DAUGHTER OF MRS. GEDDES ON THE STAND IN FAMOUS CASE

At the beginning of the Geddes-Eccles trial today, George F. Gibbs, secretary to the first presidency of the church, was recalled to give the names of the apostles and the first presidency of the church in the year 1900. He was asked for the information yesterday but was unable to give it until he reviewed the "roll book" of that time. He was also requested to produce the letter sent to Bishop George W. Bramwell of Plain City in 1900 respecting the order of excommunication of Mrs. Margaret Geddes.

Mr. Gibbs gave the names of the apostles of the church in 1900 as Francis M. Lyman, Heber J. Grant, Brigham Young, Jr., John Henry Smith, George Teasdale, John W. Taylor, Marriner W. Merrill, Anthony H. Lund, Mathias Cowley, A. O. Woodruff, Rudger Clawson, Reed Smoot, and the first presidency Lorenzo Snow, George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith.

The only questions propounded to Mr. Seffrit were in relation to his understanding of the testimony given at the Reed Smoot investigation in Washington. He said that he was familiar with the testimony but did not read any of it to David Eccles at the time Mr. Eccles was insisting that the Tribune retract published statements that he was a new polygamist.

Mrs. Agnes T. Call, a resident of Salt Lake, stated that she had known Mrs. Geddes and her son Albert since 1905 and that she lived neighbors to them in Salt Lake about two years. She said that she had seen Mr. Eccles at the Geddes home frequently and that he had taken Mrs. Geddes out riding in an automobile on a certain occasion. She said also that she saw Mr. Eccles kiss the boy Albert and love and pet him.

On cross examination, Mrs. Call stated that she had seen other men make a fuss over Albert, as he was a pretty and an interesting child.

Frank D. Richardson of Ogden, former resident of Plain City, testified that in the winter of 1898, he saw Mr. Eccles come from the Geddes home in Plain City at about 12 o'clock at night. He said there was snow on the ground and Mr. Eccles drove out to Plain City in a cutter. The horse was a little fractious, the witness said, and he held the animal while Mr. Eccles stepped into the cutter to come home. He said he remembered that Mr. Eccles said in substance, as he got into the cutter:

"We must use wisdom in these things, and, the witness said, I do not think Mr. Eccles was talking about the horse.
Heber Folkman, a barber of Ogden and former resident of Plain City, testified that one morning, at about daylight, he saw Mr. Eccles come from the Geddes home in Plain City. He was accompanied by William Hunt, who also saw Mr. Eccles leave the Geddes place. The witness could not fix the exact date, but said it was in the winter season and prior to the time he went on a mission in 1899.

Mrs. Margaret Head, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Geddes, testified that when a little girl, about ten years of age, she remembered the visits of Mr. Eccles to her mother's home, upon which occasions he would place his arms around her mother and kiss her. She said that he treated her mother as a wife and that he acted toward Albert as a father.

The witness said that, until the death of her father, William Geddes, she was known as Lovie William Geddes, she being a plural child and her mother not taking the name of Geddes until about the time of Mr. Geddes' death. She said that she was born in 1887 and was married first to Earl Hawkes, who died. She afterwards married W. E. Head. She had lived with her mother practically all the time until her marriage in 1907, and she remembered the frequent visits of Mr. Eccles to the Geddes home, both in Plain City and Salt Lake.

Mrs. Head stated that Mr. Eccles visited her mother at all times of day and night, sometimes remaining all night and presiding at the home when he was there. She said that he would say grace at the table, or call on other members of the family to do so, and that he furnished money for the home. She stated that she had a great deal about Albert and had said that he desired him to get a good education so he could work in a bank or something like that, as he did not appear to be a very strong boy. It was said by the witness that Mr. Eccles was a good father to Albert and bought him all kinds of toys and things that boys like for pastime.

The witness said that she was at the Nelson home shortly after the birth of Albert when Mr. Eccles came and enquired for her mother. She said that he went into the front room where her mother was and remained there about 20 minutes. When he returned, her mother was with him and she had the baby in her arms. Mr. Eccles had his arms partly around Mrs. Geddes, the witness said, and, addressing Mr. Nelson said:

coming the questioner on account of the indisposition of Attorney Gustin who started out with the cross examination just before the mid-day adjournment.

The questioning by Mr. Boyd was largely in relation to conditions around Mrs. Geddes' home, in so far as furnishings were concerned. The witness said that, while they were living in the Constitution building in Salt Lake, they occupied two rooms which were supplied with the necessary furniture to make them comfortable living rooms.

Mrs. Head said that her mother never discussed family affairs with her and that the first intimation of the relationship with Mrs. Geddes, was given just after the Reed Smoot investigation.

To hasten the course of the trial, Judge Howell will hold a session of court this evening and, it is said by the attorneys that the judge has indicated that he will hold night sessions next week.

Yesterday Afternoon.
Cross examination of George F. Gibbs yesterday afternoon elicited nothing new and he was unshaken in his testimony given on direct examination.

He stoutly maintained that Mr. Eccles had acknowledged to him that he was the father of Albert Geddes. The next witness on the stand for the plaintiff was Frank Seffrit, former general manager of the Salt Lake Tribune, who testified to an interview with David Eccles in the summer of 1910, when the Tribune was prosecuting a campaign against those whom the managers of the paper suspected of violating the manifesto of President Wilford Woodruff declaring that plural marriage should not be countenanced in the Mormon church.

Mr. Seffrit stated that at that time he was managing the affairs of the Tribune and that Colonel Nelson was the managing editor. He said that the paper had a list of names of persons whom they suspected as being violators of the Woodruff manifesto, and that the name of David Eccles was there.

The paper had accused Mr. Eccles of being the husband of Margaret Geddes in polygamous marriage, and charged that her son Albert was his child. He said that Mr. Eccles had taken exceptions and called at the Tribune office seeking a retraction. He was said by the witness to have declared that the publications were damaging to him in a financial way, as well as making his position embarrassing at home with his family.

The witness said that Colonel Nelson told Mr. Eccles that he had proof quite positive that he had married Margaret Geddes as his plural wife and that Albert was his son, explaining to him that it was known that he was visiting her frequently, at night, and at other times, and that it was known that he had embraced her when he came to her place of residence and was furnishing means for her support.

To this Mr. Eccles replied that all of his attentions to Mrs. Geddes were friendly advancements and nothing more. He said that Mrs. Geddes was a good woman so far as he knew, and that he was very certain that she was worthy of the kindest consideration. The witness said that Mr. Eccles was asked if he did not have some suspicions of Mrs. Geddes because she had a child that was alleged to have been born out of wedlock, except that it was born of a plural marriage.

The witness said that Mr. Eccles replied that he considered Mrs. Geddes a virtuous, respectable woman.
The witness said that Mr. Eccles advised the Tribune management that he had not entered the practice of polygamy since the manifesto and that a great injustice was done him when the paper published his name in a list of violators of the Woodruff manifesto. He gave the managers of the paper the witness said, the word of honor that he was not the husband of the Geddes woman and desired the paper to retract what it had said, otherwise a suit for damages would be instituted.

Mr. Seffrit said that Mr. Eccles was told that if he would make a sworn statement that he was not living in plural marriage relationship with Mrs. Geddes and that Albert was not his son, the Tribune would make a retraction and strike his name from the polygamist list. The witness said that Mr. Eccles said he would do so, but that when Colonel Nelson dictated the statement to a stenographer, Mr. Eccles said he would not sign it, as it would place him in an awkward position. Mr. Seffrit said that Mr. Eccles was told that if he would leave such an affidavit with the paper as a matter of the witness said, the paper would not be published and a retraction would be made of what had been written of him respecting a plural marriage relationship with the Geddes' woman, but that he refused to do that.

Further testifying, the witness said that, while Mr. Eccles threatened libel proceedings, and had said that he had consulted a lawyer respecting the matter, no suit was commenced, and that the Tribune had never retracted. In response to a question propounded by J. H. DeVine, attorney for the defendants, on cross examination, he said he came from Bellingham, Wash., as a voluntary witness in the case, the understanding being that his expenses would be paid by Judge King.

The plaintiff then placed on the stand Joseph E. Scellie, a construction worker of Salt Lake, who said that he had occasion to do sidewalk work near the Mrs. Geddes' home in Salt Lake when Mr. Eccles called. The witness said that the time of the call by Mr. Eccles was in October, 1912.
As Mr. Eccles came to the Geddes' home, the witness said, Albert, Mrs. Geddes' boy, was standing on the porch, and when he saw Mr. Eccles he exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma, see who is here!"
He said that Mr. Eccles took the boy in his arms and, kissing him, said, "How are you, my son?"

The witness said that, soon after, Mr. Eccles and Mrs. Geddes came out of the house and Mr. Eccles began to question him about property lines and asked whether a proposed line fence was to be built at a certain place. He said that Mr. Eccles and himself measured the width of the property with a tape line and that Mr. Eccles told Mrs. Geddes that "we are getting full measurement on the property."

He said that Mr. Eccles then requested him to cut away the limb of a tree that was lying upon the roof of the house and was damaging the shingles. Mr. Eccles told the witness that "Maggie" would pay him when the work was done. Scellie said that as Mr. Eccles left the place he placed "a bunch of money" in Mrs. Geddes' hand and then had to run about 100 feet to catch a car.

BOILERS IN SCHOOLS OF CITY IN BAD CONDITION

H. J. Holley, a boiler inspector, recently appointed by the board of education to inspect the heating plants in the city schools reported last night, at the weekly meeting of the board, that the boilers in two of the schools were in a dangerous condition. They had been burned to such an extent, he said, that they should not be used until repairs, which would cost between $1500 and $2000, had been made. The matter was referred to Directors Williams and Lovdahl and the possibility of appointing a boiler expert to make regular inspections was discussed, without any action being taken.

A report that the installation of a new heating plant in the Five Points school would cost $4775, was placed on file.

The board also considered the question of having all foreign insurance policies on school property transferred to home companies and action was postponed until the cost of transfer can be ascertained. The building committee was authorized to have minor improvements on the schools, to cost $1,257.75, made and Custodian Marriot was instructed to make a report at least once a month regarding the condition of all buildings.

Miss Viola Clancy, clerk of the board, filed a report showing that the net cost of operating the chemistry, domestic science, manual training and other fee departments was $1148, salaries not being considered. The remainder of the expenses was covered by the fees received from the students. A proposal to reduce the fees for the chemistry class, now considered as slightly excessive, was discussed.

A financial report was also submitted by Miss Clancy, showing that $7,714.35 had been received from the state high school fund, $539.34 less than last year. Nothing was received from the state on the night high school—students and President Pingree was authorized to take up this matter with State Superintendent E. G. Gowans.

At the present time, the school overrath is $39,176.72, with $5800 on hand. The board has borrowed $45,000 to cover the overrath and balance and all bills for last year have been paid. An estimate made last night showed that the overrath would probably reach $90,000 by the time the first taxes are received in the fall.

WORLD'S MARKETS

New York, July 3.—Stocks were only temporarily depressed today on news of the shooting of J. P. Morgan. The market showed an uncertain tone at the outset, mainly as a result of renewed weakness in St. Paul United States Steel, which is regarded as a Morgan specialty, broke 1 1/4 points while the selling was at its height with losses of 1 to 2 points in other industries including some of the war specialties. Railroad stocks, particularly the Pacifics and grangers has shown an early inclination to react in sympathy with St. Paul. Reassuring advices regarding Mr. Morgan's condition caused a general wiping out of losses. The closing was irregular. Bonds were easy.

New York, July 3.—Selling of St. Paul shares was resumed at the outset of today's short session with general irregularity elsewhere. The first quotation for St. Paul was only at a slight decline over yesterday's close, but increased pressure soon caused a drop of 2 1/4 to $2, from which it recovered to $3 1/2.
"So" shares were off 2 points; United States Rubber lost a substantial traction while Northern Pacific fell 1 3/4 and Southern Pacific, Erie first preferred and Kansas & Texas preferred, 1.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 3.—Prospects of a heavily increased movement of wheat from first hands led to a decided setback in values today in the wheat market here. Dispatches from southern Illinois said threatening was general and that if the weather held good dealers would be swamped with wheat. Opening prices, which ranged 1-2c off to 5-8c up, were followed soon by a sharp decline all around.

Favorable weather eased off corn. The market was bearishly affected also by the weakness of wheat. After opening 3-8c lower to 1-8c advance, prices underwent a material general fall.

Selling on resting orders carried down oats.
Provisions weakened owing to lower prices for hogs. Lard supply was under pressure.

Additional declines resulted from announcements that a Baltimore exporter was cancelling purchases of new wheat. The close was heavy at 1 to 2 3/8c under last night.
The corn close was unsettled at 1 1/2 to 5-8@3-4c net decline.

ITALIANS REPORT INTENSE ACTIVITY

Rome, July 2, via Paris, July 3, 2:30 a. m.—The following Italian official statement concerning the progress of hostilities, was given out here to night:

"The action of the artillery is becoming more intense along the entire front, especially in Carnia, where the works of Predil Pass, an effective result being effected in a short time.
"An enemy camp of about 500 tents in the vicinity of Elder, beyond Ploeken, was demolished. The enemy also was dislodged by our fire from entrenchments under construction at Strehica and at Sella de Prasnik.

"Yesterday an Alpine detachment captured an enemy entrenchment on the northern slope of Val Grande, the fire from which was hindering our occupation of Frelkofel. During the night and at daybreak the enemy in two violent counter attacks tried to dislodge our troops from the entrenchment, but were repulsed both times with heavy losses. One hundred and fifty dead were counted. Some prisoners were captured and a hundred guns were taken.
"On the Isonzo river the action continues its course.
"Fire from our artillery burned the village of Critica, east of Plezzo, where a large depot of supplies was reported. A munitions depot also exploded.

"Last night the enemy twice attacked a position captured on the Cornic plateau, but they were repulsed."
