HILLSTROM CASE IS BEFORE STATE BOARD OF PARDONS

The state board of pardons met today in Salt Lake to consider again the case of Joseph Hillstrom, convicted of the murder of J. G. Morrison at Salt Lake in 1914, sentenced to be executed October 1, and reprieved until today by request of President Wilson, who acted on a request from W. A. F. Ekengren, Swedish minister to the United States.

Governor Spry and the members of the board of pardons say that there is no new evidence in behalf of Hillstrom has been offered. It is said that the state has obtained evidence regarding Hillstrom's career prior to his arrest here for the Morrison murder which shows that he was arrested several times previous to various western points, including one in connection with a robbery and shooting at Layton, Utah, in 1911. Hillstrom has always refused to discuss his life prior to his last arrest.

Telegram from Swedish Minister. Governor Spry received a telegram today from Minister Ekengren, in which the minister says he has carefully studied the record of the case and has been further confirmed in his opinion that the evidence against Hillstrom, who says he is a Swedish subject, does not warrant capital punishment, and concludes his message by saying:

"I am well aware that from a technical point of view a new trial is out of the question as the matter now stands, but considering the weakness of the evidence, which at best is only circumstantial, I herewith venture, not only on my own, but on my government's behalf, to address a most earnest appeal to you, Mr. Governor, and through you the entire board of pardons with a view to obtain a commutation of sentence for my unfortunate countryman, if for no other reason, at least for the sake of humanity and comity, usually practiced between friendly nations."

If the board declines to commute Hillstrom's sentence today, he will be brought before the district court which sentenced him before and a new date will be set for his execution.

SOUTH FORK RESERVOIR PROJECT HAS BEEN SOLD

Ogden River Reservoir Company Gives Option to Denver Engineer to Buy the Whole Reservoir Site—If Farmers Want the Water, the Dam Will Be Built—Only Question Is, Do Farmers of Weber County Need the Water and Do They Want to Buy It?

For a long time last evening Mayor Fell was again in consultation with the Ogden Examiner people and, as a result, this morning the corporation sheet announces that a mysterious person was around Ogden sometime ago trying to do something for the South Fork river project. It was understood between the publisher of The Standard and this mysterious person that the matter should be kept secret until the party had made arrangements to build the dam. We presume the mysterious person also consulted Mayor Fell as the Examiner article shows a leak.

Having been exposed, and being used for anything but an honorable purpose, The Standard releases the story as follows:

N. E. Hall, a prominent hydraulic engineer of Denver, Colorado, is the patentee of the hollow core wall dam and for years has been closely connected with the famous Amherston Construction Company of Boston, Mass. This company has built more dams in the United States than any other ten construction companies in the nation. This company is the construction company that is cutting through the mountains at Seattle and bringing them to the street levels and delivering the dirt washed down a mile or two away and doing it for less money than a team and scraper could push the dirt ten feet.

This mysterious fellow, N. E. Hall, has taken an option to buy William Glasman's interests in the South Fork Reservoir project. We might say that Mr. Glasman gave his interests just as they stand in the South Fork project to Mr. Hall on condition that he proceed to construct the reservoir. Mr. Glasman sells his interest without a cents profit, intending to make his profits on the general prospect that the building of this dam will bring to Ogden. One thing will prevent Mr. Hall from building the dam, and that is proof that the water is not needed and that the farmers do not want any water. If the farmers of Weber County want additional water, Mr. Hall will then proceed with the project and build the South Fork Reservoir. All Mr. Hall will ask is that the city live up to its contract with the Ogden River Reservoir Company; that it either pay for half of the dam, as the city agreed to do, or stop knocking the project and get out of the road and let someone build it who believes in building a reservoir. The present city commissioners have done nothing but knock the South Fork Reservoir project from the time they signed the contract with the Ogden River Reservoir Company to build the dam jointly. Mayor Fell and Sam Browning fooled the Reservoir Company. They held out that they wanted to help build the reservoir and pay for half of the project and own one half and, no sooner was the contract signed than the city officials started knocking the project and they kept on knocking it. The city commissioners told the farmers it would never be built, and so all the farmers who had paid for their water right to the Ogden River Reservoir Company were given their money back, and this mysterious person, who the Examiner announces was around interesting himself in the South Fork Reservoir project, is not so mysterious as it may appear. He is at present, and will undoubtedly continue to be, the absolute owner of the South Fork Reservoir project. The contract between the Reservoir Company and Mr. Hall is in writing, and the things, as above stated, will stop the building of the reservoir in the near future and that is, first, proof that the water is not needed and wanted, and second, that the officials of Ogden City shall stop throwing cold water on the project and, if they cannot say a good word for it, keep their mouths shut. Financiers and bankers who naturally must assist in the way of advancing the money, will hesitate a long time to furnish the money when A. G. Fell, mayor of the city, and T. Sam Browning, commissioner of the city, are knocking the project, and in signed addresses to the people announce that the project is a failure and an impossibility. From now on the Standard's interest in the South Fork project will be that of every citizen of Ogden and Weber county, namely: that it hopes and prays that the reservoir will be built.

We call the people's attention to the fact that the blame for work stopping on the South Fork Reservoir project cannot be laid at the doors of Wm. Glasman or the Ogden River Reservoir Company. The project was signed by A. G. Fell, T. Sam Browning and Chris Flygare, the city commissioners, announce that they were the ones who stopped the building of the reservoir. We let responsibility rest there. The Standard hopes that whoever may be elected city commissioners at the coming election, they will live up to their contract with the Ogden River Reservoir Company and pay for one-half of the dam.

BANQUET AT BERTHANA

MOST DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

The Utah Federation of Women's clubs closed its twenty second annual convention last night with a banquet and musicale at the Berthana social hall. The affair, in the opinion of those present, far eclipsed any one of the kind ever held in the state, the magnificent and convenient appointments of the local palace of entertainment making it possible. Owing to the inability of Mrs. John D. Sherman of Chicago to attend the convention, to occupy the time at the closing meeting as programed, the banquet and musicale program arranged for the early evening was enlarged upon until the entire evening had been most pleasantly passed.

The banquet was served, under the direction of the committee by Mrs. S. H. Winters and corps of young ladies, in the large banquet room on the upper floor of the hall. The table decorations were vases of autumn flowers and conservatory roses and lighted candles in dainty candlesticks the scheme in its completeness adding a touch of rare charm to the permanent beauties of the room. Upwards of 100 guests were seated around the tables, Utah's most prominent and brilliant women, and the banquet, an elaborate seven course affair, was enjoyed by them to the fullest measure.

Adding greatly to the pleasure of the club women while the banquet was in progress, a finely chosen program of violin solos was rendered by Miss Romania Lyde, whom the committee were fortunate in securing at a late hour. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Marilla Hunter Barlow.

Lively conversation, along social lines and on subjects pertaining to the past and future of the mission of women's clubs, was interspersed with the music until the closing course of the banquet was served and then the program of toasts was carried out. Mrs. R. E. Porter of Ogden was introduced as toastmistress, by Mrs. A. B. Corey of Ogden, chairman of the banquet committee and handled the position in a manner that won her many compliments.

As originally outlined, the responses to toasts were to have been brief, but, on account of the change in the program, the prospective speakers were notified late in the day that they would have to make up for the absence of Mrs. Sherman by lengthening their remarks. The brief notices proved sufficient and the responses were each of some length and brilliant in character, each speaker covering the subject assigned with a cultured delivery and in a thoroughly interesting manner. Those responding to toasts were:

Mrs. E. E. Corfman of Provo, president of the federation; Mrs. E. T. Lewis of Logan, Miss Winifred Jensen of Salt Lake and Mrs. J. A. Nelson of Garfield. Their remarks were frequently interrupted with applause. At the conclusion of the banquet the delegates adjourned to the spacious rest room adjoining the ballroom and enjoyed a musicale given by Miss Lila Jost, soprano, Miss Rosalie Holberg, mezzo-soprano, Miss Lillian Wright, pianiste, and Austin Sooy, cellist. The program was of chamber music and each selection was pleasingly given and well received.

Among those present at the musicale and banquet were the following: Mrs. C. H. McMahon, Salt Lake; Mrs. E. E. Corfman, Provo; Mrs. L. Markle, Ogden; Mrs. A. P. Hibbs, Ogden; Mrs. J. E. Carver, Ogden; Mrs. James Gause, Ogden; Mrs. Archie Bowman, Ogden; Mrs. P. A. Knisely, Ogden; Mrs. S. S. Smith, Ogden; Mrs. Edward Bichsel, Ogden; Mrs. A. B. Corey, Ogden; Mrs. E. O. FORREST A. PROWS IS ASKING DAMAGES OF $5,000

Forrest A. Prows has started an action in the District court against J. E. Murdock, of Richmond, Utah, for damages alleged to have been sustained by him in an automobile collision which occurred August 20, '15, on Washington avenue near Twenty-sixth street, in this city, and his complaint was filed this afternoon by Joseph Chez and David L. Stine, his attorneys.

In his complaint, he alleges that Murdock was driving at a reckless and dangerous rate of speed, a large and powerful automobile, on the west side of Washington avenue, going in a southerly direction; and when opposite the entrance to the Cheesman garage he suddenly turned and crossed the street at a reckless rate of speed and in excess of twenty miles per hour and without giving any warning or signal, ran into and over the plaintiff, who was about two or three feet from the east side curbing on Washington avenue, and about 15 feet north of the garage entrance, adjusting his motorcycle; that the automobile ran into and over him with such force and violence that it demolished his motorcycle, dragged him against the curbing and broke four of his ribs and mangled him, wrenched his back, battered his shoulders, legs and knees, whereby he suffered excruciating pains, both internal and external, and permanently injuring him, for which he asks $5,000 general damages.

COLE-WILLIAMS WEDDING. Beautiful in every detail was the wedding of Miss Jean Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Cole, to Howard Williams, Wednesday evening, October 13. The bride is one of Ogden's charming young girls and the good wishes and gifts which have poured in for the past few weeks are evidence of the respect and esteem in which she is held by her friends.

Dan Cupid hovered about the young couple from the day of their introduction two years ago and crowned his work with love laurels Wednesday evening at the bride's home. Some two hundred friends gathered at the Cole residence on Washington avenue and witnessed there the beautiful ring ceremony.

The handsome winding stairway was enhanced by smilax and autumn tinted vines; garlands of rosebuds and smilax festooned the walls of the spacious parlors and library. The bridal corner was a veritable fairy spot, enchanted by a background of maiden hair fern and pink rose buds; suspended from the arch way hung a lily bell. When the first beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march rang forth the bride party descended the wide stair. The Maid of Honor, Miss Helen Cole, girlish in an exquisite frock of yellow satin, lace and pearls, headed the procession. Miss Ruby Cok, the bridesmaid, wearing a creation of coral satin and lace, and carrying a bouquet of pink and white rosebuds came next, followed by Dallas McClure, the clever little ring bearer, and the little flower girl, Misses of the bridegroom, simple in accordin pleated frocks of white chiffon.

Leaning on her father's arm came the bride in an exquisite gown of white duchess satin, real lace and pearl trimmings. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Slowly and reverently the bridal party marched through the long halls to the bridal corner where they were met by the groom, his best man, Stewart Eccles, and Reverend Rassweiler, who united the pair in sacred matrimony. Heartily were the wishes of the friends, who gathered about the young couple and their attendants. Immediately after the congratulations were over delicious refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Winter. The Misses Renstrom, Schonian, Baird, Hutchison, Skeen and Winter, all pretty young girls beautifully gowned served the guests.
