Novel Idea For Party—Fan Games Very Enjoyable—The Latest in Parties—White Chiffon Cloth Heavier Than Ordinary Chiffon Used for the New Blouses—For Spools of Thread—New Fad for Snow White Sleeping Rooms—Rugs of White Velvet or Better Still Luxurious White Fur—Photographs Framed in Ivory Seen.

THE LATEST IN PARTIES.
The latest idea in parties was inspired by a paper fan. The invitations were sent out on tiny Japanese fans, and a frieze of gay fans adorned the drawing room. Each guest was presented on arrival with a sandalwood fan, which had been dampened so that its fragrance should be appreciated. Any pretty, inexpensive type of fan, however, could take the place of these.

For the entertainment there were several "fan games." In one of these games the guests were seated facing each other. A rubber ball was tossed up by the hostess, which was then to be tossed backward and forward between the rows of guests. The owner of a fan who allowed the ball to drop to the ground when tossed to him or her was out of the game. The two that succeeded in keeping their seats the longest were considered the winners and were presented with small prizes.

Another game which caused much amusement was the spinning of yarns. Each guest was asked to tell a three-minute story. If they halted even for a second in the telling they were fanned vigorously by the others, or, if they stopped before the three minutes were up, fanned the remainder of the time. Some preferred being fanned three minutes to telling a story.

The guests were next seated around a table provided with saucers of bright water color paint. The hostess then distributed plain undecorated fans and told the guests that they might decorate them to suit their fancy. A prize was offered for the most artistic fan produced. These fans were fastened on the wall for display and voted upon before the prizes were awarded.

WHITE CHIFFON BLOUSE.
There are many new shirt waists in the shops, but the favorite one is of white chiffon cloth, the thin, transparent fabric that is about twice as thick as the ordinary chiffon.

The waist is made simply. It has a broad yoke across the back, which the material is gathered, and loose sleeves that end in wide turnover cuffs at the wrists. The fronts are also gathered and there are no armholes.

This new kind of kimono sleeves is very much in fashion and especially on everyday blouses.

A new net blouse has two thicknesses of the material and is fastened with ordinary pearl buttons as large as a 25-cent piece. The turnover cuffs are fastened with two of these buttons used as links. They are joined by strands of silk cord.

THREADS.
Numerous spools of thread kept in one receptacle are apt to become unwound and tangled. I have found that a small rubber band snapped over each spool holds the ends of the thread nicely without interfering with the unwinding of the thread in the very slightest.

Varnished wall paper can be successfully washed with warm water to which a little vinegar has been added.

THE SNOW-WHITE SLEEPING ROOM INVITES REST.
There is a fad just now for white bedrooms—all white as an arctic landscape with unbroken snow. Walls, woodwork, draperies and furniture are snowy white and rugs may be of white velvet or better still luxurious white fur. One society woman has three large rugs of whiteoney fur in her white bedroom. Such a room has no pictures on the wall, though photographs framed in ivory are set about. Always, however, fresh cut flowers lend a note of color and beauty to the white room.

JAPANESE FLEET ADMIRAL IS DEAD

Tokio, Japan, Jan. 14.—Count Yukio Ito, fleet admiral of the Japanese navy, died this morning in his 71st year. Count Ito had more to do with the development of the Japanese navy than any other man. He entered the service in 1868 and studied for a considerable time in the United States. In the war between China and Japan in 1894, he took a prominent part, commanding the combined squadrons of the Japanese fleets, which fought the battle of the Yellow sea, afterwards blockading the port of Wei-Hai-Wei and destroying the Chinese fleet. He was then appointed chief of the naval staff, which office he held during the Russian-Japanese war.

JOHNSON SIGNS TO MEET MORAN

Paris, Jan. 14.—Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight pugilist, and Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, today signed articles for a twenty-round bout for the championship of the world to be fought on the day of, or before, the Paris grand prix race, during the first or second week of June, this year.

Johnson was handed a check for $35,000 by Charles MacCarthy, representing a group of American sporting men, while Moran was guaranteed $5,000. The fight is to take place in Paris.

Johnson agreed not to fight anybody else before meeting Moran in the ring and if the negro pugilist fails to fight, he is to forfeit the $35,000 except the sum of $5,000 for his training expenses.

The signatures to the articles were finally affixed in the presence of many managers, promoters, boxing men and other sportsmen and Johnson and Moran then drank each other health in goblets of champagne. Three moving picture machines were working during the negotiations.

In the list of honors issued on the occasion of the Russian new year, M. Chaplinski is created a knight of the Order of St. Stanisla of the first class, and appointed a senator and privy councillor.

MOWREY SIGNS WITH FEDERALS.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 13.—Mike Mowrey of the Pittsburg National league baseball club, tonight signed a three-year contract with the local Federal league club.

MODISH AND PRACTICAL.
For general wear this suit has several good points. The coat is longer than some of the more elaborate designs allow, and its lines and trimmings are of the kind which can be seen often without becoming tiresome.

The skirt is plain at the back with a draped front, trimmed with two stitched bands of the material, which is blue serge with facings of black.

NOTICE

We have been informed that there are parties soliciting jobs of trimming trees on the curb of the streets of the city of Ogden, and we hereby notify the public that any such trimming is against the Laws and Ordinances of Ogden City, and any one who trims trees without a permit from the Park Commissioners will be liable to a fine.

You will please call upon the City Recorder of Ogden City and make an application for a permit for trimming trees which will be granted without any charge. And unless said permit is granted, no one is permitted to trim any trees outside of the property lines.

By order of the Board of Park Commissioners.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY OCCURS IN PARIS

Paris, Jan. 14.—A double tragedy connected with Turkish political intrigue was enacted today at the Paris residence of General Mehmed Cherif Pasha, one of the chiefs of the Radical Turkish party.

A strange Turk called to see the Ottoman politician and was refused admission by the valet, Ismael Hakki, whom he immediately shot dead. Cherif Pasha's son-in-law, Sallil Bey, hearing the commotion, ran into the corridor and shot and killed the assassin. The Pasha has been the object recently of numerous threats, which he says emanate from the adherents of the Young Turks.

OLD STYLE GRAPPLE TO BE RESTORED

New York, Jan. 14.—Nineteen wrestlers of almost as many nationalities will endeavor to restore the popularity of the art of catch-as-catch-can grappling in this city in a tournament at Madison Square garden tonight. Each man has paid an entry fee of $100, which will be added to the purse of $5,000 which will go to the winners. The promoters also declare that the winner will meet Frank Gotch, the veteran Charlie White will referee.

BIG BUILDING TO BE TURNED OVER TO THE OWNER

The first chapter in a new epoch for building activity in Ogden will be closed with the turning over to the owner, during the present week, of the Colonel Hudson building.

The owner of the building is the Hon. Fred J. Kiesel and it was designed and superintended by Shreeve and Madsen. It was constructed by the Dinwiddie Construction company of Portland, Ore., the construction being direct charge of the vice-president William A. Larkins of the company. The time of construction, a little over six months, is the record for rapid construction in Ogden. The painting and decorating was superintended by Hugo Claussen, of Salt Lake City, materials, as far as possible, were purchased through Ogden firms.

A complete description of the splendid structure follows:
The Col. Hudson Building extends 165 feet on Hudson avenue and 55 feet on Twenty-fourth street, with an ell 100 feet long running west on the south end. The main entrance centers in the Hudson avenue facade and is flanked on both sides with store room entrances.

The corner on Twenty-fourth street and Hudson avenue was designed for banking room purposes and is now occupied by the Security Trust Co. In proportion to its size, this bank is one of the most beautiful in appointments and most complete in arrangements and equipment to be found in the West.

The main entrance to the building is treated in a unique manner in stucco and bronze with quartered oak woodwork, and opens into the foyer and this in turn into the public lobby. These two rooms as well as the entrance have terrazzo floors and marble wainscoting and are trimmed with mahogany woodwork and mahogany doors. The walls and ceilings are covered with decorator's canvas and painted in oil. On each side of the public lobby are the plate glass show windows of the stores.

At the west end of the lobby are the two passenger elevators and the steel stairway with gunmetal finish, connecting all floors and the basement. The elevator enclosure reaches from floor to ceiling and is of stucco and bronze of beautiful design to harmonize with the general scheme of design throughout.

The rear entrance to the building is accessible from Grant avenue and it contains the freight elevator and rear stairs; thus providing for all freight deliveries to be made at the rear of the building.

On the ground floor are five store rooms facing Hudson avenue besides the bank; and one store room facing Twenty-fourth street. Also the outside entrance to the large basement Rathskeller connects with the stairway on Hudson avenue.

The three stories above the ground floor are laid off into modern office rooms, all being directly lighted and ventilated from the outside, and connected with spacious corridors with terrazzo floors and marble bases. There are thirty office rooms on each floor besides the toilets, electricians' rooms and janitors' closets, and each room is supplied with hot and cold water while on the fourth floor special accommodations for doctors and dentists consist of gas, compressed air and dental drains.

The Weber Club occupy the entire top floor of the building, which has been arranged to meet its particular requirements, and a more complete and beautifully appointed set of club rooms will not be found this side of Chicago.

The passenger elevators are accessible about mid-way between the north and south extremes of the floor area and the main lounge parlor and library are directly across from the elevator landing. These rooms are finished in Tennessee red gum wood and the walls are treated in leather wainscoting with the other walls and ceilings glazed and stenciled on decorator's canvas. The ceilings are heavily beamed.

French windows open onto a long terra cotta balcony from the parlor, the balcony being graced with four large bronze electroluxes which are very effective after nightfall. The parlor and library are treated in one immense room by throwing back the folding doors and the color effect of the whole in rich shades of brown is restful and subdued.

To the right of the entrance to the library and just across from the elevators is the ladies parlor designed after the delicately beautiful Louis XVI period. The color harmony here is exquisite in rich pearl grey woodwork with silk tapestry wall panels in an old rose design. The furniture for this room is imported direct from Belgium and is in strict accord with the design of the room. A heavy velvet carpet of old rose blends beautifully with the color scheme and the whole is softly toned down by the art glass skylight in the ceiling.

The ladies retiring room, in tile and marble, connects with the parlor and communication to the public and private dining rooms can be had through a connecting hallway. The office of the secretary is directly to the right of the elevators with cased openings into the corridor, affording easy access to the secretary. This is a large, well lighted room trimmed in quartered oak and the private telephone booth but aside from this, the Club is completely wired for an intercommunicating telephone and call-bell system, which means much for the efficiency of the service.

At the south end of the corridor is the public entrance to the main dining room. Here the visitor immediately gets the impression of being transferred into veritable fairyland for the treatment in this room is truly unique. A solid oak wainscoting skirts the room up to the top of the door and from there up to the ceiling the frieze is done in delft blue, glazed and modeled on a canvas background. At the west end of the room a magnificent painting of a scene in Ogden Canyon adorns the frieze which is here treated as a panel. The walls are divided by pilasters running to the ceiling and a massive ornamental cornice covers the intersection of the walls and ceilings. The ceiling itself is embellished with ornamental plaster and moulded courses in old gold which blends with the rich cream color of the ceiling itself and affords a brilliant and pleasing contrast to the dark oak woodwork and mottled frieze below. With the indirect system of lighting, which is one of the features of the club arrangement, this dining room presents a picture that is pleasing in the extreme. The room is well lighted by large plate glass windows and the terrazzo floor with marble base completes a very fine arrangement for dining purposes.

The two front private dining rooms open off the main dining room at the north and east ends and all three may be thrown together by a system of folding doors. The southwest wing of the building contains the cuisine department and here is found a most complete kitchen with gas ranges, broilers, warming ovens and steamer, together with three large refrigerators supplied by the club's own cold storage plant and capable of storing an enormous amount of perishables. The kitchen and dining room are separated by a connecting passage which eliminates the possibility of the odor of the kitchen entering the dining room, and the steward has his office located where he can easily supervise his department.

On the opposite side of the corridor, in this wing of the building, are two additional private dining rooms and adjacent to these is the barber shop, all in white enamel and tile where, in addition to tonsorial work, one may obtain the service of a manicurist at the extreme west end of this corridor are the servants' quarters, the freight elevator and the rear stairs.

The large L shaped billiard room occupies the corner facing Hudson avenue and contains five tables with room for one more. This room is trimmed in dark oak with brown leather wainscoting and heavy beamed ceiling. The floor is terrazzo with marble base and the room is well lighted by large plate glass windows, affording an excellent view of the city. Leading off the billiard room in the northwest corner of the building are the two card rooms with leather wall coverings and steel stairway connecting the two.

The buffet opens off the main corridor opposite the main entrance to the billiard room. This room is a distinct innovation, combining a rustic treatment with the old English. The walls and front of the bar are laid up with a dark green ornamental tile effect with dark-fumed oak panel work. The bar is in oak and cherry and the sideboard is faced with art glass in copper with a decorated panel above the mirror, in relief work. The ceiling and frieze are in gold leaf and mottled down to a rich salmon color. The sideboard connects directly with the store room where a large stock of bottled goods could be kept, and the whole is connected up with the cold storage plant.

The basement contains storage rooms in the south part, and the coal room and furnace room where a battery of two large steam boilers are used to heat the building. The boilers are fired automatically by machinery which tends to eliminate most of the smoke that commonly escapes through the chimney. The elevator machinery and hot water plant as well as the electrical work is also located in the basement. An electric automatic elevator is also located in the basement, to be used in the event of flood waters entering from above in an emergency. The equipment also includes a mechanical ash hoist to remove the ashes.

The north part of the basement was designed for a Rathskeller but is left unfinished at this time. A wire and pipe shaft extends up through the building from the basement to the roof and all pipes and wires for each floor are carried up through this shaft and then distributed to the different points. A mail chute connecting each floor with the mail box in the public lobby is also a great convenience. All office rooms are covered with the best grade of ship linooleum, making a less tiring wearing surface over the cement floors.

The building is fire-proof throughout, being of brick and the reinforced concrete type of construction. It is designed after the New School style of architecture, which is a pleasing departure from the stereotyped design so common throughout the country. The exterior is faced with dark red vitrified brick, laid with a deep-set heavy mortar joint and the whole is trimmed with cream colored terracotta, giving a rich and harmonious contrast to the facade.

IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Advertisement.
