drama, and Roy Stewart and Josie Sedgwick are surrounded by a number of properly cast actors. Joe Warner, the character played by Roy Stewart, is a young ranchman whose modern methods of conducting his business sets his neighbor, Joe Warner, against him. Joe, however, has a pretty daughter who is fond of Merritt, and that makes it difficult for the old man to start a quarrel. Pete Wright, old Joe's foreman, also is taken by the daughter of the boss, and he turns the trick by stealing cattle from both Merritt and Warner with the help of a Mexican bandit, Jose Mardones, and making each neighbor think that the other has robbed him. Wright and Mardones then attack the Warner ranch, run off the stock, and steal the girl. Warner supposes that he is fighting Merritt and his men until they arrive and drive off the thief, and his neighbor rescues his daughter.

SENSATIONAL FEAT OF HORSEMANSHIP

One of the most sensational feats of horsemanship seen on the screen in a feature of the latest Triangle release, "Boss of the Lazy Y," at the Rex theatre tomorrow in which the cowboy star, Roy Stewart, is featured. In this screen drama of life in the cowboy country Stewart "gentles" an outlaw who had successfully defied some of the best punchers in the country. Not only does Stewart stay with his mount without "pulling leather," but rides the beast until the last jump is bucked out of him, and then keeps on riding the steed until he reaches his destination. This picture calls for just such a bucking episode. Roy Stewart is nothing out by his strenuous performance as he now has a fine-looking bay to add to his string of mounts.

YANKEE MORALE PERFECT

armed merchant troopship Moldavia with American troops on board has been torpedoed and sunk, according to an official bulletin issued by the admiralty this evening.

The text of the admiralty statement follows: The armed mercantile cruiser Moldavia was torpedoed and sunk yesterday morning.

There were no casualties among the crew, but of the American troops on board fifty-six to the present have not been accounted for. It is feared they were killed in one compartment by the explosion.

The Moldavia was torpedoed without warning. It was a moonlight night and, although a good lookout was kept, the attacking submarine was not sighted before the torpedo struck.

Most of the men aboard were in their hammocks when the explosion occurred amidships. The sailors and soldiers alike showed no panic.

They fell calmly into line and awaited orders. When it was seen that the Moldavia was settling down, all on board were taken off by the escorting ships.

The men lost all of their belongings, but were supplied with new clothing at the different naval ports where they were taken.

It is believed that the American soldiers missing from the Moldavia were sleeping on the bottom deck and were overtaken by the great rush of water, after the explosion, when they were trying to reach the main deck. It also is presumed that some of the ladders were destroyed.

The vessel was struck below the bridge. She steamed ahead for some time after being struck and at first it was hoped that her water-tight compartments would enable her to reach port.

The Moldavia is of 9500 tons gross and owned by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation company. She was built at Greenock in 1903 and is 529 feet long.

The Moldavia was moving forward steadily on a smooth sea and was almost within sight of its destination when the torpedo crashed into the boatside. The vessel listed sharply and destroyers began rushing alongside and forcing it to rest in an endeavor to find a trace of the submarine. Although they prevented the U-boat from reappearing it is not known whether a hit was scored by the depth charges which were dropped in a circle around the point from which the torpedo was sent.

DEAF AND BLIND ARE READY FOR BIG FESTIVAL TO BE GIVEN ON SCHOOL LAWN WEDNESDAY

The School for the Deaf and Blind is fast bringing to perfection the arrangements for its big May Festival that will be given upon the school lawn, next Wednesday evening. Committees of teachers and household employees have been at work, decorating and raising the amphitheater and the musical and physical instructors have been whipping their charges into final shape for the event.

This festival marks the culmination of the school year and also marks the highest point of achievement in the exhibition way that the school has ever put on. No energy or detail is spared to give the spectacle the finish and splendor that has characterized it in the past. In fact, the performance this year, will be a double achievement as it combines two activities of the institution whereas only the dance feature has heretofore been staged. The coming performance will portray the work of the gymnasium as usual but will add the work of the shop and the school room and represent every minute aspect of the institution.

Classes to work. The exhibits of school work will be viewed by the citizens of Ogden and all other localities from 5:30 to 6:30, in front of Primary hall, just north of the main gates. The classes in work for the deaf and blind will be held in exact reproduction of an hour in the school room. The deaf will demonstrate the method in which they acquire speech and how their teachers communicate lessons in geography, arithmetic, and history by the ordinary spoken word, letting the deaf child read the motion of the lips. The blind youngsters will exemplify their reading from raised type and trace out the courses of rivers and mountain chains upon embossed maps. Three tiny blind tots will serve music to the audience and two of the boys will conduct their little institution candy store and sell confections to the crowd. All the various lines of intellectual training can be inspected at the booths in this part of the exhibit.

The second section of the display occupies the gymnasium hall. All the manual, domestic and industrial activities of the school will be here demonstrated. The spectators will pass in line around the hall and inspect exhibits of every variety. The first part, meant for the blind, already the carpets looms are being set up and two boys will show how rag rugs are woven. Another group will cane chairs and make hammocks and baskets and a group of girls will carry on a sewing class, running a sewing machine, stitching Red Cross blankets, and making dresses. Farther on, the deaf

FIFTY-THREE AMERICAN SOLDIERS LOST ON TROOP SHIP MOLDAVIA

LONDON, May 25.—With the exception of fifty-three American soldiers, all on board the British troopship Moldavia were saved and have been landed at a southern British port. No officers' names are among the list of missing and it contains the names of only two non-commissioned officers.

Orpheum Theatre TOMORROW, Sunday and Monday The Million Dollar Picture Beautiful "A Daughter of The Gods" A Production for Young and Old. See the amazing water feats performed by Miss Kellerman. ADMISSION 15c Children 5c First Performance Sunday at 5 p. m.

ANNETTE KELLERMAN ORPHEUM TOMORROW

Manager Goss has secured the Million Dollar picture for a return engagement after a years absence in the Fox feature "A Daughter of the Gods" featuring Annette Kellerman. The picture is a sensation and has played in all the cities of the country at advanced prices but will play tomorrow at the Orpheum at the usual picture prices and advance.

"WOLVES OF THE BORDER"

The film is a fascinating one. It is a fairy story, with a girl and a prince, and all the dreams of the juvenile mind regarding gnome-land, mermaids, palaces, and the like, and sensible inscriptions slides tell a logical story, attractively clean, sweet and wholesome. Miss Kellerman, in the fairy story, is first a bird, then a mermaid, then a mortal, and finally a sort of Joan of Arc, leading soldiers to battle for the people oppressed by a wicked Sultan. In many guises Miss Kellerman is in the water, swimming for her life, doing fancy diving feats for the pleasure of herself and her groomfriends, diving from high battlements to escape from authority, and plunging down over waterfalls in the restricted garb of a mermaid. In all these acts she showed a versatility never before seen here.

There are tremendous battle scenes—fairy battles, but very real, and rough riding as thrilling as the Klux dashes in "The Birth of a Nation." There is a burning city, and many sensational features, and the most wonderful water effects yet shown in film.—Advertisement.

"WOLVES OF THE BORDER"

Cliff Smith, director of "Wolves of the Border," evidently went on a still hunt for a lot of new and eye-arresting locations before starting to produce "Wolves of the Border" which will be shown at the Cory theatre Sunday. Lovers of long stretches of open country and herds of grazing cattle, of steep mountain sides and deep valleys will find much to admire in the views. The story is a vigorous bit of melo-

BOOTLEGGER HAD ALL THE ESSENTIAL OF THE TRADE

George House, who was arrested early last night at the local railroad yards and in whose possession was found seven pints of whiskey, was sentenced to pay a fine of $150, with the alternative of spending 90 days in the city jail. As House did not seem to have the wherewithal to pay the fine, he will probably do some work for the city each day to help pay for his board at the city jail.

House claimed that he had the seven pints for his sole and personal use, though the arresting officers and the court seemed to believe that House was a bootlegger. House told the court that he was a hard working man and that he had made Ogden his headquarters off and on for a long time. He said he had been to Evanston and procured the liquor and was going to Idaho to work when he was arrested by the officers while trying to get out of town on a freight train. He was taken into custody by Sergeant J. F. Kellher and Detective J. L. Hobson.

Sergeant Kellher informed the court that he had good reason to believe that House had been a bootlegger in Ogden on several occasions. When arrested there was found on his person with the seven pints also a pint of water which the officer said he believed was to be given to a customer from which to take a "chaser" after buying a drink.
