

ALL IN READINESS FOR THE ELKS' BIG SHOW NEXT WEEK

T. EARL PARDOE, Director.

MISS KATHRYN BASSETT, Leading Lady.

In "The Girl From Paris" presented by the local lodge of Elks at the Orpheum next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, the most elaborate costumes ever seen on the stage in this state will be worn. The hats, of the very latest Parisian styles, were specially designed by Miss Dorothy Madison. The wigs have been manufactured and dressed by the American Beauty Parlors of this city. Special scenery has been painted by Mr. Larson of this city, who was formerly scenic artist for Charles Frohman Syndicate Co. of New York. The show committee, believing what is worth doing at all is worth doing well, has spared neither time nor expense in outdoing all previous committees in putting on the "best yet" in Elks' shows. There is a total of fifty-eight people in the cast and chorus.

There he meets Mlle. Julie Bon Bon, the girl from Paris. A flirtation follows, and he is sued for a breach of promise. Honeycomb rushes home, where the girl follows him and the complications of the first act begin. He loses the ten thousand dollar law suit and his wife discovers that it is Honeycomb who is the real defendant in the case, and not his friend Amos Dingle, as she had believed.

In the second act the difficulty is solved at Schoffenbergen, Germany, at the Hotel Spa, at which is located a famous mineral spring. The preliminaries will be completed with two dress rehearsals, one tonight and the other tomorrow, and then all will be in readiness for the opening performance Monday evening.

PATHFINDERS AS SEEN IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. G. F. Raseweller.)

Humanity stands on the edge of a better state, waiting. Why do we tarry so long? We await the leadership of the pathfinder of progress. We are not all born pioneers. The Daniel Boone and Kit Carsons must first plunge on before us, or most of us will tread the new paths of a new land. Humanity is hesitant, and lacks initiative. We seem to be born to need a leader, and a few seem to be born to lead. We may talk of liberty, but in the end we use our liberty to choose leaders, and commit much of our destiny to them. We may reserve to ourselves the right to follow or not to follow as we deem best, but even if we choose not to follow one leader, we find that we are following another leader, a leader of protest.

Who Shall Lead? Who shall be our leader to better things? Our Sunday school lesson shows us in this incident of the choosing of Joshua to lead the people of Israel into the Promised Land of a Better State. This is not merely a piece out of ancient history, but is a sort of a model for the choosing of leaders for all time. Let us see.

A Minister to the Past. Joshua was minister to Moses, who in his own self had embodied the nation's past. He was their leader, their seer, their lawgiver, the architect of their nationality. Joshua was in touch with it all. The future must inherit the past. Our progress forward must have behind it the momentum of yesterday. Our future must build on that which is best in our past history. We have too many propounders of fad social schemes, and ethical and religious cults that do not know history. So many of their propositions have been tried out and long ago cast aside. They are but the castaways of the past redressed. These leaders would take us back in the circle of our old failures, rather than forward along the line of our successes.

A Seer. He must be able to see the tracing of the finger of destiny, which marks out our future. He must know what our Creator has planned for us, and realize that nothing but our own weakness can prevent our attainment of it. This will make him invincible, undaunted, strong and of a good courage. Obstacles will be surmounted. In the words of Napoleon he will say, "The Alps? There shall be no Alps. Can't is a word in the dictionary of fools." In the language of the saint, he will say, "God's biddings are God's enablings, let us move forward." So the leaders of all time have been idealists of one sort or another. They have seen a vision of great possibilities, and have thereby been nerve to achievement. We must be sure of our inheritance if we are not to be appalled by our difficulties.

Loyal. He must be one who is absolutely true to the law of duty. The law of God in conscience in nature, in experience, in revelation must be his law. He must have learned obedience to a law higher than his own whims. He must be one tried and proved in his own past life. Not only in certain public matters, but in his own private life he must be a true subject of the law of righteousness. Only before the tramp of the soldiers of duty, do the Jordans part, the Jericho's fall and the Promised Land become a possession.

Such a leader is Jesus, of whom Joshua is but a type. Jesus is the same name as Joshua. It means deliverer. Because Christ learned obedience to the law, he has been glorified. Paul tells us, he has been given a name above every name. He is the great leader of all time. Only He will be able to lead us into our best. His banner of the cross leads to endless victory.

THE LESSON TEXT.

1 Now after the death of Moses the servant of the Lord it came to pass, that the Lord spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses minister, saying, 2 Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to thee, even to the children of Israel.

3 Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses. 4 From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast.

5 There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee; I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. 6 Be strong and of a good courage; for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swear unto thy fathers to give them.

7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee; to turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest.

8 This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success. 9 Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

Golden Text.—Be strong and of good courage.—Josh 1:9.

RAPID TRANSIT HAS NOT SELECTED ITS ROUTE

Chief Field Engineer Joseph A. West of the Ogden Rapid Transit company has completed all the surveys under consideration by the company as probable routes for extending electric lines and his surveying party has disbanded for the winter. It will be some time, however, before a decision can be reached as to the routes to be followed as it involves careful comparison of the several lines to decide which would be the most feasible to follow when the company is prepared to commence building operations.

ALUMNI DAY AT THE ACADEMY MUCH ENJOYED

The first annual alumni day program at the Weber academy was brought to a close last night with a reception and dancing party which was attended by a large crowd of students and members of the Alumni association.

Commencing at 8 o'clock, prior to the reception, a fast basketball game was played by an all-star Alumni team and the regular Weber team. In the first half, Torgeson of the Alumni starred, scoring seven baskets before the regulars had found their pace. Watson put up a fine game at center, and Brown's play was also exceptionally fast. Bassett and Ferrin were the stars of the Academy team.

The game was played in 20-minute halves and kept the fans guessing until the last whistle. The first half owing to the unerring aim of Torgeson, ended with the score 20 to 14 in favor of the Alumni five, but form told in the last half and the Weber team won out by a score of 42 to 34. The lineup was as follows:

- Alumni: W. Academy, Watson, c; c. Richards, Torgeson-Porter, lf; Belnap, W. McKay, rf; Bassett/Layman, Brown, lg; Harris, Herberhs, Budge, fg; Ferrin.

Referee—Hobson. "Alumni Day" was pronounced by all who participated in the different events, to be a splendid innovation and one that would result in much good to both the students of the school and to the Alumni association and President Peter Kastus received many congratulations on the manner in which the program was carried out.

Standardization in the broader sense simply means building from the tested bests of everything

THERE are three factors in any manufacturing problem—material, workmanship and price. In standardizing the motor car we began on the material phase of it. We standardized the sizes of parts, we standardized the selection of materials, we standardized the machinery which made the parts. This came first because it belonged first—just as cement and brick and stone and mortar come before domes and mural decorations and electric lights.

THEN we standardized the workmanship on the motor car. Cole said, "If this great law of Standardization is right, let's don't be stingy with it. Let's get out of it all there is in it. We'll standardize the workmanship in motor cars by getting the one great specialist in each instance to make each part so that, when we get through, the Cole will be made from the tested bests of everything."

AND when he had standardized the workmanship, since a method and cost are inseparable, the world very naturally discovered that Cole had also standardized the price of the motor car. Here is the proof: This Cole touring car with a wheel base of 120 inches, four cylinders, sturdy, quiet, with appealing lines, completely equipped, Delco electric self-cranking and all—$2050.00. Also see the Cole Six with its wheel base of 136 inches, selling at $2750.00, completely equipped. People generally describe it as "The greatest automobile I ever rode in at any price."
