GRAND JURY GETTING DOWN TO WORK OF INVESTIGATION

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning the grand jury met in its rooms at the court house. The jury is held to secret in its deliberations and for that reason no much information respecting its action will come to the public ear until its report is presented.
The jury was attended this morning by County Attorney David Jensen as legal adviser. Mr. Jensen will act with District Attorney John C. Davis as counsel for the jury during its session, and it is possible that some other state attorney may be called in. It is said that some grave legal question may be involved in the cases that are to be brought to the attention of the jury, requiring the efforts of more than one lawyer to solve.
To what extent the grand jury may carry its investigations regarding public office, including institutions and the conduct of public officials, is problematical, but it is said to be certain that, while the jury is at work, it will take up all questions of public interest and present indictments if necessary.
In the matter of public institutions, such as jails, infirmary and other places where the county and state are held to a close accounting as to the manner of handling them, the jury in the end can make recommendations for improvement or condemn absolutely and insist on radical changes. It is possible, too, that indictments might be found against officers having charge of the places and cause them to be brought before the courts for trial. Such action as this, however, is hardly expected in Weber county.
As stated in the instructions given by Judge J. A. Howell, the greater labor to be performed by the grand jury will be to make careful investigations regarding the blackmailing atrocities that have been perpetrated in Ogden and Weber county the past number of months and, necessary, the research will be far-reaching, as a number of offenses of the kind will be called to the attention of the jury and, no doubt, a large number of witnesses will be called upon to testify. County Attorney Jensen stated this morning that all persons who can shed any light on the crimes alleged to have been committed will be required to tell all they know, but he would not disclose the names of any who are to be called.
The jury quarters consists of three well furnished, clean rooms on the upper floor of the court house, immediately north of the county clerk's office, and opening directly into Judge Howell's court room. Ample table room, and chairs, have been provided, and the room has steam heat, so that the place may be kept comfortably warm, either at night or in the day time. The quarters were recently scrubbed and repainted and the floors either tiled or covered with new linoleum. Foreman J. F. Wadman will administer oaths and preside over all deliberations, while Clerk C. F. Grout will keep the records.
The district office of the court and state attorney are at the command of the jury. There is much latitude given. The jury is not held to account for anything it may do. Individual members may do or say what they please in the jury room and cannot be held amenable to the law except as to perjury.
After visiting the poor farm yesterday afternoon, the jury returned to the city and made an investigation of the city jail. They were at the infirmary only a short time.
Commissioner Moroni Skeen, president of the board of county commissioners, and superintendent of the poor department, accompanied the jury to the poor farm and explained the situation there. He states that he considers the poor farm and infirmary in the very best of condition and he believes the jury will make a favorable report.

He was a man of splendid qualities and is well known here both in business and religious affairs.

MARTIN FAMILY HAS A GRIEVANCE

The Martin family is grieved over the attempt of J. H. Martin to break jail and they say it is almost more than they can withstand. His wife is ill over the occurrence and says she cannot understand why Henry should attempt such a rash act.
Both J. F. Martin, the uncle, and Mrs. Martin say they can prove without question that Henry was in Ogden at 6 o'clock the night he is said to have been at Morgan at 7 o'clock and that they are certain that he could not have made the trip from the Martin home to Morgan in one hour.
The Martin's claim that they are not given due consideration by the authorities, as they are not permitted to see the prisoner and that they all are constantly subjected to rigid questioning by detectives and other officers.

COMMISSIONERS ARE ANGERED BY THE JUDGE

Returning to his chambers last evening at about 10 o'clock, Judge James A. Howell found the front door of the court house locked. He placed his shoulder against the double doors and with an effort equal to his strength forced the lock. As the doors swung open, the window glass snapped and the rattling of glass caused some disturbance in the sheriff's office.
Visions of burglars and attempted jail deliveries came to the office and the assistance of the police department was called. An investigation soon disclosed the broken window in the front door and, the officers proceeding up stairs to Judge Howell's chambers, found them delving into law books. Sheriff DeVine readily grasped the situation and stepping to the judge's door handed him a key to the door. The judge said, "house, telling him that the janitor had not an opportunity to give it to him the evening before.
Speaking of the affair today, Judge Howell stated that when he came to the court house and discovered that he was locked out, he naturally was a little out of patience, and he deliberately gave the door a heavy shove and walked through, breaking the glass in one of the doors as he did so.
"I had heard something of the county commissioners' talk of turning off the court house lights and also of locking the doors, and I concluded that action had been taken without notice to any one," the judge said, "and, considering it a little unfair, just went in and proceeded to attend to my work. I guess the people in sheriff's office were somewhat disturbed by the breaking of the glass."
Explaining the situation this morning, Commissioner W. C. Hunter said he was not in the best of humor, as he considered that Judge Howell had no right to forcibly enter the court house and destroy property.
"Had I or some one else besides a Judge done such a thing," Mr. Hunter said, "there would have been an arrest made and a complaint filed. The board of county commissioners decided to lock the outer door of the court house and advised the janitor to do so, keys having been provided for the judges of the district court and the heads of all the departments in the building. The janitor did not see Judge Howell last evening, and the judge being away from the court house in the early part of the evening, it was concluded that he would not have occasion to be in his office again that night. We have a grand jury in session and I should think it would be a good idea to call its attention to this case."
Mr. Hunter said that the outer door is not being closed to interfere in any way with the work of court house employees or the judges of the district court, but simply as a precaution against theft and the use of the place for night loungers. He says the members of the board are somewhat indignant over the event.

BOARD OF EDUCATION NOTIFIED TO MOVE OR BE MOVED

Today City Attorney Valentine Gideon placed in the hands of the police department for service on the president of the board of education a notice that the lease which the board has held on certain rooms in the city hall has expired and that the educators are formally directed to vacate. Five days have really elapsed since the city commissioners decided to terminate the lease this year, which has given the board of education ample time to move, the city attorney says.
Mr. Gideon considers the lease which the board of education holds "a tenancy at will" and absolutely in the power of the city commissioners to terminate at pleasure. If the schoolmen do not move the next step on the part of the city attorney will be an action in "forcible entry and unlawful detainer."
Sometimes in such cases the party instituting the action forcibly takes possession of the premises and passes it up to the other side to regain possession by civil process or otherwise. However, it is not thought that such strenuous action will be taken in this case.

WHY CARNATIONS IN OGDEN HAVE BEEN VERY SCARCE

The scarcity of carnations during the present season has caused considerable comment among lovers of that beautiful and fragrant flower and numerous inquiries have been made as to why this condition exists. The reason, in brief, as given by F. H. Hendershot, the well known local florist, is that the plants were placed in the green houses too late in the fall. This cause for the late planting dates back to last winter when the temperature was so cold that the shoots that were then in the green houses could not grow.
Local florists have been greatly handicapped through being unable to procure sufficient shoots from the large eastern green houses and have been unable to propagate a sufficient number of new plants from their own stock to meet the demand for the flowers. The eastern dealers have filled their own local orders first and the western florists have had to take what was left.
The manner of propagating the flowers is as follows:
The shoots are taken from the parent plants in January and the early part of February and planted in sand. Sand is used because the plants only need heat and moisture to develop roots. When the roots begin to appear, the young plants are transplanted in soil and are kept in the green house until May. They are then dug up and planted in the open air gardens, where they remain until August. Their final transplanting then takes place and they are put in the green house for the winter. They should be fully developed for the final transplanting by August, but last year the plants were not taken in until September, they are therefore from a month to six weeks behind in blooming.
It requires about 90 days from the time the plants are put in the green houses in the fall for them to begin to bloom.
At the Hendershot green house there are over ten thousand plants just beginning to bloom, and they are in fine condition.

KEEP A THANKFUL HEART

The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and as the magnet finds the iron, so will it find in every hour some heavenly blessings; only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Henry Ward Beecher.

SEEKING TRANSFER OF LICENSE TO SELL LIQUOR

Hearing of the application of Louis Leonard for a retail liquor license will be had before Judge Howell, January 9.
Leonard is applying for the transfer of the license formerly issued to T. S. Feehey of the Falstaff cafe bar, but the judges of the district court have ruled that applications for transfers shall be considered as if they were original applications for licenses, and that the same requirements will be exacted of the applicants. The applicant in this instance expects to open a saloon on the south side of Twenty-fifth street, between Lincoln and Wall avenues.

RUNAWAYS FORGIVEN —FATHER OF GIRL BUYS LICENSE

Vernon J. Ament, aged 24, and Lillie Rogers, aged 16, were quietly married this morning by Judge William H. Reeder. The witnesses were Elwin E. Rogers, father of the girl, and Chief of Police W. I. Norton. The husband is from Daysport, Iowa, and the wife from Twin Falls, Idaho.
The young couple left Twin Falls together several days ago, without knowledge of the parents of the girl. Mr. Rogers, the father, went to the authorities of the Idaho city for assistance in finding his daughter and, through a description of the couple sent to the Ogden officers, the young people were found here yesterday. Mr. Rogers arrived in the city this morning and, after talking the matter over with Chief Norton, Judge Reeder and the lovers, decided that the best thing to do was to let Cupid have his way. He, therefore, bought them a marriage license.
