TEA POSTPONED.

On account of grand chapter convening at Salt Lake City, Thursday and Friday of this week, there will be no tea at the Masonic temple, Thursday.

FOR CHARLES C. RICHARDS. Thursday evening, May 11, Charles C. Richards, who is to retire from the presidency of the Ogden Stake on account of ill health, will be accorded an entertainment in form of a musical and literary program, dancing and refreshments. The affair will be given in the Weber academy and officers of the other stakes and wards are invited to attend.

ORDER OF EASTERN STAR. Two days session of the Grand Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star will convene in Salt Lake City in the Masonic temple, beginning Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and continuing until Friday night. Wednesday evening a reception will be given in the parlors to which all members of the Grand Chapter, visitors and delegates are invited. Members of the Order of Eastern Star are cordially invited to all these sessions.

IN HONOR OF MISS NORINE MOYES.

Miss Norine Moyes, who is to depart for the Eastern States mission of the Mormon church on May 17, to enter upon a two-year term of service for the church as a missionary, is to be the guest of honor tomorrow night at an elaborately planned social affair, to which her friends are invited. The party will consist of a concert and dance, the former to last from 8 to 9 o'clock and the latter from 9 o'clock until midnight.

For the concert, an unusually interesting program has been arranged. Piano solos will be rendered by the Misses Ida Foster and Janie McClellan, the blind girls who made a fine impression as musicians at the recent annual recital at the Utah state school for the deaf and blind, and these will mark their first public concert appearance away from the school. James Jacobs, the blind tenor, who has been heard with credit to himself, in the city, on several occasions will sing two numbers.

The Ninth ward male quartet, winner of the northern division M. I. A. championship, and Mrs. Agnes Warner, the well-known local soprano will also sing. In addition to the music, the program will include readings by Adella Warner and Gladys Peterson, two of the best student readers in the city.

Music for the dancing will be furnished by the Thatcher orchestra and refreshments will be served.

MEET TOMORROW.

Mrs. Morrell will speak on the "Silent Drama" tomorrow afternoon before the Parent-Teachers association of the Lorin Farr school to meet at the school at 3:30 o'clock. The high school orchestra will furnish music.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Beller announce the engagement of their daughter, Algie Beller, to Mr. Howard Lee. Mr. Lee is an Idaho rancher. The wedding is to take place in June.

EXPERIMENTS TO BE MADE WITH SHEEP IN UTAH

Karl L. Heil and Joseph Hastings, of Spencer, Ida., experienced stockmen who have been engaged for years with the Wood Livestock company, have spent a few days in Ogden and left this morning for Richfield and Fountain Green, respectively, in south central Utah. They will be engaged this summer in assisting to handle demonstration herds of sheep on the Manti and Fillmore forests.

Raymond J. Becraft of Ogden, and Lloyd W. Tuttle of Morgan, students of the State Agricultural college, and Bryant S. Martineau and Theodore R. Nichols, grazing assistants, will also be directly connected with these demonstrations, which extend also to the Fishlake and Sevier forests—four in all.

It was possible to obtain the services of Mr. Heil and Mr. Hastings through the co-operation of the Wood Livestock company, which has been among the foremost of the stock companies to introduce advanced methods in handling stock. For fifteen years they have been following the "bedding out" system of herding sheep on the range, being among the first to adopt this system. They also have the advantage of experienced, dependable foreman and herders, partly through the introduction of a successful merit system.

Under present conditions, every thirty lamb means $5 to the stockman at shipping time and it is, therefore, of concern to Utah stockmen that, while the lamb crop of a band of ewes averages 85 per cent in Idaho and Wyoming, and about 80 per cent in Nevada, it is usually considerably below the figures in Utah.

Whether this shortage is due to the practice of shearing before lambing, with attendant excitement and fright, and even rough handling of the ewes; to lack of favorable lambing grounds, lack of feed, lack of water, and in adequate help at lambing time, or all of these and perhaps other factors, will form the initial part of the investigation, which will start with the band on the lambing grounds and continue until the sheep leave the forest ranges in the fall.

For example, on the Manti (and similar plans will be followed on the Fishlake, Fillmore and Sevier) Cook Brothers, of Fountain Green, will place two similar bands on the forest of about 1200 ewes in each. The two allotments assigned them will be as nearly counterparts as possible. One band will be handled without change in any way in previous procedure, as a check herd. The demonstration herd will be handled according to the most approved plans, including the bedding out system, rotation in grazing, etc. In both herds a sufficient number of lambs will be marked by metal ear tags for identification to facilitate accurate records of weighing every two weeks during the entire period on the forest.

On the areas grazed by the sheep under both systems sample quadrats will be staked to observe their effect on the condition of the range; of damage or absence of damage to the soil and brush cover, seedlings, and larger trees, how completely and uniformly the forage crop is utilized, and so on. Then, too, small quadrats will be fenced to exclude all grazing to determine if, under the conditions of climate, plant life, soil, and slope of central Utah, improvement of the range comes about more quickly when sheep are excluded entirely for a year or for two or three years, or if grazing after seed maturity is an aid. Later in the season, according to plan, the local supervisors and Ogden men interested in this work will visit the four different experiments and demonstrations to correlate the results obtained under possible differences of environment or methods, that they may be made of the widest general application. On each of the forests visited this committee will be accompanied by local stockmen, who are taking a deep interest in the demonstration.

OGDEN BOWLERS IN A CONTEST WITH THE COAST

Six of Ogden's crack bowlers have entered the Pacific Coast and Intermountain States Telegraph Bowling tournament, which will be started on Monday, May 15th, and cover a period of three nights. Prizes amounting to $3,500 have been hung up to be distributed to the bowlers rolling the highest scores, in addition to medals and a loving cup to the winning team. The first night, a five-man event will be staged and the Ogden line-up will be as follows:

Watkins, captain; Sarver, Van Ness, Gregory, Parry. Tuesday night, doubles will be staged, with Watkins and Parry, Sarver and Van Ness, and Gregory and Clark, as the Ogden pairs. The tournament will close with a singles event, with Watkins, Parry, Sarver, Van Ness, Clark and Gregory, working at the local end of the wire.

All of the games will be rolled in the bowling and billiard parlors in the basement at 2473 Washington avenue.

wrestling champion of the world, last night in a conversation at the Wilson hotel, in Salt Lake, with an Ogden fan. The conversation concerned Brown's coming match with Harbertson and the statement indicated that the champion is no lover of the stalling game. Since Harbertson, as has been unquestionably demonstrated in all of his matches in the past two years, does nothing but "get in and wrestle," the Ogden fan assured Brown that his hope would be fulfilled.

The champion is taking daily hikes into the hills east of Salt Lake to harden his muscles and get his breathing apparatus into the best possible condition for the bout on May 16th, and the follows the long walks and runs with a workout at the Salt Lake fire station gymnasium. With these exercises, he is gradually getting down to weight and expects to be able to meet the requirements of the contract which guarantees him $1500, win, lose or draw, for his match with Harbertson.

The match is to be strictly for the middleweight championship, both men to weigh in at 3 p. m. on May 16th, at 158 pounds. A city inspected scales will be utilized for the weighing of this part of the contract will be witnessed by the referee, promoters, rep-representatives of Ogden and Salt Lake newspapers and as many fans as care to see it. The much mooted question can make the weight will be satisfactorily settled on this occasion and the trainers of both are confident that their proteges will weigh under the 158 pound mark specified. The matter of a referee for the bout is being freely discussed, with Harbertson favoring Jack Childs or Pete Visser and Brown, it is thought, Will Thornton.

The choice of a referee must be made by Sunday night by the wrestlers or the matter will be turned over to representatives of the two local newspapers.

Canning Season Soon

Western housewives who study food costs and values have reached the decision that the canning of fruits during 1916 is an essential as in previous years and will be a material saving over general food costs, despite the advance in sugar cost brought about by the European war and reduction of sugar supply.

Sugar in itself is a needed food, with 98 per cent of available energy as against 87 per cent for meat and fish or 95 per cent for vegetables. Canned fruit and jelly not only includes this sugar as available energy but also the fruit is necessary for a balanced ration and has 90 per cent available energy. If sugar is not consumed as food, other rations that cost more per pound and have less value in diet will be utilized. That is why western housewives realize that it will pay to continue their canning of fruits this year.
