LOVE AND FELLOWSHIP IN FOURTH WARD ENTERTAINMENT

Last night at the Fourth ward, the stake officers and stake board members, past and present, were guests of the Ogdan stake amusement committee at a splendid entertainment and social. The affair was one of a series that is held under and by the direction of the stake presidency every fifth Monday in the year, for the purpose of cementing the bond of love and fellowship among the present stake workers and showing their appreciation of the work done by those who have been released from their former positions. There were nearly 200 present and the affair was enjoyed to the fullest extent.

The entertainment was high class in every respect and was conducted by William M. McKay of the Amusement committee. After a piano prelude by Lorene Oborn, Mr. McKay welcomed his fellow board members and the other guests and asked the congregation to join in the singing of "If There's Sunshine in Your Heart." Prayer was offered by Bishop's Counselor H. H. Goddard, and the Sixth ward quartette, composed of William Pickett, Joseph Madison, Gerard Klomp and Joseph Tracy sang "Just a Song at Twilight," and, in answer to steady applause, they sang as an encore, "How Can I Leave Thee?"

C. C. Richards, as a representative of the stake presidency, spoke briefly but impressively, saying that when the Ogdan stake was organized 68 months ago, one of the mottoes of the stake presidency was to "Get sunshine into the hearts of the people." This motto, he said, had been followed with marked success and the rays of "sunshine" are growing warmer all the time. It was not the sunshine, he continued, that was like a vacant smile, but the sunshine of love which would lead the workers into the meetings and into the homes of the people, that the people might partake of it. The stake authorities, he said further, wanted workers who have sunshine in their hearts and are willing to give it out.

In closing, he told of sacrifices that had been made by the stake workers and of the blessings they would receive from them saying that the more a person puts into the work of the Lord, the more they will get out of it.

President Richards' talk was followed by the rendition of "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," (Hadya) by Miss Josephine Herrick. Miss Herrick is yet in her teens but her singing of the difficult number showed her to be already well educated in the art of music. She possesses an excellent soprano voice. The accompaniment was by Margaret Boardman of Denver and the number was enthusiastically encored. Miss Herrick responded by singing the dainty and charming encore songs, "Try Smiling" and "The Sun Shines on My Face."

Mr. Olsen, the popular local dramatic reader, gave "In an Attelier," by Aldrich in his usual finished manner and as an encore, read "Mother o' Mine," by Kipling. This was followed by a cello solo and encore by Leith Pearson, both being well chosen and nicely rendered. The cello list was given good assistance by Lillian Wright, an accompanist in a handsome dress, enclosed in a handsome rosewood case. A propos of the nature of the gift, Mr. Hoyt said, "We'll remember you three times a day."

Mr. Seaman will leave next Thursday for Morgan, where he has an 880-acre farm and stock ranch, and next Monday Mr. Hoyt will leave for Lamolle, Nevada, to take up his work as manager of the Furdy Land and Live Stock company, of which he is a member, the holdings consisting of 160 acres of irrigated land and some range land.

Mr. Jensen is a member of the stake high council and his subject was, "Our Guests, the ex-Stake Workers." After saying that he was glad of the opportunity that had brought the workers and ex-workers together, he spoke of the work that had been done by the latter and said that wherever they were working at the present time, they were honoring their God, the Ogdan stake and themselves. He expressed the love of his associates in the high council and stake presidency, for them and wished them success in all their walks of life.

The next number was a fine rendition of the popular ballad "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," by Walter Stephens and was followed by a piano solo "Valse Arabesque" (Lack), by Miss Boardman. In her number, Miss Boardman displayed a fine command of technique, with good tone coloring and plenty of strength.

E. W. Nichols and his children, forming a symphony quartet, gave a pleasing rendition of "Love's Confession," by Gruenwald, and Mrs. Agnes Warner sang "The Nightingale's Song," in splendid voice and a most finished manner. Her accompanist was Mrs. Bernice Glazier. The entertainment was closed with a flute solo "Home Sweet Home" (with variations), by Axel Nylander.

The remainder of the evening was passed in dancing to the music of the Nichols family orchestra, with a service of delicious fruit punch, wafers and confectionery between the dances. The party was adjourned at 11:30 o'clock.

CHAUFFEURS FOR THE CITY ARE NAMED BY BOARD

A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring recorder, George A. Seaman.

CITY EMPLOYEES HAVE A SURPRISE PARTY IN CITY HALL

George A. Seaman and W. J. Hoyt, the retiring city recorder, and deputy auditor, respectively, were the pleased objects of a surprise party this morning following a meeting of the city commissioner.

The two were escorted to the old city council chamber about 10:30 o'clock by Commissioners T. Samuel Browning and Chris Flygare and were closely followed by the other city officials and all the deputies that could be spared from their work.

After they were all seated, Commissioner Browning announced that City Attorney Valentine Gideon had something to say. Mr. Gideon was seated behind one of the tables in front of the mayor's rostrum and on the table were two large packages, wrapped in heavy paper. Before he began his talk he motioned to Mr. Hoyt, who had taken his seat outside the railing, to come in and take a seat in the "Amen" corner.

After Mr. Hoyt had responded to the invitation, Mr. Gideon, in a few well chosen words, recalled the pleasant associations which the city employees had enjoyed with the retiring officials and presented them with the two packages which were on the table. The gifts, he said, were an expression from the city employees of good wishes for their future success and regret at having to lose their companionship.

In closing, he said, that while Mr. Seaman was lying in the shade of the pines in his ranch in Morgan county, Mr. Hoyt was trying to lie in the shade of the sage brush of the Nevada desert, that both would recall the pleasant days spent in the city hall in Ogdan.

Mr. Gideon said that he did not know what was in the packages and Frank Hendershot volunteered the statement that a pig was in one and a narrow in the other and Judge Reeder said that his information on the question was that one of the packages contained a guinea pig and the other a pair of white mice. At this Attorney Gideon said that both men should take the packages home to their wives no matter what was in them.

At the conclusion of this "banter," Mr. Seaman arose and expressed his surprise at the kind thoughtfulness of his former fellow employees and said that he deeply appreciated the gift, not so much for its intrinsic value as for the feelings that caused it to be made. Mr. Hoyt followed with a similar talk, stating that he had spent four years of pleasant work among the employees of the city and offices and that he would feel somewhat strange in his new field of labor.

Commissioner Browning made the closing speech and said that, in his associations with the two men, he had found them to be highly efficient in their work and that if they worked for themselves with a faithfulness and diligence that they had for the city, their success was assured.

After Mr. Browning was seated, Mr. Seaman said that to satisfy the minds of those present and his own curiosity, he would open the package which had been given to him. He did so and the contents of the paper proved to be two elegant silver sets, containing knives, forks, tea and table spoons, a butter knife and a sugar shaker, enclosed in a handsome case. A propos of the nature of the gift, Mr. Hoyt said, "We'll remember you three times a day."

Mr. Seaman will leave next Thursday for Morgan, where he has an 880-acre farm and stock ranch, and next Monday Mr. Hoyt will leave for Lamolle, Nevada, to take up his work as manager of the Furdy Land and Live Stock company, of which he is a member, the holdings consisting of 160 acres of irrigated land and some range land.

COLLEGE BOYS AND GIRLS TO BE SEEN WEDNESDAY

Under the direction of Miss Sarah Huntsman the Utah Agricultural college Dramatic club will present Wednesday night, at the Orpheum, three Irish plays, "The Pot of Broth," "The Spreading of the News," and "The Rising of the Moon."

These plays are thoroughly modern and are particularly charming because as found among the Irish. "The Pot of Broth" is one of the masterpieces of the well known Irish playwright, William Butler Yeates, and it tells with intense interest how a cunning old beggar works on the superstitions of two peasants in order to get a free supper. The parts are said to be handled most effectively by G. Stewart Horsley, Mary Bennion and Morrell Powell.

"The Spreading of the News" and "The Rising of the Moon" are both by Lady Gregory. Nearly everyone is undoubtedly familiar with these plays, as they have been produced by the Dublin Players in New York, Chicago and Boston with tremendous success.

"The Rising of the Moon" narrates a timely story of Irish nationalism. The play is particularly noted for its beauty. The scene of action takes place on a wooded mountain by the side of the sea, while the moon is rising. The setting of this scene is an innovation in stage mechanics. Briefly, it is a French creation of shadow effects and gives a depth of feeling and an atmosphere that cannot be got by hand-painted scenery.

Exhibiting the Truly Perfect Fashions In French Silks

It is quite time that silks have greater prominence for the "gown fashionable" this year than for several years past.

In fact Paris has been so insistent on silks and the resultant demand on silks weavers has naturally been so great that many stores are in the position of gladly accepting "what they can get"—for the market is "short" on much that is most desirable of the Spring silk styles.

Because we are as close silk students of fashion events, as we are unusually large buyers, the situation was obvious to us as early as September last year and we did not underestimate by a single yard our requirements.

Thus you have for your selection, a wealth of silks of the character that the leading gown creators advise you to use.

Chiffon taffetas, crepes, crepons, crepe meteors, and crepe de chine; a magnificent range of the famous printed silks of Lyons, radiums and vestings and Roman stripes, charmeuse and foulards, occupy the conspicuous positions.

NEW OWNERSHIP OF GOULD SYSTEM

Missouri Pacific Property to Be Taken Over by Standard Oil.

New York, N. Y., March 31.—The strength and activity of Missouri Pacific railroad shares today served to give credence to recent reports that the Gould interests in that property and other roads are to be taken over in the near future by a group of capitalists more or less directly connected with the Standard Oil company.

The Rockefeller have long been active in some of the Gould properties, including Missouri Pacific, but if the project now said to be under way is consummated, Missouri Pacific and other important parts of the Gould system will come under absolutely new ownership.
