Panama, testified that powers of attorney bearing his name found in Lyman's offices, never had been seen by him and consequently never filed with the Isthmian republic.

TAFT ATTACKS WILSON POLICY

New York, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Speaking on the subject, "Holding the Philippines" before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Science, last night, ex-President William H. Taft attacked the policy of the Wilson administration as demonstrated in the acts of Governor General Francis Burton Harrison since he took over the reins of government of the islands early last month.

Mr. Taft spoke at length on the history of the American occupation with which he had been connected as governor general, secretary of war, and president almost continuously from 1900 to March, 1913, ending this part of the discourse with the statement that, in his belief, the great mass of the people—the uneducated majority, which must be protected, was not ready for self-government, and would not be ready for another generation.

In taking exception to the policies of President Wilson in granting more powers in the government and legislation to the Filipino politicians, Mr. Taft declared this action to be far in advance of the time of even the approach to self-government.

Racial Hatreds.

"Are we to let these islands go and turn them over to an oligarchy of eloquent and attractive orators who really believe in aristocracy and who have no real conception of civil and individual liberty and certainly no capacity by training and education for successful popular government," asked the speaker, and continuing he declared that "the minute the strong background of a powerful government is withdrawn, the difficulties between the Moros, who are mutinous and have no sympathy with the Filipinos and have a racial hatred for them, will at once develop. The Moros have notified us that they will not stand Filipino government and the Filipinos say they cannot take over the islands unless they take over all of them."

Saying he believed he could discuss the Philippine question with impartial judgment with very considerable knowledge and experience and in no spirit of carping criticism, Mr. Taft added that he felt that he knew no much more about the Philippines and its difficulties than any person in the present administration that he had a right to venture to call to their attention, some of the dangers that beset them, and some of the mistakes they have made. "If reports that have come from Manila as to what is being done there are authentic."
