GERMANS KILL BRITISH CAPTAIN

Allies Consider Act of Enemy Brutal Violation of International Law Which May Result in Prompt Reprisals.

Berlin, July 28.—Testimony was presented at the court martial which sentenced to death several British merchant ship captains to show that while Captain Fryatt did not belong to the armed forces, he had attempted on March 28, 1915, while near the Maas lights, to ram the German submarine U-33.

Honored by British.
Captain Fryatt and the first officer and the first engineer of the Brussels received from the British admiralty gold watches for "brave conduct" and were mentioned in the house of commons.

The submarine U-33, according to the official account of the trial, had signaled to the British steamer to show her flag and to stop but Captain Fryatt did not heed and it is alleged turned at his best speed toward the submarine which escaped only by diving immediately several yards below the surface.

Captain Fryatt, the official statement says, admitted that he had followed the instructions of the British admiralty. Sentence was confirmed and the captain was executed and shot for a "franc tireur crime against armed German sea forces."

The trial was held at Brussels, Belgium, yesterday.

When captured by German torpedo boats June 24 Captain Fryatt was plotting the steamship Brussels from Rotterdam to Tilbury. Several German warships dashed out of the navy base at Zeebrugge and escorted the Brussels back to the Belgian harbor.

The ship carried an all-British crew of forty-four men.

Dutch newspapers said it was generally believed that the capture of the Brussels was brought about by a passenger who said he was a German. This man was said to have made signals to the German warships.

Washington, July 28.—Germany's execution of Captain Charles Fryatt, master of the British steamship Brussels for an alleged attempt to ram a submarine is regarded in allied quarters here as a brutal violation of international law likely to result in prompt retaliatory measures by Great Britain. They contend that if a hostile submarine approached the Brussels it was in effect an attack on the British navy.

Reprisals by the allies it is feared, might be followed by a change in the German submarine policy which has been satisfactory to the United States since the last assurances that no submarine would not be attacked without warning or without provision for safety of passengers and crews.

Convention number 10 of the second Hague peace conference sets forth how the crews of merchantmen who legitimately resist capture shall be treated as part of the armed forces. One of the best authorities on the subject says:

Hague Conference Law.
"In a sense the crews of merchantmen owned by subjects of the belligerent forces belong to the latter's armed forces. For these vessels are liable to be seized by any men-of-war who are attacked for that purpose they may defend themselves, may return the attack and equally seize the attacking men-of-war. The crews of merchantmen become in such cases combatants and enjoy all the privileges of the members of armed forces. But unless attacked they must not commit hostilities and if they do so they are liable to be treated as criminals just as are private individuals who commit hostilities in land warfare."

Officials here point out that the United States has taken the position that the master of any merchant vessel who sees a submarine approaching has from the very nature of the submarine nature of warfare the right to presume that he is about to be attacked. Consequently, it is argued, he has the right in turn to forestall an attack by himself ramming or firing to defend himself.

London, July 28, 5:35 p. m.—News of the execution of Captain Fryatt and the British steamer Brussels, caused a painful impression at the British foreign office. Under the instructions of Viscount Grey, the foreign secretary, a note was dispatched immediately to the American embassy requesting that James W. Gerard, the American ambassador at Berlin, procure complete details of the affair.

A neighborhood quarrel that may involve serious consequences was brought to the attention of County Attorney Joseph E. Evans and Assistant City Attorney John C. Littlefield this morning. Mrs. William F. Ruby, of 2707 Pacific avenue, appeared at the police station with her husband, shortly before 10 o'clock and, displaying a swelling about the size of a hen's egg above her right eye and nearly crossing her forehead, declared that it had been caused by a blow from a hammer, in the hands of Mrs. Harry Marshall, her next door neighbor.

Mr. Ruby, she said, recently erected a wire fence between his home and the Marshall family. This morning one of the Ruby children was playing near the fence and Mrs. Marshall threw a nail at him. Noting her neighbor's belligerent attitude, Mrs. Ruby stated, she ran to get the child out of the way. The flying nail struck her on the finger and, as she reached the door, she saw Mrs. Marshall with a hammer.

After a consultation, the two prosecuting attorneys decided that a charge of battery would be sufficient in the case and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Mrs. Marshall on that charge.

MRS. ERB KILLED

The boy reached his home about 10 p. m. last night and, after retiring to his bed, tossed about restlessly and was thought by his father and other members of the family to be ill. This morning, he did not seem much more composed and after reading the early account of the accident, he tearfully confessed to his father, Mr. Allison, that he had been riding on the bicycle of the particular from his son, went to the police station and related them to the chief.

Story of the Boys.
The story in effect, was that Roger Allison left the Allison home on Washington avenue late in the afternoon on his bicycle to visit the Leahy and Gill boys. Calling at the Leahy home, 750 Twenty-fifth street, he met Francis and the latter rode to the Gill home in Grammeury avenue on the handle bars of the bicycle. Later the three went on the two bicycles up into the foothills and did not leave for home until after dark. Coming down the steep grade from Knob Hill, they took to the sidewalk on account of the road in the newly created sidewalk district appearing muddy and unsafe, due to the heavy rainfall of the afternoon and early evening.

They had passed the 1500 block in Washington avenue, and were near the next avenue, when suddenly a woman, who seemed to have come from behind a tree or fence, stepped onto the sidewalk almost in front of the two bicycles. The Gill boy went safely past and slowed up, but as the Allison and Leahy boys on the one bicycle approached, they were blocked by the effort of Roger by grabbing one of the handle bars and turning the bicycle the other way and into the woman.

Families in Conference.
When they recovered their feet, the boys found that Mrs. Erb appeared to have been injured and the Gill youth was sent to telephone for a doctor. When he returned, saying that the police had been sent for, the boys overcame all other feelings and the boys rode away from the scene and to their homes. They did not know the woman was fatally injured until the morning papers told the story. Today the parents, all of whom are plunged in deep grief over the regrettable accident, met at the home of Mr. Allison, with their sons to await any action that might be taken.

Sergeant J. F. Kellher and Chauffeur Gold Police answered the call to the police station and reached the scene of the tragedy within a short space of time. Drs. G. A. Dickson and W. H. Emmett were summoned by Sergeant Kellher and after examining the body announced that Mrs. Erb's death was due to concussion of the brain. There was a deep gash above the woman's left eye and she had been bleeding profusely from her nose, eyes and mouth.

Immediately after the physicians' examination of the body was concluded, Sergeant Kellher summoned Miss Eva C. Erb, step-daughter of the dead woman and stenographer in Judge J. A. Howell's court. At her request, Judge Howell was called to the scene and directed the body to be taken to the Kirkendall mortuary.

In the meantime, the police officers had begun an investigation to determine the identity of the bicyclists. Mr. Brummitt said he did not know them, but that he would be able to identify them if he saw them again. Sergeant Kellher found two caps on the parking at the edge of the sidewalk where the accident occurred. One was checked brown in color and in the sweat band and the other was a gray checked cap, both being of a style and size usually worn by boys about 17 or 18 years of age.

Biographical Sketch.
